Neither is your intentional trolling, directed malice, hypocrisy and hatred toward this group, but you don't see anyone (except n8wwm) menstruating all over the place and talking such nonsense simply because one is unable to engage in an intelligent conversation regarding a topic of which you disagree.

Your thinking is that of a nazi, N7ZZT, but it's no surprise such radical and violent thoughts is your first initial knee-jerk reaction regarding those you disagree. Very telling and powerful stuff you put out there, Oyen, but it is against everything the USA stands for...no wonder you're always miserable and expressing unhappiness in this group regarding its participants....you're a freakin' nazi sympathizer and freedom hater who would advocate violence simply because you haven't the communication skill and intellect to express yourself adequately regarding a mere personal opinion of which you disagree. Once couldn't ask for a better example of such neanderthal-like behavior that is responsible for fucking up ham radio. Nicely illustrated, Oyen.

A TVI filter may not be sufficient. Close proximity to the inside house wiring may also be a problem. He may have to place brute force filter in line with the affected TV power cord.

NOMINATIONS FOR AARA/LEO I. MEYERSON, W0GFQ, AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN AMATEUR RADIO OPEN

Nominations are now being accepted for the AARA, 2006, Leo I. Meyerson, W0GFQ, Award for Excellence in Amateur Radio. Send your nominations and supporting materials to the Awards Committee, AARA, the American Amateur Radio Association, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918, USA.

Leo Meyerson is a true radio pioneer. His World Radio Laboratories developed one of the first single side band rigs, and their Galaxy radios were the first to use transistors hybrid with tubes. Leo flew around the world on a SAC aircraft with Arthur Collins with his 500 Watt Globe King AM transmitter to test AM compared with Art's KWS-1 1000 Watt SSB transmitter. SSB proved itself, and the race was on. Leo developed new methods for manufacturing crystals during World War II which were adopted by all the crystal manufacturers and earning him the Army "E" Award. Leo gave away part of his company which then became Hy-Gain Electronics.

Maybe it should go to Jim/N2EY for recognizing on Dec 10 that the FCC does not license amateur radio.

30. Radio receives, won't transmit - why?

Hi,
I have a Uniden PRO510XL hooked to a Firestik II FS 3ft (maybe it's 4ft, I don't remember), which is hood mounted on a S-10 P/U. SWR reading is less than 2 (I can re-measure and get exact #s if wanted). I have clear reception (based on listening on the highway, I assume a few miles), but I have no transmit capability. To confirm, I went over to a friends who has a CB in his car and we tried talking to each other with our vehicles a few feet apart. If we turned down the squelch on his radio so there was noise and then keyed my mic and spoke, his radio went silent but no voice went through. I tried swapping mics with him (since I could receive him no problem), with the same result. Can someone provide some guidedance on troubleshooting some more? I know this radio worked in the past, but it was with a different antenna setup. Since the SWR is okay, does that imply the the antenna setup and the radio transmit is okay and the problem is with the mic -> transmit?

When you transmitted and your friend's radio went silent, you were indeed transmitting, only there was no modulation of the signal. You were transmitting a pure carrier, and that is why his radio went silent. (power was going out, but no voice was imposed on it).

Something in the audio path from microphone to the transmit section is not working. Once upon a time, many years ago, I had a radio that had a PA switch, which allowed putting a speaker on the car and using it for public address. Unfortunately, it also transmitted a carrier whenever using it as a PA, but hardly anyone noticed because it was at so low a level. Perhaps if your radio has a similar function, that is your problem.

If not, you probably need someone to look at the audio chain through to the transmit section. As many relatively inexpensive rigs use the same audio chain for transmit and receive, it's possible that the problem is either in switching or the microphone preamp circuit....

Good Luck!

Instead of directing your inquiry to myself regarding your anger and Mine did the same thing, it worked great - then one day out of the blue, it stopped working. It's a cheap radio, not worth the cost/time of repair. I havn't bought a Uniden radio since. If you buy another uniden, don't get anything less than 68 or you'll be sorry.

Unident radios are great. Those are just the bottom end. I have a Grant LT.
Incredible receiver for a CB.

That ancient Galaxy? That was actually for a ham friend. I was acting like it was for me, because I would have purchased it for him. He didn't have internet access or ebay account, or something like that. He ended up getting Ameritron AL-80A. Seems this is a good amp. But I know little about HF ham amps. So I inquired about it.

Well, mine is the same as the Grant XL/Cobra148 Phillippine version. So far so good. Great receive. Mind you, mine was new and not hacked. The only thing I have done to it was unluck the clarifier. No other mods.

Don't know anything about it. The reason I had inquired about that Galaxy, was because the solid state amps were in the neighborhood of $1,000-3,000. So when I inquired about the Galaxy, it was about $200. It took off from there. Luckily, many hams came posted to stay away from that amp. They said there were cheaper alternatives that were better.

I think that Ameriton was a single tube radio. Highly recommended by hams.

As far as the Dentron, I use this site on eham:

http://www.eham.net/reviews/detail/1609

There are Hams indivdual reviews, and I find very useful.

Yea that's a good review sight I've read up on a few things on there over the years. I'm not in the market, still have the 30 L1 that I hardly use much anymore. I also have a kenrich 515 that I think is a similar configuration to that galaxy you were speaking of. It's been mothballed for years along with the browning mark IV, it has the veneer on it to resemble the browning.

Yeah, alot of the hams really pushed me away from that Galaxy amp. And it was a Ham amp, since it covered 10-80.

Wonder how many guys are still servicing those radios? I know the IV has a

That is why I posted that site. Seems the bad rep comes from a recall that many radios were never sent in for. The only thing was they didn't list the recall problem.

They will open it, half read it and file it. That will be it unless they get more from other individuals unless you were reported by one of the emergency services or other professional radio services. They will take 1 complaint from an individual person and file it. That will be all.

I'm running a Taiwan made 148. I've done my own mods to it over the years.
clarifier, channels, tuning. And just to piss Dogie off, I'll mention it has an echo board from an old connex. It's ugly, faceplate is worn and some of the LEDs are dead on the channel selector. I still get good reports on it.

I had a friend that got a warning letter. It took about 4 months of complaints from the same person. We put a low pass filter in and that ended that.
I had a DX500 splatterbox in my car. It would come over Wal-Mart's intercom, it would reboot hardees computer and set off a number of car alarms. The good thing about being mobile is the FCC won't hunt you down. I grew up though, run better, smaller, cleaner amps, filters, ect...

The fact is, there is no money to be made wasting time investigating CB lawbreakers. Unless you have a base that's causing the whole neighborhood a problem, the FCC would rather deal with what they deem more worthy of their time, like Janet Jackson showing her tit on TV. LOL

I thought it was a really was a Cobra 146, now I'm not so sure.
Maybe the front is different, but the insides look like the scrapped

I donï¿½t know about the 2-200MHz meter but the 25-1000MHz version is not in the same league as a Bird 43. I have owned 3 of the 25-1000MHz versions and two of them had an intermittent OFF-FWD-REV switch. From about 100MHz up the meter is direct reading but below 100MHz you have to use a % chart to figure out the exact power, which is very cumbersome. A Bird has a well made silver plated 50ohm line section and the Telewave has an unplated aluminum line section. The Telewave connectors are much lower quality than Bird. The Telewave also has the lower portion of the meter designated off limits because the accuracy is way out of spec unless you use the upper areas of the meter scale. Used Telewave meters usually go in the $200 to $350 range.

We did a good job last year. We ratted out eBay auctions in record numbers, although they only removed two amps and one of them was mine. We have managed to anger the keyklowns with every post, of course we pissed off a lot of hams in the process. We will just have to view this as collateral damage. We are also hitting them in the wallet. I still have my section 8 slum, and I got a raise in my foodstamps. That should make the keyklowns angry, of course we pissed off a lot of hams in the process. We will just have to view this as collateral damage also. Remember our plan of attack, talk about Petro toilets and accuses them of what we do in them. And remember that it's tax time. Bring a can of Crisco and get 20% off of Kathy's services. If she makes enough money, the goal is to get the antennae above the roofline this year.

Mike,
I agree that meters with a "correction factor" are a pain in the ass.

I'm not quite sure what the significance of your comment about the silver plating. Why would not having the plating on the Telewave cause any problems?

Also... it's my opinion that the section on the Telewave meter that shows that the user needs to change scales (to get to a higher meter movement) is good. I have serious doubts that any of the meters (Bird or Coaxial Dynamics) have good accuracy very low on any scale.

As for your intermittent fwd-rev switches... not sure if you bought these meters new or they were heavily used when you experienced this problem. In any event... the switch is probably not a very costly item... and not too hard to replace.

The main reasons for my interest in this meter is:
Don't require DC-1GHz coverage.
Don't like goofing around and keeping track of all those slugs.

Thanks for your input!

Radio scofflaws have always been with us - in every radio service. But a new breed of "outlaw" CBer came along recently: folks with no respect for any one or any law. Folks who think they have a "right" to operate illegal CB and not be criticized for it. These "anything goes" people took over the CB band from the fine folks who were there for decades, and in many cases forced them off the air.

The Aaron Voobner Organization (named for its founder, Aaron H.
Voobner)
is an activist group designed to respond to the supporters of illegal CB, many of whom continually "flame" the rec.radio.cb newsgroup and otherwise attempt to intimidate proponents of legal CB operation. There is nothing responsible about operating illegally. Illegal CB operation is done irrespective of FCC Part 95 and it's intended purpose.

Loudmouthed, irresponsible individuals who promote illegal CB operation deserve little, if any respect from legal CBers. They give legal CBers

a
bad name in the eyes of the public.

NOTE: The rights of individuals to express opinions in favor of breaking
FCC Law is protected under the Constitution, as are the rights of those who express opinions in opposition to them.

The Voobner Organization maintains a formidable array of resources by sharing a common screen name (avoobner2003@yahoo.com) utilized by a staff of concerned individuals to post opinions supporting legal CB. We also express our opinions to legislators, auction sites, equipment manufacturers, amateur radio organizations, law enforcement agencies

and public officials.

It is hoped that continued criticism of and opposition to illegal CB practices (such as "keydowns", CB amps, etc.) offends the self-proclaimed illegals to the degree that most of them will eventually get tired of the newsgroup and go away. That will open up rec.radio.cb for discussing the topic it was intended for: CB radio.

This is the Real AKC, not a bunch of gay or homesexual posts, which is why Doug (N8...) is no longer a member.

I-VAN..........International Amateur Radio Network
low Cost Amateur Radio Emergency Communications Van

The International Amateur Radio Network Peace Corps Foundation is a 501(c)(3) non profit tax exempt public service organization organized by the American Amateur Radio Association, AARA. For help in financing your new I-VAN, contact us at 207 495 2215 today or write to IARN, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918.

You and a friend, or you and your local radio club or church, or just you, can purchase a small and low cost second hand van. Build a double decker rack to sleep two and a small radio table for an HF SSB transceiver (minimum) and AMTOR (preferred) setup. A small porta-potty (available at Wal-Mart in the sporting goods section) and a small portable 110 volt AC/12 volt DC generator plus one or more storage batteries and your I-VAN is almost ready. Add a DC cooler for food, water, etc., sleeping bags, and some cooking items, etc. and you are now fully ready for emergency deployment. Remember spare gas and oil for the generator. You are a ham! Use your imagination and ingenuity.

Head toward a hurricane/disaster zone. At some point you will meet cars heading out as they evacuate. Many will have cel phones and many of those will be non functional or overloaded because of the very real communications emergency that you are there to assist with. Now you park in some public place and solicit OUTGOING TRAFFIC from anybody who is in need.

The messages are best sent out on 20 meters during a communications emergency, or back to IARN headquarters or to your home base by AMTOR (preferred), SSB voice, or even CW for handling by ordinary hard line telephones.

During non emergency times, set up in a public place and offer to send Valentine, Christmas, or whatever messages the same way. This is great public exposure and good PR for amateur radio.

If you affiliate with IARN through a free International Amateur Radio Club Charter, you can use IARN's tax exempt status to get local merchants to donate, tax deductible, to finance the purchase of your low cost I-VAN (with their logos on the side). This is a very simple project; keep it that way!

Call IARN today for more information about IARN's ongoing I-VAN program at 207 495 2215.

73 and GL de K1MAN

K1MAN is legal. IARN is legal. AARA is legal and your modern alternative to the outdated ARRL. Join AARA now and be a part of the glory of ham radio. Apply at www.k1man.com for a true ham radio future.

Its mainly to annoy some of the A Class Amateurs who always go on about Morse as the one true vocation in Amateur and for those who say Morse has NO written form. I started by doing CK radio to see if anyone spotted it but through all the arrogance in uk.radio.amateur only 2 people spotted it and quietly mentioned it. It just went over the heads of the rest.
I guess the apathy from some Full Licence Amateurs toward M3/CB'ers was accurately depicted by the M0TIT website.
Anyone interested its at http://www.geocities.com/amateurm3 and its more interesting than K1MANs site... unless, of course you are one of those Full licence holders in question and wont understand the sarcasm involved :o)
To all genuine decent Amateurs out there, keep up the good fight and if you are M3/Intermediate or B class you are by no means insignificant...

HNY to all,
Graham

Loudmouthed, irresponsible individuals who promote illegal CB operation deserve little, if any respect from legal CBers. They give legal CBers a bad name in the eyes of the public.
NOTE: The rights of individuals to express opinions in favor of breaking
FCC Law is protected under the Constitution, as are the rights of those who express opinions in opposition to them.
The Voobner Organization maintains a formidable array of resources by sharing a common screen name (avoobner2003@yahoo.com) utilized by a staff of concerned individuals to post opinions supporting legal CB. We also express our opinions to legislators, auction sites, equipment manufacturers, amateur radio organizations, law enforcement agencies and public officials.
It is hoped that continued criticism of and opposition to illegal CB practices (such as "keydowns", CB amps, etc.) offends the self-proclaimed illegals to the degree that most of them will eventually get tired of the newsgroup and go away. That will open up rec.radio.cb for discussing the topic it was intended for: CB radio.

This is the Real AKC, not a bunch of gay or homesexual posts, which is
why Doug (N8...) is no longer a member.

Their inventory is pretty picked over, most of the great deals have been snatched up but they still have some stuff. Snagged one of their last great virgin radios not too long ago via a fellow freebander up in northern California. I heard their customer list went to another dealer.

Me too! This place absolutely stinks but I still peek in every so

Hello Jim,

The A99 should have a good DC ground reference. It's sounding like the internal parts were fried. The only time I have seen this is with high power being fed into the A99. Go through the system. Check your coax and connections. You may have a short in one of them. Disconnect the coax from the antenna. use an ohm meter to measure from center to shield of connector. This must read infnity. measure from center to center and then shield to shield. In both cases it should be less than 1.5 ohms. When you connect the coax back onto the antenna, you should have around 2-3 ohms through the antenna.
I hope this helps....

There are still illegal CB amps being sold on eBay. If you were to buy one and use one, you would be in violation of FCC rules as well as being an inconsiderate slob to your CB neighbors. Here are examples of two such amps reported and slated to be pulled off the auction block later today. (Item #'s witheld to avoid direct bids).

And how come there are so many HAMS acting like rules don't matter? I was thoroughly disappointed when I saw one post where a ham advised a CBer that an illegal 250 watt amp would be better for him than an illegal 75 watt amp. It's very sad.

Yes, this anti-keyclown is more like the anti-christ. And you're right about the good heated debates... you won't find that here anymore because they don't talk about radio much. The group seems to think that calling people everything under the sun... with a few threats thrown in for good measure is the topic here. I guess since they don't know anything about radio much... it's the only thing that'll put them up on the board... LOL

I bailed out of regular group reading after that amplifier legal begal nut was doing his thing for so long. Did anyone ever find out his real name..? See how effective he was..? Christmas I can't even remember his fake web name anymore.

I see Jay on the web once in a while... and say hi when I have time. Bill E is still whacked in the head and full of technical bs. I doubt he is the real author of much if any material posted on his web page.

Frank was here for a long time and has pissed off enough people that someone looked up his checkered past and posted much of the military side here on the group. Last post I read found him with crow sandwich and foot in mouth doing a back pedal at full speed.

The Keyclown AH's are still around... more than one using the label.

The ball game remains the same although the field changes players every so often.

Just like society. Every group in society, whether race, religion, occupation, sports, etc, has it's bad apples. Nothing you can do. Hell, one of the AKCs here that is a loud opponent of using more than 4 whats, has a criminal record for jamming repeaters and not paying child support. But he'll kill anyone using more than 4 watts.

Is that CW shorthand? I'm looking forward to upgrade when CW goes bye-bye.
My 2950 beacons. It wants to be used on 10 meters! You're too close for F-layer skip. Good luck on sporadic E skip. I've never F skipped closer then 300 miles. Anything closer is E-skip.

We've kicked the Brazilians from BALT (node 86553). I've been parking my echolink there and lurking. If you drop in later and shout, I might be back. I've got to go drop off an unfudged PC to a customer shortly after 9 tonight. Don't use Limewire or WinMX. These programs are pipelines for virii and spyware straight into your PC. The only fix is to remove the HD, plug it into another machine, scan to remove the crap, then backup the data, then DBAN the drive and reload the OS from scratch. It's now done. At 9, the radio program will be done, I can stop the recording and torrent it later.

Got some good groundwave going on! Some Tuesday nights I can hear PA and VA. I've even talked into DE from the mobile. 2x455's talk!

Other nights, I've got buzzing and static. I've noticed that I hear a certain atmospheric noise before the skip starts. I'm assuming that 10 meter propagation will be very similar to what I've experienced on 11 meters. If so, I'll be killer in 10 meter contests. Hell, I've got 27 years to go on.

It's neat that some nights 11 meters carries real well, other nights
2 meters goes real far and I've even had both bands hot one night.
I was a DXing fool! Try to say 104 on one radio and KB3xxx on the other!

Yea the band is really up and down lately here too and I find ground wave more fun than dx, so this is more fun for me than when the band is wide open...you know what I'm talkin' bout Willis. I like the silent hiss and trying to dig a station out of the silence, it's more a test of your gear

Hello Carl:

Is not a problem. Life is GREAT!

I am still here and what not, and doing very well.

That last tube you sent me was factory fresh, good gain and output power.

I have been working my normal job with heavy machinery and the antennas, and working with some local miners (these guys are a riot to work with) keeping there equipment running for them. We have a rf amp that uses a pair of 3CX3000A7 Tubes for a Spectromoter. It analyzes metal and such. Enough said! Yeah that ought to be fired up one day on the local channel.

Gee whiz Carl, that handle 2x4 really brings back memories, from days of old. "Getty Up n Go" a old Country & Western Singer, use to have a stacked set of Moonraker 4 Beam Antennas. He use to call em Two By Four now Getty Up n Go..... Hehehehee. That was feed with a Johnson Viking Valiant, driving a the Johnson 1 kW Amp with a pair of 4-400Z Tubes. Getty Up n Go was located in Long Beach California, and could easily be heard in the San Fernando Valley. After one of our Channel 15 CB Breaks, Getty Up n Go would be all tanked up, and then sing and Yodel over his big base station. Not a bad singer at all. Had a audio input for his Gartar also so the audio quality was broadcast quality.

Getty Up n Go even took song requests from Truckers running down Grapevine Hill, from Bakersfield running into the San Fernando Valley. Man what great coverage.

Hope all is well with you Carl and your family.

Jay in the Great Mojave Desert, ...just down the road ah ways from the fillin station.

Hello Stevo:

"Fairly Impressive"

I held back the best for last!

I also Have a 1976 Ford F250 4x4 Hi-Boy, it came from the factory stock with a little lift to the body. So it does sit up higher than normal people trucks. It is a little difficult to get in and out of.

But really pays for itself when on a date with a short dress, oh yeah!

The Truck has a 96 inch (Modified) Francis Amazer Fiberglass whip antenna, mounted on the cab. Which a fairly large piece of aluminum sheet metal reinforces. With well over thousands and thousands of miles on this buety, it does show it age. But with a 400 HP Big Block you don't mind the gas prices, its a work or art to drive!

I have been told when the Red Neck Mobile comes into a 4 way stop, most normal people will gladly allow the Big Green Monster to go before them, even if it aint my turn. Somthing about "This Red Neck Truck Ain't got no insurance or sense"

The Yaesu kicks a 8 pill amp, powered by a 150 amp alternator, that will slip the belt and take most cars steroes out within short distance. And put the neddle on the peg for the 1 KW range.

Would be nice tho, in the cold rainy desert weather, especially in the early morning if the drivers side had a window!

Its a good feeling tho

Maybe you are right about that but I am talking about further back than 2 years. More like they heyday of this group was probably 1994 to 1998 or so... It got pretty over run with the anti homo guy after that. Painkiller hasnt been on this group since perhaps the 90's and I also miss Concrete man as well. Shadow, Toll Free, Eitner so many, that was the good ole days when we had good discussions and you could learn and teach stuff. Also alot of experimenting going on as well. Guys would meet at the cb breaks and not to threaten to kick anyones ass just to meet and greet and have fun.

You have the story backwards, Skippy. I voluntarily disclosed my "checkered past" while in the process of exposing Steve Robeson as a USMC imposter. I know you don't care much for facts, but they can be found in the RRAP archives.

I will modify my Part 15 equipment to satisfy my needs.

I will use my amplifier anytime I need to be heard above the noise on 11 meters.

I will continue to use my VHF ham radio on the MURS band.

I will continue to use my 2950. It has a Sadelta ME-3 on it.
It sounds good real good on that radio when I don't accidentally turn the echo knob.

I won't catch you on the bands because I won't hear your mudduck non-existance.

"Petro toilet"? WTF is a "Petro toilet"? In the field we would use small drums half filled with water and a little kerosene on top to LMAO!!!! Correct!! I know Bill pretty well. Am I friend? You bet. best friend? nope, but still known and see him regularly for over 9 years now.

I was over at his house and saw him before Christmas and the reasons are of a personal nature on why he's closing down. Is he sad about it? You bet!
Is he any different person? Nope, still the really nice, good natured guy.
Will he be doing something like this in the future? time will tell.
Bill is just a plain, out right, good natured, down to earth type of guy that's more than willing to go that extra mile to help you, even if you are note someone he doesn't know very well.

I'm not out to flame you, but I just took a look at your website. You claim your amp with 2 2SC2879s will put out 387 watts PEP. Yet Toshiba's data sheet states that this transistor is only rated at 100 watts PEP each. Even Texas Star, who over rates their amps is only claiming 350 watts for a comparable device which has more features and is $90.00 less. Not to mention, yours looks like it was made in your garage. Your web site even has conflicting data. You claim 60% efficiency in your specs, yet your RF amp basics link states class AB to be 45%efficient.

K1MAN EDITORIAL - ED060106A - AN EDICT TO ALL WHO OPPOSE
K1MAN/IARN/AARA

>From your one true leader at www.K1MAN.com

AARA, IARN, and K1MAN 2006 AGENDA

1. Get ND8V off the air.

2. Get a court decision on scheduled K1MAN and W1AW amateur information bulletins.

3. Get Riley Hollingsworth out of the FCC and over to ARRL (as a W1AW paid control operator) where he really belongs.)

4. Get ARRL criminally prosecuted for deleting the Goldwater Law from their FCC Rule Book in 1990.

5. Ignore K3VR (poor little Brian).

Well it's 2006 and we have a busy slate this year here at AARA and IARN
Headquarters. Let's talk about this agenda in more detail:

1. Get ND8V off the air.

We hoped that ND8V would reform in 2005 but, as Dan says, you can't fix stupid! Mike thinks that the Goldewater Law (making intentional radio interference a felony - 2 years in federal prison and/or $10,000 file PER OCCURRENCE) has been repealed. How do you spell moron? Like this: M O R O N! Hey Mike, Jack Gerritson was just convicted under the Goldwater Law and faces 15 years in jail! There are enough Felony Complaint Affidavits on file with the Justice Department (NOT THE FCC!!!!!) against ND8V to put him in Leavenworth for the balance of his life (Mike is age 50).

Now we are going to promote as many FCAs against ND8V as posible. Our goal is 500 by December 31, 2006. To get a blank FCA form, send an SASE to K1MAN, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918. When you hear ND8V intentionally interfering with another station as he does daily, fill out the official one page FCA form, have it notarized, and send it to: Justice Department, Washington, D.C. Fat Mikey is going down, just like Garretson! Isn't it great to live in America?

2. Get a court decision on scheduled K1MAN and W1AW amateur information bulletins.

As WB2OTK and K4NBC have observed, "If W1AW can schedule amateur information bulletins, K1MAN can as well." As Thomas Jefferson would have agreed, "This is self evident." But apparently not the "brain dead" FCC. Actually, not the whole FCC, just Riley Hollingsworth, who was sick on the day ther taught law at law school.

3. Get Riley Hollingsworth out of the FCC and over to ARRL (as a W1AW paid control operator) where he really belongs.

Actually, Hollingsworth will also be doing some serious jail time since he has encouraged numerous radio amateurs to "talk over" the K1MAN Bulletin Service, a clear criminal violation of the Goldwater Law.

4. Get ARRL criminally prosecuted for deleting the Goldwater Law from their FCC Rule Book in 1990.

This is a no brainer. The effect of deleting the Goldwater Law from the ARRL FCC Rule book has been to encourage hams to "talk over" the K1MAN bulletins; that's why such is a felony.

CPI made some really good stuff. I was as service station for them for a time.... way back. Most of the few problems I found were customer caused.

The Telewave meters are fine for relative radio service readings like reflected power and relative forward power. The intermittent switch can be replaced or treated with Caig Labs DeOxit to help that problem.

It's hard to make a non linear, broad band calibrated meter within 5% for the price they bring it home (sell it). .

If you stayed under 500 MHz and didn't want to soak up the high cost of a Bird and all its slugs, the meter's a good deal and a real work horse.

It's a tool and should be used as such once you get to know how well it operates. I don't use my Bird Meters for calibrated power measurements anyway. They're not a rocket science device... two same type slugs always seem to read a little different.

95% of the time you're looking a relative values just related to forward and reflected power.

This part of his punishment seems most fitting...

1) Seek and maintain gainful employment; 2) Defendant to seek mental health counseling; 3) Execute wage withholding

I can't believe some idiots gave us a pick to dump his ass. I would have done it for nothing.

Get ready for:

1. No time outs before the start of the fourth quarter

2. Runnning plays up the middle, on 3rd and 12

3. 2 yard pass plays when you have a 3rd and 3

To give you an idea of his clock management skills, the Jets hired someone to manage the clock, and that was his only job. All because Edwards had no clue on game management.

How the fuck does this happen in the NFL? SOmetimes I see a team that is down, needing 2 possessions with about 3 minutes left, fucking walk to the line of scrimmage, taking 30 seconds to run a play. Herm was legendary for this.

I've been capturing COPS and Wildest Police Videos with a TV capture card in my PC. I can then edit out commercials and make DVD's. I'm going to take the good parts out of the last 10 hours of COPS I've saved and make one real exciting DVD out of them. Talk about filling a 160GB hard drive! 3.76GB for an hour of video. If I wasn't so cheap and bought DL disks, I wouldn't have to use DVDShrink after TMPGEnc.

All good questions...
The Toshiba datasheet "characterizes" that device at 100W PEP. That's a conservative level, and it doesn't mean the output is limited to that figure. My ratings are given at the 1dB compression point. That point is kind of a standard in RF amplifier circles as a point where linearity degrades to an unacceptable level. The link states that the "approximate efficiency" of an AB biasing scheme amplifier is 45%. That number certainly has some latitude based on the level of bias and is highly dependent on the quality of impedance matching. The 45% is based on typical products available to you out there. As for Texas Star... they have a pretty good product in the amp arena. Since they mass produce, they can certainly offer their product at a lower price. However, the quality of their components and overall workmanship is often not optimum. The SkyWave design has some features that others don't offer. These may not be obvious but for those operators who are concerned about low harmonic content and high reliability... these features sure help. Agreed, the SkyWave is not for everyone... and hasn't been designed as such. I'm glad to see that you have taken interest in this topic. Hope that helps.

It certainly helps. I disagree with Texas Star having a good product. I have owned several of them over the years and I am not impressed. I ordered a 667V and there were parts not even soldered to the board.

I for one am glad he's coming to KC. We need a coach that has some defensive knowledge. Hell our offense runs itself. Good riddance Dick Vermiel, I'm

I hate to break the bad news, but check out the games against the Raiders under Herm, especially the playoffs games. His defense was putrid. A 40 year old Jerry Rice had over 200 yds receiving in one game. His defenses in NY, were soft.

Check the defense stats under Vermiels term as head coach for the Chiefs. We have been basement dwellers while having one of the best offenses in the NFL. We put the points on the board and our defense gives them back. Herm's first move should be to get rid of Gunther Cunningham.

Better yet, did you see the Chiefs-Jets in this years opener? Didn't they score

Hello Stevo:

Ok I looked around, and here is the web site for the Maco Comet Antenna.

http://www.majestic-comm.com/assembly/index.htm

No sorry I don't know to much about them. They are a 3 element cross bean with a quad reflector. But they are light weight, and you could use a light weight rotor.

But using a over rated rotor is the way to go. I suggest using a Hy-Gain Ham IV Rotor, mounted inside the tower and a thrust bearing used at the top of the tower. This will allow the full square foot rating of the rotor to be used. If the rotor is mounted on the mast, you have to cut the square foot handling rating in half.

And with a over rated rotor, this will allow you to upgrade to a larger beam antenna it ya feel the need for speed on the Maul!

Hy-Gain Ham IV Rotor is at:
http://www.hy-gain.com/products.php?prodid=HAM-IV

Its always better and cheaper in the long run to have the good stuff.

LOL... like I said... texas Star and others have their quality issues.
I noticed that you commented that my amps looked like they were built

Hey, before you knock the looks of my amps... take a look at some of the others out there... inside and out. I consider most of these amps nothing more than prototypes. You be the judge.

Hi, i have aquired an old Dick Smith Radio Direction Finder unit but there is no ASU (Antenna Switching Unit) or antennas with it. I would like to know if someone might have information on how to build the antennas and ASU and any more information on the kit itself.

Thanks

Gary

Thanks Jay.

It's for a friend of mine and he already has some sort of rotor he wants to try instead of buying another one. I'll pass this info on to him. He has limited space so that antennas small size caught his attention.

You should start making a new and improved PDLII clone! :-)

they never came with antennas that i know of, you had to build them yourself. the plans for the asu including circuit board and parts list are in the manual, they are simple things that you should be able to find at any radio parts store... assuming you can find one of those today.

Like I said, our offense pretty much runs itself. But look at KC's losses, offense puts up the numbers and the defense gives em back. Our secondaries give WR's 4 to 5 step leads, jump off the line and are ineffective in the red zone.

Hello Stevo:

YES! I have a 2 element Quad Antenna in the works.

I have been getting a lot of requests for a short boom light weight beam antenna. But they want to run big power thru them, so that makes the matching system that harder to make.

Still working the matching system, trying be able to get it to a 1 to 1 SWR, with a easy adjustement.

It will uses all the bullet proof hardware and such, and take 10KW.

They did come with the needed switching diodes which were a weak point in the design and there was later a suggested replacement.

I've got one - defective - I think I popped the switching diodes by accidentally transmitting thru it. I know I've got the dox 'somewhere' - just gotta dig 'em out.

From memory, the four pin cable from the main unit sends a rotating DC bias to each of the switching diodes in the box. There's a diode at the antenna base too, by design. I haven't opened the box yet, but the diode at the antenna base is ITT BA 282 Cathode (bar) to coax shield.

If/when I find the dox, I'll get back to you. Let me know how you progress.

Maybe they are PIN diodes that turn on (conduct) when forward biased?

They sure seem to be :
http://members.aol.com/homingin/DSEfix.html
The ones in the box switch one of the antennas at a time to the RDF, and the ones at the base of the antennas groung the out-of-use antennas.

The antennas are usually 1/2 wave dipoles at whatever frequency the unit will be used. Copperweld or wire hangers make decent antennas, although I prefer stainless control wire of the type used on model planes.

Seems logical to me. And it's not like i'm posting some dribble, bs, flame.

Thanks Al, but i'm not too good at working out stuff like that, if it's all laid out in kit form i'm ok. and i thought that seeing these things are reasonably critical (antenna units) that if i tried another design i may be waisting my time and parts on something that isn't suited. They are not that good. A friend broke a tip already. They have a double, very fragile tip and you have to bridge the two with metal to make the connection.

Thanks for clarifying all that, Bill. As far as the customer list goes, I was told it went to that other company in northern California that keeps changing names by a frequent customer of that company. Good to know it isn't so. Good luck in your future endeavors, whatever they may be.

Ok here is the deal. At my brother house we have installed a base set up. We have a mobile radio hooked up to an antron 99. The antron is in the attic on the 3rd floor of the house mounted in a 22ft tall section of the attic. The SWR is below 1.5 on all channels. everything is stock. only one TV in the house is getting audio only interference nothing else is getting any interference. This is clear as day when ever you TX.

This happens with the TV muted or unmuted for that matter and even with the coax unplugged from the back of the TV.

I just bought a B&W TVI filter off ebay in hopes that it might help. Do you think it will? What else can we do? Please help...

thanks

Ham is out, CB is in. Breaker 1-9, what's your 20? We got us a smoky bear

Jim,

Make sure you are using Belden 9913, or LMR400 coax, or some other 100% shieled coax,

do you think getting the antenna outside and further away from the TV would help. the base of the antron is really only like 10 feet from the TV if you were to trave straight up. the mobile in my car does not effect it.

I have heard that the A-99 is bad for TVI. I think it's too close. Try what Jim said. Then is that don't work, try using a horizontal dipole at the very top of the attic.. Get is as far away as possibly.

I am trying to build a balun. I chose the one on this web site as I like the design http://www.hamuniverse.com/balun.html
It states that, and I quote
"The number of turns is not critical because the inductance depends more on the length of the wire (coax) than on the number of turns, which will vary depending on the diameter of the plastic pipe that is used."
But it does not give the formula. It just says 18 to 21 feet.
I plan to use 4 inch pvc and I want to cover as much of the upper 11 meters as I can. Am I better off at 18 or 21 feet?

I built one like the one on the right. I used my Hustler 5BTV manual, and it said to use a 10 turn 6 inch form. That was a bitch to find a 6 in form. SO I found the website above, and used the left as a model. The 4" PVC does not quite give you 6 inches in form. But as the website states, if you butt to couplers together, that will give you a 6 inch form. The couplers are 5 inches at the outside edges. By the time the cable is wrapped around it, it's about 6 inches. I figured that was as close as I could get. As the website mentioned, I used the 4" PVC pipe as a joint to butt the couplers together, to make them hold better. So, I don't know if I used 18-21 feet, but I think I am pretty damn close.

Hello, Jim

There is enough rf getting into that unshielded television for the audio section to detect and amplify it. Since removing the coax from the tv does not change the problem, no filter on the transmitter is going to help. Your SWR won't affect it.

If you have external speakers, I suspect that rf is being picked up by the speaker leads and conducted back to the television where the audio section is getting enough rf to detect and amplify it.

You might try a choke on the speaker leads near the television and see if that helps. Before you try that, try disconnecting the external speakers (if, indeed, you have them) and see if you get any interference running only on the internal speaker (I'll bet you don't). If you don't, you'll know that the interference is being picked up by the speaker leads. Should that be the problem, see if you can substantially shorten the speaker leads as they will become much less efficient at picking up rf.

Good luck; with the cheap stuff being made, you may need it.

I can get 6" pvc. Start with 21 and work my way down till we get the desired

You may have one of those sets that was built with absolutely

The amount of inductance is determined by the number of coils and how closely spaced together they are. There is not going to be much difference in three feet. Maybe wrapping the coil with aluminum foil would help to increase the coupling on the coil to increase the inductance.

Inductors are the exact electrical opposite of capacitors.

Capacitors block DC and pass AC. They have decreasing reactance to higher frequencies. Current leads the voltage by 90 degrees.

Inductors block AC and pass DC. They have increasing reactance to higher frequencies. Current lags the voltage by 90 degrees.

The inductance in the coil only affects the outside of the shield, the exact place you don't want current flowing. It won't affect the signals inside the coax.

This recipe states that the amount of coils is unimportant and to wrap them as close as possible without over lapping. This balun relies on the length which has a 3 foot margin.

I built one and it does a great job of keeping feedline currents down, no more RF in the shack. Iwas having problems regardless of grounding. Here's

And the lemmings say the liberals are fucking up the country. Perhaps, but nowhere near that of the radical right responsible for this poor construct. In any event, I still believe in one's right to voice/write one's opinions to the nth degree. Slander and libel laws should be enforced and no new poorly designed laws would be introduced.

Uh Oh that fat kid could really get in trouble now for just being an asshole. Because the only thing he was any good for is annoying other people via the internet.
He never stopped any amp selling or buying in real life.

Funny. He had the opposite effect, even. He crossed posted to so many groups on so many different occasions, he drew attention to the group as a place to get linears and all kinds of gear for whatever one wants. I know Oxendine's crossposting to the trucker groups resulted in beau ceau sales of gear.

I'll take your word for it. I thought most were just poorly installed and could be better (shielding, grounding, protectors, GFIs). I know that it's very easy for an average station in very close proximity with other homes to come across a neighbor's surround sound or pc speakers.

Depends what you're soldering... for very small low mass jobs... that cool heat soldering iron might be fine. For electronics work... probably not very useful.

My radio room is also an electronics repair area. The test equipment would act erratic at best during transmit, meters would peg, you could see carrier or SSB voice on the scope, etc. The power supply intended for the radio would go into current limit even though there was a lot more on tap (acopian). Before grounding extensively I got a couple RF nips, not cool. I was also having problems with the shop stereo (mainly the unbalanced link between the Phase Linear amp and Onkyo preamp) and speakers in the house attached to cheapo soundcards. I'm not running mondo power either.

I modified the balun design a tad to accommodate the weird Illinois weather and facilitate removal if it did not work as expected. All the stuff was made from scrap I had laying around.

ALL RF problems associated with feedline radiation went away, the test gear sees nothing. The power supply works well when needed (I run battery/solar power) and there is no nipping at all. This even works when lifting grounds as a test.

The problem with the audio equipment is still there, I'm sure it is do to the antenna being lower than optimal and shitty soundcard grounds. All things to be fixed in time. Incidentally the audio computer with pro gear attached has no problems with interference and is closer to the radiator in height and proximity. Good grounding has paid off there, there is no noise problems and there is an assload of power there on that system, both SS and tube.

So a long story short: It did not solve all my problems but made a very noticeable improvement around sensitive equipment. I have noticed NO sacrifice in transmit or receive strength. If you can build one for free or next to nothing I think it's a good idea to try.

Just form 4 turns or so of coax in a coil perhaps a foot or so in diameter. This will form a choke which will kill the current backfeed down the outer side of the coax. You can actually build an endfed dipole out of coax. Feed the hot (center) wire into about 9 feet of wire and form a loop (4 or 5 turns of coax) about 9 feet away from the feed. The outer conductor (shield) of the coax will form the other half of the dipole with the coil (choke) stopping the rf at that point. Simply move the coil (by turning towards or away from the center feed) to adjust your SWR. No rf on the outside of the coax. Presto ;)

Questions, e-mail me at aa2qa@frontiernet.net and I'll see if I can take a digital photo for you. <finger crossed - old digital camera which sometimes has problems with close-ups LOL>

Still using the same batteries it came with. At least a year now. Used it

Sure you have. Absolutley stated that you do NOT drink, never have. Which in and of itself was a lie since in our first go-arounds you admitted to prefering certain beers.

Sure it is. When the "subject" is honesty and you've claimed that you DON'T drink when you quite clearly just stated that you do, it is my "busness"

I am sure it takes quite a lot to make a fat slob like you "that" drunk.

Nothing, as long as you don't beat your "wife" when you're drunk and stay out from behind the wheel of a motor vehicle when you do.

Because you brought it up and commented on it.

I told you to not comment on issues that you don't want discussed.
That is, afterall, what you say you've been wanting.

Sure you do.

Because it's those gaping wide holes in your comments that exist due to your abuse of the language that get's you into these tail-chasing episodes, Markie.

That's a drop in YOUR lap, Markie. You claim that I am censoring stuff when I snip stuff that's more than 3-posts deep. But when YOU do it, the rest of us are supposed to guess what you meant.

The difference here being that you make it a habit of "commenting" on the words you "cut", whereas I do not. If I am going to comment on something, I requote it first.

Sure you have. Within the last few weeks as a matter of fact.

I am 'ying' ing...?!?! What's that?

> BTW you have the right to misunderstand them, as I do wrt your posts

Misunderstanding is not a "right"...It's an error due to poor communication.

In this case, it's your failure to express yourself more effectively within the preferred language of this forum.

Now see what I mean. There's yet ANOTHER "sentence" that is meaningless because YOU put in "...and stop adding that aren't there..." Completely meaningless and it lost you the opprotunity to be accurately understood.

> or do you see more words than i type it looks like it

And there again. Was that a question AND a statement? Sure looks like it. No punctuation and rotten grammar.

I can't "distor" yor "tatements" any worse than you already do.

No I don't.

It's apparent from your "writing".

And if it's not alcohol, it's pills, but one way or the othr you're intoxicated when yo try to "write". You look foolish.

No, I am not. The body metabolizes alcohol at a steady rate based upon several factors, the principal ones being age, bosy weight and tolerance to alcohol.

Wrong.

Nope. Over 90 percent of most domestic violence acts occur when the offender is intoxicated. Most of the battered persons report that the offender is normally "a nice person" when sober.

It's not an accusation. It's an observation.

Hello Dr Death:

Ok good deal I saw the impressive photos that Chad had there.

One thing to consider is that those fiberglass none ground plane antennas use the coax outer shield as the counter poise or other end of the antenna, so current will be seen on the coax. And in some case you will see SWR changes from different lengths of coax, because the coax is actually radiating, acting like a antenna.

I have had customers add in a line coax Balun on these type of antennas. The Balun uses a Toroid Core, with the coax would around it. But the trick here is that the Toroid Core is placed at 1/4 wavelength or about 102 inches down from the antennas connector. This allows the coax to radiate for a 1/4 wavelength, possibility allowing for a low take off angle, then choking off the currents beyond the 1/4 wavelength. Or the coil wound coax Balun can be tried.

My personal experience has been that the coax Baluns didn't have enough choking impedance, allowing the antennas lowest SWR frequency to be much lower that what it really was, because the coax was also radiating and acting like part of the antenna. But this was on a beam antenna, and not a fiberglass type antenna.

Suggest its worth a try, to add a choke Balun at a 1/4 wavelength below the antennas connection.

Considering more than one RRCB "discussion" has wound up in RRAP

As you may have guessed the antenna is an Imax 2000. Which mounts to the mast via a metal base that is directly coupled to the mast/tower. This being said wouldn't the mast become the counterpoise at this point if the coax is not? (The outside of the PL259 is directly coupled to the mounting provisions.)

The balun was made out of spare junk on the premise that I NEEDED a reason to go out to the shop, drink some beer and relax. What a better project, a free one :) I made it removable for obvious reasons and have thought about Jay's points a couple times when they were brought up after construction of said device. This spring I hope to have a new (different) tower and at this time will play with moving the balun from the feed point to right before the ground rod next to the house. This will allow the coax to act as it should and hopefully keep my feedline currents down, wadda ya think?

Before the Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers
State of Maine

In the matter of:

Brian L. Crow, K3VR, Complainant # E05 003

vs.

Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, Respondent

Registered Professional Engineer, By Examination, in Illinois

and

Registered Professional Engineer, by Reciprocity, in Maine

Amateur Radio Call Sign K1MAN

MOTION TO DISMISS

or

REQUEST TO TABLE

or

REQUEST FOR HEARING

and

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS UNDER FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT

Respondent, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, hereby comes through this pleading and makes this sworn affidavit of his own personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

Complainant, Brian L. Crow, has filed a written "Complaint" with the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers against the Respondent, and following board procedures, its Complaince Officer will present the findings of his "investigation," if any, to the Board at its regular public meeting on January 19, 2006 at 9 A.M. Mr. Crow represented to Respondent that he (Crow) has also filed an identical "Complaint" with the Illinois Division of Professional Regulation.

Mr. Crow has also petitioned all State of Maine Representatives and Senators to withdraw their official recognition of Respondent dated 13 March 1991 as well as petitioning Vermont Academy to withdraw Respondent being honored as a Distinguished Alumnus of the Academy on 1 October 1993. Further, Mr. Crow published an "editorial" in a local Maine Newspaper calling for withdrawing the Maine Legislature's recognition of the Respondent and falsely representing that he (Crow) was writing as a resident of Manchester, Maine. "Manchester Newsletter" is the name of an anonymous and scurrilous newsletter about the Respondent and is referred to below with regard to retired CBS newsman, Walter Cronkite, KB2GSB.

The Maine Legislature voted as follows on 13 March 1991:

"Be it known to all that We, the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives join in recognizing Glenn Baxter, of Belgrade Lakes who, as a coordinator and ham radio operator for the International Amateur Radio Network and International Amateur Radio Network Peace Corps, has served humankind through his noble efforts to facilitate international communication for the disaster stricken areas of the world;

And be it ordered that this official expression of sentiment be sent forthwith on behalf of the Legislature and the people of the State of Maine."

Mr. Crow has also filed "Complaints" with the Maine Attorney General, the SEC, the FBI, the Federal Trade Commission, the FCC, etc., etc., ad infinitum.

FACTS

Complainant seeks to revoke the Professional Engineering licenses of Respondent which could naturally lead to either non renewal or revocation of Respondent's commercial and amateur radio FCC licenses where rather vague issues of "character" might play a deciding role in any such FCC action. Complainant offers to the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers evidence of an "FCC Notice of Apparent Liability" against Complainant, a Petition to Deny Renewal of Respondent's FCC amateur radio license (by Keith Lamonica, an attorney admitted to practice before the FCC), and a letter urging the FCC to not renew Respondent's FCC license by former CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite (a backer of ARRL, the American Radio Relay League), whose amateur radio call sign is KB2GSD.

Respondent is Executive Director of AARA, the American Amateur Radio Association, which directly competes with Complainant, Cronkite, and Lamonica backed ARRL, the American Radio Relay League, which is also an amateur radio "trade association." ARRL has a short wave "broadcast(1)" station with call sign W1AW which attempts to compete with Respondent's "broadcast(1)" station with call sign K1MAN. There is considerable professional jealousy between W1AW and K1MAN. Both

"broadcast(1)" stations are barred from commercial interests such as direct on air advertising, transmitting music, etc.

Respondent is also Manager of IARN, the International Amateur Radio Network, which directly competes with ARRL's amateur radio emergency communications organization known as ARES, the Amateur Radio Emergency Service.

Both AARA and IARN are divisions or the IARN Amateur Radio Peace Corps Foundation, Inc., a 501(c)(3) tax exempt Maine corporation.

The Complainant(s), de facto, being Crow, Cronkite, the FCC, and Lamonica would seem to prefer that AARA and K1MAN be eliminated from competing with ARRL and W1AW.

MOTIVATION OF COMPLAINANTS

Brian L. Crow

Mr. Crow represented to Respondent that he is a former NSA operative and has grants from the U.S. Department of Justice as well as the state of Pennsylvania, presumably to look into possible terrorist connections between Respondent and other factions world wide. IARN does, indeed, have operations world wide under the name and style of the Maine foundation and corporation IARN Amateur Radio Peace Corps Foundation, Inc. Respondent denies all of Mr. Crows allegations with regard to anything improper by Respondent or Respondent's many national and international operations, all humanitarian in nature. I am sure thet the NSA is capable of keeping "tabs" on IARN, AARA, K1MAN, and your Respondent.

Mr. Crow has essentially been "stalking" Respondent since 1992, presumably driven by his own jealousy and amusement and also to defraud the Justice Department and the state of Pennsylvania out of grant money coming from public taxes in the wake and huge frenzy following 911. Mr. Crow can be heard daily on amateur radio acting in a juvinile fashion (not illegal) but with no constructive sense of purpose (also not illegal). Mr. Crow sends harassing E-Mail to Respondent daily and appears to create anonymous anti Respondent web sites on a regular and continuing basis. All of Crow's allegations are false and/or greatly misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena him before this Board.

Walter Cronkite, KB2GSB

Mr. Cronkite did a K1MAN station ID for Respondent years ago when his autobiography was about to come out, not then known to Respondent. Mr. Cronkite's ulterior motive was to promote his book by getting free publicity over K1MAN's international short wave programs. The backers of ARRL and W1AW were not too happy about Mr. Cronkite's thus implied support of IARN and amateur "broadcast"(1) station K1MAN. One anonymous radio amateur and ARRL supporter (presumably) even began publishing an anti Respondent newsletter (Manchester Newsletter) with the main and untrue theme being that Respondent was a convicted child molester and/or an "alleged child molester." Respondent met with the FBI regarding this vicious newsletter, published for many years and now defunct after Respondent brought suit against three suspected perpetrators, one being Chuck O'Neil, K1KW, who is part of the Lamonica petition. This newsletter (group) contacted Mr. Cronkite at CBS and threatened to also implicate him (Cronkite) in child molesting allegations. Cronkite then asked Respondent to cease using the ID, and Respondent agreed only if Mr. Cronkite would appear on Respondent's world wide short wave radio program and explain why he made this request. Cronkite declined and threatened to "go public" against Respondent which he subsequently did, his letter supplied to Crow, published all over the internet, and, in turn, supplied to the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers.

Respondent, not wanting to "cave in" to this criminal blackmail, tantamount to terrorism, continues to use the Cronkite ID, since pulling the ID would appear to be a (false) admission of guilt on several fronts. All of Cronkite's allegations are false, and Respondent intends to subpoena Mr. Cronkite before this Board.

Keith Lamonica, Esq., W7DXX

Mr. Lamonica is presumably being paid well by ARRL, Mr. Crow, or Mr. Cronkite, or all three. Perhaps Lamonica is just jealous and is working against Respondent "for free." All of Lamonica's allegations are false and/or misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena him before this Board.

Mr. Lamonica has distorted facts and provided wholly false testimony in his petition, part of the instant "Complaint."

Regarding Rockwell Collins, Respondent legally acquired and used the Collins trade for many years after it was legally abandoned by Rockwell International after they bought out the Collins Radio Company and dropped using the Collins trade mark for the statutory two year abandonment period. Lamonica's version of this issue is false and misleading. The entire Lamonica petition is false and misleading. Respondent intends to subpoena Lamonica to appear before this Board.

FUNDAMENTAL ISSUES REGARDING THE FCC AND RESPONDENT

Respondent began transmitting world wide short wave programs in 1987. An FCC letter ruling in 1989 equated K1MAN programs with W1AW programs, both perfectly legal, of course..

In 1991 the International Amateur Radio Network was sending donated humanitarian supplies from Germany to Iran (in response to a major earthquake killing over 100,000 people and making over 100,000 people homeless) with the stipulation that IARN volunteers (from the Soviet Union and England) would supervise the distribution. The U.S. State Department objected to IARN's stipulations since they prefer to just send the relief supplies, no strings attached. IARN would never again get donated supplies from its valuable private sources if the supplies ever fell into non humanitarian hands (such as the military). The State Department has unlimited sources for their politically motivated relief.

Shortly thereafter, K1MAN received three Notices of Apparent Liability (totaling $3,600) from the FCC for doing exactly what was sanctioned by the FCC the previous year and is done daily by ARRL and W1AW. Respondent tried to take these conflicting FCC actions to court for resolution many times, without success, including a lawsuit in Federal District Court. See the attached Federal District Court ORDER.

Now the FCC has issued another "Notice of Apparent Liability," (the operative word here being "apparent!") this time for $21,000, as well as putting Respondent's amateur radio renewal application in "pending" status. Law permits K1MAN to continue operations until final disposition and all court appeals of the renewal application, of course.

The main issue is that scheduled W1AW and K1MAN short wave programs might cause incidental (not criminal) interference to ongoing communications either on the published frequency intentionally (to cause a conflict - a criminal act on the part of ARRL supporters) or unintentionally. The FCC has ruled that such K1MAN and W1AW programs are not less important than such existing communications. Conflicts must be resovled between the parties on a common sense basis per FCC rules. K1MAN has ALWAYS attempted to resolve any conflicts in good faith, and the other parties (Bermuda Net, Georgia SSB Net, ND8V and company, Polish Net, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, etc.) basically say "Heck no; we will get the FCC to revoke your license instead."

The Commission (Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH) has actually encouraged radio amateurs to cause intrerference with K1MAN programs, such encouragement being a felony under Sections 333 and 501 of the 1934 Communications Act:

Section 333: "No person shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communications or any station licensed or authorized by or under this Act operated by the United States Government."

Section 501: "Any person who willfully and knowingly does or causes or suffers to be done any act, matter or thing, in this Act prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or WHO WILLINGLY OR KNOWINGLY OMITS OR FAILS TO DO ANY ACT MATTER OR THING IN THIS ACT REQUIRED TO BE DONE, OR WILLINGLY OR KNOWINGLY CAUSES OR SUFFERS SUCH OMISSION OR FAILURE, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished for such offense, for which no penalty (other than a forfeiture) is provided by this Act, by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both."

In fact, Respondent first learned of this law in ARRL's 1989 FCC Rule Book. K1MAN began to publicize this criminal statute over the short wave programs, and ARRL then deleted the law from its 1990 and all subsequent FCC Rule Books, this act itself being a felony by ARRL.

FCC and Justice Department officials who have discouraged Respondent from reporting intentional criminal interference to K1MAN transmissions to the Judtice Department are also, themselves, in criminal violation from this federal statute.

Thus, the FCC Notice of Apparent Liability against Respondent is alleging a felony, which carries a two year jail sentence and/or $10,000 fine per occurrence. Similar actions against ARRL would be substantial, since W1AW has been doing the same thing as K1MAN for almost 100 years.

THE FCC

The FCC is probably "in bed" with ARRL (welcome to America!), which they can control, where they cannot "control" respondent since Respondent has no paid advertising or "controllable" commercial interests. The allegations in their recent $21,000 Notice of Apparent Liability are all false and/or misleading, with the same bogus allegations also being made in 1990 and never allowed by the FCC to go to court for resolution.

Respondent's attempts to bring the FCC false allegations before a court have not succeeded. Respondent even brought suit against the FCC in Federal District Court which was dismissed on sovereign immunity grounds. See attached ORDER.

All of the FCC's allegations are false or misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena various officials of the Commission before this Board.

Respondent's amateur radio license renewal is currently "pending" in "legal limbo" while Respondent continues to legally operate station K1MAN until court action is taken but not expected by Respondent. The FCC is apparently watching this Board's actions with regard to the instant Crow complaint.

JURISDICTION

This Board is essentially being asked to litigate an FCC matter and it has no jurisdiction to do so. If the Board revoked Respondent's Professional Engineering License, the FCC could, in turn, revoke Respondent's amateur radio license, (on character qualification grounds) and vice versa, presumably. This whole charade is just a cute ARRL and FCC trick; again, welcome to America! Fortunately, we lave laws and administrative procedures here, unlike so many other less fortunate countries.

Wherefore,

Respondent moves this Board to Dismiss the Complaint.

or

In the alternative, Respondent moves the Board to table the Complaint until final disposition of Respondent's matters before the FCC.

or

In the alternative, Respondent requests a full hearing before this Board.

and

Respondent requests production of all documents and evidence in this matter that this Board may now have that has not already been supplied to the Respondent.

Respondent requests to inspect all documents, notes, minutes, etc. under the Freedom of Information Act regarding all previous matters, complaints, etc. made by Respondent to this Board in the past and specifically regarding fire hazzards and code violations at Ray Bouchard's two radio stations where Respondent was once employed. This employer is mentioned in the Lamonica petition to deny Respondent's FCC amateur radio license, said petition being a part of Mr. Crow's "Complaint."

(1) Broadcast is used in the generic sense here. Strict FCC legal definition of "broadcast" is "radio transmissions intended for reception by the general public," which is illegal under FCC rules and functionally impossible over amateur short wave radio since the public doesn't listen to amateur short wave radio because the subject matter of such transmissions must also be "Of direct interest to radio amateurs" under FCC rules.

LOL... think you've exposed the root problem here. That thing couldn't be anywhere near the power of a regular soldering iron in the 30-50W range.

I like Chad's idea, I have lots of PVC in different sizes. If this doesn't pan out, I will try yours or Jim's idea.

You don't consume beer orally? Please, don't explain. BTW, you need to use

That was the LAST thing I wanted to hear. What a waste of good beer. At

He has recieved lots of awards including one from the state of Main itself. Walter Cronkite promoted K1MAN to before the bad pple got to him. It is a good thing the FCC cant put him off the air until they go to court which they are scared to do. And there are pple who are going to sindicate K1MAN's 20 meter show. N9OGL and Sirius radio are both going to put it on the air.

K1MAN is a great man. Are you on Sirius radio? Has your state priased you in a legistlature resolution? Has Walter Cronkite ever announced on your station? I bet not because you are just average.

K1MAN is a great man and I back him all the way.

Socks (whether puppets or not) don't need counselors. Frequent washing and airing out, but not counseling.

As I have said before TVI is TV INTERFERENCE due to HARMONICS. You need a low pass filter for that or a good tuning. If you are having flat out AM rectification audio problems, it ain't gonna work. RF out is RF out. I had feedline problems in the immediate vicinity of the gear in question. RF rectification problems stayed there, kinda as expected. I even brought a spectrum analyzer in to sort it out. My RF was clean as a whistle. Cleaner than a "stock CB". Regardless of power there is a blanketing area for broadcast applications. Cleaning up the RF audio is a good step too. Audio distortion is allowed to become funky modulation (audio crossover distortion is ugly at an RF level), unlike pro broadcast where clipper limiting is used. Granted "CB" limiters suck but limiting of some sort should be used. I had an old Invonics in front of my now declared POS Galaxy (FCC accepted) Radio. With the limiter "clipped" and it was nice. I DID NOT MODULATE OFVER 100%, but I kept it there :)

Could you elaborate more on the issues you are having? Maybe you have a "working antenna" but the stuff interfered with is working too well as a receive antenna. it can and does happen at all levels of radio, even the best pros. You may be clean, the other stuff may not.

Chad

Hello Chad:

Wow good point here you have made.

Yes I agree with you here, the mast would become the counter poise, if currents are choked at the coax. This is why these none ground plane antennas will still work when a coax Balun is placed right at the antennas connector, a Great point made here.

In the 1980's I had a terrible time installing a Sigma 4 antenna. As the mast was pushed up the SWR changed. So I figured some how the mast and maybe the coax, was apart of the antenna, and dropped the mast down a foot at a time to get a decent SWR. I wish I had a Balun then.

Placing the balun down the coax at a 1/4 wavelength might work well on a fiberglass boat and such.

One of the things while adding such things and testing them, is to keep an eye on the field strength of the antenna. If something is done and the field strength increases or decreases you want to see this.

In some cases antenna ranges will monitor the antennas swr as compared to its field strength.

Seems your frame of effective expression is limited to illiterate

However it in no way diminishes my comments. Your failure to express yourself more effectively in this forum is YOUR problem and is Evidence that your alleged "dysleia" is just that...Alleged.

> but you are quite wrong

Nope. Refer to any medical text on the metabolization of alcohol (ETOH) from the body.

The only thing that can precipitate the alcohol clearance is rapid IV therapy with multiple large-bore IV's, preferably with Normal Saline and/or what we call a "banana bag" IV (Multi-Vit, Magnesium Sulfate 2gm, Thiamine 100mg and folate 1 gm). You literally dilute the alcohol faster, but even that has a ceiling rate to it and is not a viable option in COPD'ers, CHF'ers, and certain other metabolic conditions.

It's more than "tired", Markie. One can watch your posting time increase in errors in those windows mean you're either losing your

Id' say, judging by that field notice that Mr. Baxter was definitely in the wrong (especially where the 75 minute infomercial about 'baxter and associates' was concerned).

I really hate to say this, but K1MAN appears (on the face of the facts) to have violated a number of the rules and is now subject to those rules.

This could also be one reason of the "36 Foot" myth It is said that best results are obtained when the A99 or Imax is at 36' to the feed point. Maybe it's not the relationship to ground as much as the length of the mast acting as the counterpoise. If you want to go more than 36' then a ground plane kit is recommended to lower the take off angle. Many have noticed good results with the GPK above 36' but found it a waste below 36', HMMMM. I'm only at 20' now on a push up with a tower coming in spring to get me to 36' I don't want to go much taller A. because the wife would freak, and B. it would become a lightning magnet in my one-horse-town.

Another thing to ponder is that the addition of the Balun may help the ERP because you are eliminating one of the 2 counterpoises (mast and coax) which would certainly have 2 different velocity factors. This could possibly act as a phasor in certain instances and cause an omni antenna to be "not so omni"

There is a possibility that my ERP may have gone up after the balun installation. Although problems associated with feedline radiation in the shack decreased, the audio problems with the stereo in there shack increased slightly. Maybe there is a tad more coming out of the stick and not being wasted elsewhere?

Once again just pondering, I may be WAY off :)

That type of soldering iron is not intended for that kind of use.
Instead it is actually a good iron for small surface area heating and even surface mounted parts.

Alkaline AA batteries are rated between 1600 to 1900 milliamp/hour.

Most ICs are tolerent to 400 degrees celsius for up to 10 seconds when heat is applied to the pin. In IR assited reflow ovens, most components on the board are subject to 275 degree C heat upwards of 45 to 90 seconds. Total reflow process time for surface mounted components in a reflow oven is between 5 and 7 minutes. Most of that will determine the pallete material that act as carrier for the PCBs.

FR4/5 laminate material will withstand heat around 300 degrees C for 7 to 10 minutes without discoloration or delamination.

Actually cordless soldering irons are preffered in small static senesitive areas. Larger wattage irons that are plugged into AC outlets can do more damage than cordless irons with static sensitive parts.

If you want to increase the inductance wrapping aluminum foil on the outside is not going to produce adequate results. Instead, place ferrite material within the form so that it sits inside the windings.
If you want to decrease the inductance use aluminum inside the windings.

This is how tunable inductors work.

Coiling coax up to form a choke balun places an impedance inline with the outer conductor of the coax. It is this impedance that limits or "blocks" unwanted current from flowing down the outer shield of the coax. Coiled baluns should be located as close to the feed as possible.

I top post because modern readers allow top post. Your 'net ettiquette' is/was totally arbitrary to begin with. Top posting allows the reader to get to the issue without having to scroll through 100+ lines of text that has already been beaten to death.

And finally, if you are responding to top posting you have already violated your own precept by your response.

Now, there is a large consensus that a certain individual in the State of Maine is in difficulty with the FCC.

Is "the state of Main" a new state? Where is it?

What is a "pple?"

Can you spell "can't?"

What is "sindicate?" Is that an act against God as in sinning?

My state has never priased me for anything. However, it would help to know what "priased" means.

Our state does not have a "legistlature" so maybe that is why I have never been "priased."

So if this is the quality of individual that thinks a nut-job like K1MAN is a great man, then I know I am on the right side.

This is a perfect example of why we need to do away with the public school system of "education."

No. You probably top post because that's the default setting of your news reader, and you're too damned lazy (or ignorant) to change it.

> get to the issue without having to scroll through 100+ lines of text

Your "logic" is utter backpedaling b.s. - long ago refuted by serious Usenet readers. If a third and fourth party decides to add to a top posted thread, it rapidly deterioriates into an unfollowable mess.
This is especially true when you top post to an already bottom posted instruction.

Don't even presume to lecture someone else, oh Clueless One.

This statemment is comical. Howard Stern, who if filthy rich, and his radio network, which was obscenely huge, could not win against the FCC.

K1MAN is a peon, compared to Stern. You are stupid, delusional, or both.

If you get no bites on this odd one-off kind of unit, try emailing Clarion:
http://www.clarion.com/ . I recently emailed Elenco about an old power supply. They sent me some PDF's of a hand drawn schematic. It was just what I needed to fix it. I would have fixed it without the schematic.
It was a lot quicker to be able to follow the diagram as to what part came next. (It was a shorted reverse polarity diode on the output.)

I have watched received and transmitted field strength signals, from a antenna being cranked up on a crank up tower. All I ever see is the higher the antenna the stronger the signals. I never see a sweet spot or anything that is magic at 36 feet.

The ground plane kits I have seen do not impress me. I see shorter than a 1/4 wavelength, and tilted down. I don't think this is worth the effort. I have always wanted to add on 4 each 96 or 102 inch long fiberglass whip antennas, mounted at the base of the antenna, and flat and level. But you need to compare the field strength with the before and after ground plane installation. And at different heights.

The difference will only be a dB or so (I haven't measured it either) maybe even less than a dB or more! Let those with field strength measurements tell all.

Another consideration is, how much is a dB or 2 dB worth in antenna performance, as compared to distance in quiet skip times. Quit a bit!

This is all good stuff here Chad! This all may be true, again field strength measurements will tell who's lying and who ain't.

This would be a place to add on the level 1/4 wavelength ground plane radials and test the audio interference again. It may be significantly attenuated.

When it comes to antennas, no one can see where the RF Energy is going, so field strength testing will set us free. I think your on the right track.

When you say as close to the feed as possible. Do you mean the radio or the

The audio is clean from my olds school 148. I was just trying my hand at making my own dipole since it was mentioned in an earlier post I noticed that while attempting to adjust the swr, I was getting interference on my PC monitor whenever I keyed. I have the sw at 1.5, when I tried to lower it further it started going back up. I remade the dipole (I have tons of wire) got it back to 1.5 but still radiating TVI. I figured I would try the balun to see what would happen. Might also throw a low pass filter in it to see if that will fix the problem.

I haven't had a chance to see one in person. But from the commercial, it appears to look like an arc. That can't be good for sensitive electronics. I think I'll stick to my Hakko or my butane until I've had a chance to use one.

I agree with your assessment on Ground plane kits. I don't have one because it works now! Why change it? On another forum they are big on flattening them out a tad to change the take off angle, those who have done this have experienced coverage improvement. I don't know the exact angle but I can get it for you if you want.

Yeah I know I worked in broadcast and have access to a field strength meter from friends. They would be more than happy to drink my beer and play with it :) That's who I borrowed the Spectrum analyzer from to make sure I was clean on the output.

Or better yet it's time to fix the problems with the audio systems :) The one with the most power (well over 1KW RMS) and proper wiring does not have any noise AT ALL! It's just the stuff that has been known to have problems in all installs be it amateur or not.

> When it comes to antennas, no one can see where the RF Energy is going, so

I agree, Thanks for you input and interest. I am no pro by any means. When I worked in broadcast I was an audio guy, after it hit a composite signal I was done with it :) I learned any RF from shutting up and listening, I would then go home and ponder to come back the next day with questions.

It's nice to have someone with your experience around to share thoughts with. I really appreciate it!

Have a great weekend,

Chad

That's just RF man. The balun may help you though because it will reduce feedline radiation. That's kinda the same problem I was having. I say go

I never saw Lancer's post. Glad you quoted it.

I have another iron that's AC. I connected a wire to the heater's frame and run that to the screw on the outlet. It drops the 40 volts leakage to about 1 or 2 volts. Make sure the item is unplugged that you're working on! There should be a resistor between the frame and the ground to prevent mucho current from flowing. There are 1Mohm resistors in a grounding strap to limit current way below 100 mA if you should touch a 120 VAC line while grounded.

Did it go POP?
If it's a big can, try 1000MFD at 25 volts. Watch polarity!

An amp is an amp is an amp. Look at a bunch of schematics for clues.
They are all based on the orignal EB from Motorola.

All that thing is two pieces of carbon conduction elements that uses the piece that needs soldering as the circuit short causing the heat, there is 6 volts DC between the two ends.
Oh by the way, the tip does get HOT and will burn the shit out of you after soldering for 5 seconds., even after 20 seconds of cooling off. In the commercial it shows a guy touching the tip right after using it. His fingers must have been soaked in cold water first.

the "entire group" or just you? Methinks thou doth protest too much.

Therefor, the rest has been snipped because you seem unable to get with Dogie should start to worry, there are a couple tattoo conventions in Ohio this year and I have 5 friends that are artists and travel to these shows.

Sometimes I go with them. He may get an unexpected visitor, and I won't have a camera, I'll be showing him my size 14 steel toed moshing boots. Nah.... I

Hello Lancer:

How did you measure the elevation angle? An actually swing of the antenna on a range, or probing the field? Gee whiz that is a significant change there.

I have never ran a tower up looking at a none ground plane antenna. Its always been with a beam or my Interceptor 10K 5/8 wavelength ground plane.

220 Headphones

Almost any direct entry scanner will work, the trick is the headphones. You need the good noise canceling set or you won't be able to hear it at the track. You can rent the whole shooting match at the track if you don't want to buy it, comes pre-programmed too.

Mark is a real gentleman, I'm surprised evil Jack was able to talk him into driving one more year in cup. I'd like to see him win the trophy this year and really retire. Sterling Marlin is the driver I get the biggest kick out of..he's gonna be back in a Chevy this year instead of the silver bullet coors light dodge. Now I have to buy a new hat and die-cast! He'll prolly retire in a year or two also.

Texas is always a fun race to watch..we usually go to the Bristol race but I dunno if we will make it this year. My buddy that usually goes with me just started a new job and it doesn't look like he can get the time off to go.

No it is not an arc. One possibility is a conductive ceraminc alloy.
That would at least explain the rapid heat and cool down periods.
There are ceramics that can conduct and dissapate heat rather rapidly.

As for the Hakko, the hot air Hakko reflow units are real good for surface mount devices. The only other item that I found better for large ICs, 208 pin TQFPs is a hot plate.

If you are working on a static free surface it really does not matter which iron you use.

The most refered is hot air tools to remove static parts. Hakko makes one as well as many others.

Well I guess I'm not a serious USENET user. I'm only a Professional Engineer [retired], chief project engineer [retired], Program Chief Engineer USAF WS-118 RS/RV [retired] and hold both BSEE and MA degrees.

That said, I prefer TOP POSTING for simplicity sake, for quick reading of responses to posts I've previously read, and not wasting time scrolling through 100+ lines of your antiquated arbitrary responses.

Hey Jeffy-poo, did you know that the very first hams didn't have licenses either? Early pirates they were, experimenters, risk-takers... Nothing like the buy-it-off-shelf and plug it in lazy ass hams of today. Pass a simple test with mulitple answers and you got an extra ticket and with only 5wpm code too! You call that a license? I hear extras every day who don't know crap about basic tube theory or for that matter, simple ohms law. What's up with that? You guys can take your breakfast ceral ham licenses and shove them where the sun doesn't shine, they are worthless!

You could always cut the un-necessary info and bottom post. Only leave the relevant info to be answered intact. Why more people don't do this I have no idea.

He has been a nym shifter for years. That of course means he is so sad and lonely. I mean imagine changing your name often because you are concerned that no one will see what you type. Many years ago I was actually going to take him seriously however, when he started changing nyms every day or sooner I lost all respect for his point of view.
Because I realized that it was just a game to him and that he was not to be taken seriously. I believe you say what you gotta say and if people ignore you or disagree then so be it, you go on your merry way.
But to stay and try so hard to bombard the newsgroup with your rhetoric is just inanely sad.

IF you are properly grounded, once you grab the handle of the soldering iron it will within seconds no longer be at 1000 volts potential. Maybe you should also read your Ansi Standards a bit more and understand static prevention. Once you are grounded touching any other ungrounded object will dissapate the charge built in it. That charge will drain through your body to ground within a very short period.

Besides most ICs can shrug off 1KV with no damage. It is neat to see what a 15KV jolt does to the poly layers and the protective zeners on an IC. If you ever get a chance to do some electron scanning of static damage to the die pad area of an IC, do so. It is a really neat to see what 15KV can do.

Actually one that is generally used in a chemistry lab. 4 inch square top surface or even a 3 inch diameter round will do nicely on small PCBs that are about 2 - 4 square inches.

Oh it also is nice to place the PCB on a alumina ceramic plate about 100 mils think which sits on top of the hot plate. Makes a nice smooth surface to slide the PCB off after heating it. A second ceramic plate is nice to slide the PCB on to let is cool down on.

Hello Scott:

Look at the Impedance section, a over educated BS way of explaining it,
I would say. Some one who writes books and doesn't have a lot of hands

Isn't there a way of getting your licence without sitting for the exam.... eg... being educated in one of the following professions.
electronics engineer communications technician physics professor.
Sounds possible to me.

You can BUY one from "Gordon West" radio school. You don't have to know shit to pass as Gordo and wife will make sure that you do even if it takes "editing" of your final test (you will be instructed to do it in PENCIL)
he also sells "Commercial Tickets" for around $1000. That's a 3 day crash course.
Why he has not been investigated or sent a "test" person is really amazing.

Why would marrying a Canadian Amateur get you an American Amateur Canadian's must take an examination too, Markie...married or otherwise!

News/Markie:

Correct me if I am wrong, but:

A) the Tech exam is 35 multiple choice questions
B) anyone who knows the answers could complete it in 15-20 minutes
C) 5 and 6 year old children have passed the exam
D) IMO, anyone who ever took high school physics and spends 5 minutes reviewing the section on regulations has a decent chance to pass without any study
E) you do not need to take one of the many instructional classes, you can go right in to the exam
F) the exam is under $10
G) there are frequent VE sessions in many different places, sponsored by radio clubs, often connected with ham fest and flea markets H) any legal workaround would be more difficult than just taking the test, documenting being educated in one of those professions
I) does it make sense to do something illegal with federal penalties, just to avoid taking a simple test that a child could pass?

Your posting and replies have taken you longer than studying for the test. But you would rather troll. Maybe it is better that you are not on the air.

Happy trails,

Good lord man! Pull the Corona beer bottle out of your ass and learn to read what you type! You obviously are one of those that never learned to touch type and stare at the keyboard as if someone moved the keys since you last attempted typing. For that problem, most use spell checkers.

ARRL PRESIDENT QUITS - "IF YOU CAN'T TAKE THE HEAT, GET OUT OF THE KITCHEN" SAYS K1MAN

Quoting President Harry Truman, Glenn Baxter, Executive Director of AARA,
the American Amateur Radio Associaation, bids Jim Haynie "Good Luck in The Contest." According to this week's ARRL Letter:

"The election of a new ARRL president will highlight the annual meeting of
the ARRL Board of Directors. When the Board convenes Friday and Saturday, January 20 and 21, in Windsor, Connecticut, Jim Haynie, W5JBP, will wield
the gavel for the last time as the League's president. Haynie, who lives in Dallas, Texas, has made it known over the past few months that he will not be a candidate for a fourth two-year term. He says that while it's been a great honor to serve as the ARRL's president for the past six years, he feels it's time for him to step aside.

"It's a time-consuming job. It tends to wear on you after a while," Haynie conceded this week. "I've racked up hundreds of thousands of miles traveling--not only here in the United States but all over the world representing the ARRL and Amateur Radio."

Haynie says he's thoroughly enjoyed his tenure in the League's top office--a strictly volunteer position--but he believes someone with fresh ideas and a different vision from his now should take over the reins. The ARRL Board customarily elects a president from among its own ranks or elevates one
of
the League's vice presidents, although it's not required to. When he was elected, Haynie was the ARRL West Gulf Division Director.

Among the successes of his six years as ARRL president, Haynie cites
the

ARRL Education and Technology Program--often better known as "The Big Project." Haynie kicked off the initiative to put Amateur Radio stations and a curriculum into schools across the US shortly after he took office in 2000. The program now boasts upward of 180 participating schools.

He says he's also proud that he's been able to contribute to enhancing the visibility of Amateur Radio at the FCC, in "official Washington" and on Capitol Hill. "I enjoyed that work," said Haynie, who testified before the House Subcommittee on Telecommunications and the Internet on behalf of the Spectrum Protection Act in 2003. Last year, he submitted written testimony to the House Government Reform Committee on the successful efforts of Amateur Radio operators who provided communications during the Hurricane Katrina response.

"It's paid off in the long run," Haynie said of his regular visits to Washington to advance Amateur Radio's agenda. "Amateur Radio needs to learn how to sell itself, not just from the League's standpoint," he said. "The president can only do so much." He encouraged all radio amateurs, whether or not they're ARRL members, to promote Amateur Radio and its value to the community.

Once he steps down, Haynie says he's looking forward to "maybe chasing some DX or maybe running a few contests." But he says he'll also make himself available to the Board to handle any necessary duty.

Among other items on its agenda, the ARRL Board is expected to discuss the process of developing effective band plans to support rule changes the League recently requested in a Petition for Rule Making RM-11306. The petition asks the FCC to regulate the amateur bands by necessary bandwidth rather than by mode. The Commission will accept public comments on the petition until February 6.

The Board also plans to review and discuss Article 11 of its Articles of Association, which defines eligibility to hold League office. It also will hear reports from officers and consider recommendations from various committees."

FCC TO OFFER K1MAN CALL FOR SALE AT STARTING BIDS 0F $1,000,000? JAIL TIME FOR FCC "SPECIAL COUNSEL" RILEY HOLLINGSWORTH?

See AARA NEWS

>From ARRL web site:

FCC zips through vanity application backlog (Jan 12, 2006) -- Once the FCC resumed processing Amateur Radio vanity call sign applications earlier this month, its Wireless Telecommunications Bureau (WTB) blazed through the backlog. A total of 990 vanity applications piled up in the queue after the FCC suspended vanity processing September 23. An initial batch of 121 grants Friday, January 6, was followed by 195 more the next day. Apparently confident by then that the system was working okay, the FCC let loose the remaining 674 vanity grants Tuesday, January 10. During the vanity hiatus, applications appeared with a "Y--application has problems" flag in the Universal Licensing System (ULS), prompting some concern on the part of those who checked their applications' status. The WTB reportedly applied the "Y" status to prevent the system from running the entire backlog at once. The WTB halted vanity processing last fall after realizing that filing deadline extensions for licensees in certain states affected by hurricanes Katrina and Rita applied to Amateur Radio's two-year "grace period" and could impact the vanity system. FCC spokesman Tracy Simmons told ARRL today that the WTB now is processing current vanity call sign receipts. It typically takes approximately three weeks from the time a vanity application is submitted until a call sign is issued.--some information from Fred Maia, W5YI

HOW TO SLAP SISSY KEYCLOWNS IN THE WALLET WHEN THEY TRY SELLING THEIR ILLEGAL GARBAGE ON EBAY!

Log into ebay as you normally would and get ready to browse for illegal keyclown items! Keep the illegal keyclown equipment auction numbers you find in a text file.

Open a second browser and log on again. This time, use it to do the following:

Surf on over to http://pages.ebay.com/securitycenter/index.html
1. select "Report another problem"
2. click "Report problem"

This will take you to a page with 3 windows:
1. In the top window, select:"report a listing policy violation or prohibited (banned) item"
2. In middle window, select "Prohibited (banned) items"
3. In bottom window, select "electronics"
4. click "continue"

Now you will be on the "Contact us" page. Click on "email".

This will take you to a page to email Ebay security about the illegal keyclown equipment you find.
1. Type in the number of the auction that you want to rat out. You can type in up to 10 auctions, so cruise around your favorite place on Ebay to find illegal keyclown equipment and fill the box up! Type in the numbers like this: 000000000,00000001,000000002, etc. No gaps between the commas and the next number.
2. Before hitting the "send" button, make sure to copy/paste your ratouts to a text file. You want to save them so you can post them in the rec.radio.cb newsgroup. This is a public service to the legal CB'ers, who want all this keyclown gear eradicated. It also has a great side effect of getting keyclowns to squeal, call you names, and otherwise complain. They hate it when they get their clocks cleaned like this.
3. Now, you are ready to do your duty as a ham or a CB'er, and show that you are not a keyclown operator like they are. Click "send"!

Repeat as many times for as many days as you want, keep those keyclowns whining like the sissies they are!

Actually more like four or five years behind. I will admit that I am not fully abreast on the 1999 ANSI standards.

Son I have worked in enough ESD sensitive areas for the better part of 23 yrs. You and others are very good in quoting standards, but have really failed to understand what ESD is, how it generates and what is needed to combat ESD. Various areas of the US is far more suspectable to ESD than other areas of the US. Cold dry areas are more susceptable tham humid and warmer areas.

My knowledge of ESD is good enough that I do not have to worry if I ever decided to work for a large corporation again.

Time would be better spent as a volunter for the Salvation Army or perhaps picking up trash on the side of the road. Why don't you chase bootleg auctions on ebay. Selling bootlegs hurts the artists who don't get a penny for their intellectual

You should focus your efforts on something that could help somebody.
Ratting amps is a waste of time. Ratting bootleggers even makes you feel good!

maybe you should study Coulomb's and Guass' Law and understand how Static Charges are developed. A soldering iron sitting on a anti-static mat plugged into the wall is not going to develope large electrostatic charge.

What does happen is the tip of a soldering iron is in the strong field of a time varying magnetic field. This comes from the inductance in the heater coil. Putting the tip at ground potential will eliminate any potential charge build up from the time varying magnetic field from teh heater coil.

Battery operated soldering do not have time varying magnetic fields near the tip. It will have a static magnetic field that is often far weaker than that of a soldering iron that operates on 120VAC.

In ESD it is the rapid movement of charge that will do the damage.
Rapid movement of electric charge will result in high current in a very shor time frame. Ampere's Law. Damage is severe when the change in charge(Q) versus change in time(T), dQ/dT, is very small. The slow movement of charge results in low current and therefore damage is minimalized.

Yes repeated strikes of low level electrostatic charge can be as damaging as one big strike of electrostatic charge movement.

I have a major problem with him. Ten years ago, he was handing out notes to press personnel and media personnel. Has never been a head coach anywhere. This is the Jets problem. They never spend big on a quality coach. They are also looking for cheap assistants.

BTW, Bradway should have been sent packing.

This simple drivel has done nothing but dwindle done to a pissing contest and I am put of piss.

I recogneize that there are ANSI standards and I don't disagree with any of them. I also have years of education and practical experience with electrrostatics and how it forms and how it discharges. I don't have to prove anything to a twit like you that can only quote standards like it is a bible of some sorts.

You are arguing an issue by throwing standards up and I don't care to argue standards. I made a statement and I still stand by it. All you have done is through some standards in my face and failed to disprove my statement.

Until you can prove me wrong in my original statement, I suggest that any further discourse is a wate of my time and the internet bandwidth.

Any suggestions for regulators that will handle a max 48 volt VCC?. I have 3 transformers that output 35 VAC at a few amps. I'd like to build some 13.8 VDC supplies. Seems 723's and 317's are maxxed at 40 volts. I see 317HV's that are good to a VCC of 60 volts. The large pass transistors from PC power supplies are good for 10 amps and the smaller ones make good buffers. Each stage drops .7 volts, so maybe I can go back to the old zener diode/resistor regulator trick. A buffer and output would give a final 13.6 volts.

I am using a AT computer power supply, this one can do 8A at +12 V.
Some of the newer ones can do >25 A @12V, but may be more difficult to start.
There may be some hum or you would have to add some filter caps.
But switchmode is all that will be here in the future..

For output voltages and current look up (clikc) each individual one.

I was once thinking of using a transformer that had a secondary voltage of 36VAC and use pass transistors I had in my spare box. I wanted to use a T0-220 case NPN and the design required the use of 8 of them in order to lower the heat dissapation per transistor. That changed my mind and ended up usign a different transformer.

Y'all wouldn't use a CB without a squelch in a noisy area, why are you trying the Internet equivalent trying to read Usenet newsgroups without a filter?

Usually, transformers can be found more reasonably priced than semiconductors of high current ratings, especially surplus!

Steveo, it's so bad here that the major river (the Brazos) we get our water from is so salty it leaves white residue on the dishes cleaned in the dishwasher. They say it will be that way until north Texas gets more rain to dilute the river water. No telling how much damage it's doing to the hot water heaters and other devices that this seawater flows through. :-)

I am well aware of that. I picked up a nice transformer for $10 once.
4200 VAC CT at 2 amps intermmittant secondary. The transformer was one cubic foot and weighed 85 lbs.

If you know where the surplus shops are, transformers and power supply parts can be had for realtively cheap prices.

I hate to report this.

Dave, K5DCR, DavesRadio"RR" in Harrison Arkansas is now SK. Dave is no longer with us.

He passed away the other day. (Wed I belive)

As many of you long time members know, Dave sold his shop a while back and retired to spend time fishing. I regret that I never made the time to go up and fish with him. I think I will have to go in a few weeks when I get some time off.

Dave, you will be missed. I hope the fishing is good...

Tam

Do you have any pics of it? Let us know when you put it up for auction. I always liked the sound quality of the Trams. The mic and power cable are no problem.

Thats a real shame! I got to talk to Dave a couple of times on the SSB channels. He was a kick to talk to. I also exchanged some e-mail on antennas and different things about radio stuff.

Yes he was good man, and will be missed. My prayers are with his family.

I am sure the fishing there is a lot better than it is here.

Hey, I have a Realistic TRC-55 that I recently purchased on eBay.
Everything works great (someone even stuck channel 24 in the blank space). My problem is that the clock is very noisy and slows down once in a while. Does anyone know if there is a way to fix this? Thanks.

Calling all CB'ers that have Ham transceivers!

I just found out that there are some "new" Freeband frequencies. You will see them in my sig. There are guys on them now that use them when the skip goes out on 11 meters, and to contact friends from 11 meters worldwide!

You will need to put up an antenna for them, the simplest being a dipole. Just Google "dipole" and I'm sure you will easily find instructions on how to make one. Basically a dipole is two pieces of wire cut to a certain length for each band. One of the wires connects to the center conductor of your coax, and the other one to the shield. The center is where the coax connects and the antenna wires go out from there to connect to one side of an insulator that's roped to a support, like a house, tree, tower, 10' 2 x 4 stuck in the ground 2 feet, etc.

Hope to see you on the Shortwave Freebands! This is becoming LOTS of fun! (These have long been used by CB'ers in Europe and are called the "Charlie Oscar" frequencies, from what I understand.)

Thirds,

Starsky -- I go by "Dark Star Radio 73"... and I'm back quiet...

Listening U.S.A. daytime: 13.555 MHz USB
Listening U.S.A. evenings & nights: 6.670 MHz LSB Listening U.S.A. late nights: 3.475 MHz LSB
All above monitoring subject to propagation variations.
(And when I'm not elsewhere in the HF spectrum doing other things. .... ..)

You mean you see some potential for trolling because you're a troll yourself. I see you as a Steveo replacement after Doug kicks his stalking butt into jail. You have potential for making a fool of yourself with your poor knowledge of HF propagation and limited experience on one band. Frank Gililand has forgotten more than you know. You have maybe 1/10 of his knowledge.

Thank god most freebanders like dr. douche are too stupid to build a dipole.

Hello All:

Look at this e-bay auction for high temp Chimney's. Pictured is a 3CX5000 Tube. Yeah I know only a driver, hehehehe

But I thought that the Chemney needed to have a .050 inch clearance between the ID (inside diameter of the Chemney) and the OD (outside diameter of the tubes plate. Allowing air to flow over the outside of the tubes plate OD surface. Or is it ok to use such "Silicon Rubber Chemneys" forcing all the cooling air thru the tubes inner plate cooling fins?????

http://cgi.ebay.com/4CX5000-YC156-Silicon-Rubber-Chimney-NEW_W0QQitemZ5857511739QQcategoryZ48700QQrdZ1QQcmdZViewItem

I have seen these Chemneys on production model amplifiers.

Before the Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers
State of Maine

In the matter of:

Brian L. Crow, Complainant

vs.

Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., Respondent

and

Registered Professional Engineer, by Reciprocity, in Maine

and

Amateur Radio Call Sign K1MAN

and

Executive Director of the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute (Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918 tel. 1-800-262-9543)

and

Certified Fire Safety Advisor

SECOND MOTION TO DISMISS,

or

SECOND REQUEST FOR HEARING

Respondent, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., hereby comes through this pleading and makes this sworn affidavit of his own personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

The original Brian Crow "Complaint" has essentially been dismissed by the Board with the focus now being on general discharge issues with a former employer, Ray Bouchard, and a Complaint made by Respondent to the Board against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp was on Bouchard's new building plans which are in clear fire code violation according to a representation made to Respondent by the Augusta Code Enforcement Officer. This latter Complaint was dismissed by the Board on the curious grounds that said engineer "was not involved," an issue now being formally investigated by the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., Executive Director.

1. Respondent is currently d/b/a as Executive Director of the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and is a Certified Fire Safety Advisor with hundreds of inspections and fire safety installations already made throughout Maine and the primary source of professional income since FHRI's inception shortly after Respondent was "fired" from Ray Bouchard's Light of Life Ministries and Christian radio stations in Augusta, Maine.

2. Respondent was hired by Mr. Bouchard in 2003 to be his "Chief Engineer" in the radio sense of the term "engineer" on the strength of Respondent's First Class Commercial Radiotelephone(1) and Amateur Extra Class FCC licenses, 16 years of experience in designing and operating a multi transmitter short wave station heard world wide (with an ID announcer being former CBS Newsman Walter Cronkite, who is also a licensed amateur radio operator), many years of professional experience in electronics repair and engineering modifications to Collins high frequency equipment, the design for in house manufacturing of electro-mechanical filters (equivalent to Collins mechanical filters) which were the very "heart" of 750 low frequency receivers custom made for our U.S. submarine fleet, and design and installation of many radio tower and antenna installations.

Respondent has a B.S. Degree in Industrial Engineering (January 1968) from the University of Rhode Island and is a Registered Professional Engineer by examination in that specialty in Illinois, and by reciprocity in Maine.

Respondent has completed significant course work in electrical engineering and has published several articles in the area of physics, chemistry, and the theory of relativity, as well as teaching high school physics, chemistry, and advanced math.

3. Unknown to the Respondent, Mr. Bouchard did not have adequate finances to do most of the projects worked on, and the Station Manager advised Respondent of this fact in detail after the time of hiring. Apparently, Mr. Bouchard really hired Respondent to train a high school junior for six months in electronics and engineering so that this person could assume the job of permanent Chief Engineer at minimum wage or less, since common practice at the station was to work full time and be paid for far less time than actually worked.

For example, Mr. Bouchard constructed the whole station himself, and there were no wiring diagrams or schematics of any of the maze of wire interconnects present in his broadcast station. Respondent strongly recommended making such diagrams and schematics, and Mr.

Bouchard insisted that Respondent do this work on Respondent's "own time," which Respondent declined under these circumstances. Lack of these diagrams and schematics would naturally create a "night mare" for Respondent when there was an equipment failure, as actually happened and has become a subject of the current Complaint against the Respondent.

4. Respondent never received a written job description until a few days before being "fired." The paper signed by Respondent at the time of hiring gives an incorrect impression that there ever was a written job description. The actual job description was verbal and changed on a continuing basis and included:

o Training and supervising the high school junior

o Organizing the relocation of the FM transmitter site

o Design and construction of the new transmitter site

When the owner of the FM transmitter location asked "Where is Glenn?", Mr. Bouchard said "He was let go because he wasn't following his job description." Respondent demanded in writing a retraction, and never got one from Mr. Bouchard.

5. Respondent had a computer in his engineering office (found out later to be illegally occupied per the REAL Code Enforcement Officer - Respondent was introduced to a phony "Code Enforcement Officer" minutes before being "fired(2)" -) with all work done for 2003 on a single disk. This disk was loaded into the central office computer as a back up and so some printing could be done on the central office printer. After being "fired," Mr. Bouchard found this computer file and jumped to the false conclusion that Respondent did non job related work on company time. Respondent never did any such thing, this being a very serious allegation and being a part of the current "Complaint".

6. Respondent wore many hats and relied on different credentials at different times. For example, during the tower erection, Respondent relied on previous tower erection experience with the guy anchoring scheme being standard amateur radio practice and right out of the ARRL antenna handbook(3). The design of the tower system was not a Professional Engineering design, although a progress report was written in a document signed by the Respondent who happens to be a Professional Engineer as opposed to "as a Professional Engineer."

7. Note there is nothing in the above list of job descriptions regarding contact with the FCC or obtaining a required construction permit from the FCC. When Respondent realized that there were serious FCC violations being made by Mr. Bouchard, I brought this to the attention of the station Manager who advised me to protect my personal commercial FCC license which I did by reporting the violations to the FCC immediately, both to mitigate the damages for my employer and to eliminate the danger, as Chief Engineer, and the legal FCC interpretation of this, to my FCC commercial license.

8. At no time did I ever disclose confidential information to anyone in violation of Professional Engineering ethics as apparently alleged by Mr. Bouchard.

9. Although apparently dismissed by the Board, Respondent hereby addresses the "Nazi" comment. Respondent is a world wide short wave celebrity with a daily radio program often containing robust editorials. Respondent often publishes editorials on the internet. One amateur radio data base at www.QRZ.com decided, for "hobby politics," reasons to de-list Respondent's radio call sign K1MAN. About 1000 persons posted comments, many to the effect that Respondent does not deserve to have a listing on www.QRZ.com which uses public FCC data as its basis. Making an editorial point, Respondent compared a list of commenter's call signs with being tantamount to membership in the "American Amateur Nazi Party." There is no such animal, of course. "Nazi" was later changed to "Nerd." One on the list was apparently a P.E. in California, something unknown to the Respondent and not really relevant to this current "Complaint."

8. As a Professional Engineer, I notified the owner and three other Managers of serious fire hazards at the station shortly after the AM transmitter caught fire under the stairs of the only exit to the "fire death trap" old building. That old building, curiously, met the code, but the new building did not meet code according to the REAL Code Enforcement Officer who, somewhat embarrassed, dismissed it as being only 16% or so out of compliance. I notified this Code Officer in writing of my objections, and he "ducked" his mail several times until I served him with written notice at his home address. This is when I fully realized the common and life threatening "slack" involved in these fire safety matters, an issue at the very heart of professional engineering licensing, namely protection of public safety.

It is my legal position that immediate protection of the lives of the public required addressing these concerns to more than just the owners and Station Manager. The concerns were immediate, time sensitive, and this was no time for "secrets" or confidentiality, in my Professional Engineering opinion. Protection of life was my paramount and immediate concern. I genuinely felt the threat of criminal prosecution for criminal negligence should another fire break out and someone should die in Bouchard's fire traps due to inaction.

I realized that a serious entity needed to be created for public fire safety, and this is when I started the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute with my opening salvo being a formal complaint against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp I saw on the new Bouchard building plans when I first visited the Code Enforcement Officer's office. He, by the way, is also a licensed ham radio operator. His alleged representation to the Complaint Officer of this P.E. Board that he advised me that the new Bouchard building met code is simply not true! He agreed with me that the building was out of code by about 16% but that he had issued a "waiver." This, plus Mr. Bouchard introducing me to a phony Code Officer just before I was "fired" (a crime I reported to the Augusta Police) was the real driving force behind the newly created Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and also started me on a new and exciting professional career as a Certified Fire Safety Advisor.

The Fire Hazard Reduction Institute has uncovered other evidence and testimony about more fire safety code violation issues in Maine in addition to this Board choosing to dismiss out of hand Respondent's formal Complaint. Even new Board member William A. Lotz, P.E. stated during the 19 January 2006 Board meeting that he has personally observed numerous situations that are in FLAGRANT fire code violation here in Maine.

I feel that if I didn't do everything in my power to bring these life threatening violations to light, I would not be living up to my ethical responsibility as a Licensed Professional Engineer, if not also being criminally negligent, should anyone ever be killed in one of Mr. Bouchard's or someone else's fire traps. I don't feel that (or it is not my legal position that) Professional Engineering client confidentiality applies here since I did file a formal Complaint (available to the PUBLIC) with this Board AFTER being "fired" by Mr. Bouchard with my genuine concerns being consistent with being denied my statutory right to cross examine and subpoena witnesses in my "test case" unemployment claim hearing where Mrs. Bouchard even perjured herself; this also being consistent with my Complaint to the Maine Overseers of the Bar regarding an illegal and totally false ex-parte letter (de facto to the Hearing Officer - a clear violation of Maine bar rules) being filed by Bouchard's attorney, Robert Stolt, also being dismissed out of hand (by the Maine Overseers of the Bar).

To get this (affront to justice) officially in before of the Overseers' supervisory authority, the Maine Supreme Judicial Court, Respondent brought a civil action in Superior Court against Mr. Stolt which was dismissed (surprise, surprise!) and then appealed to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court, also dismissed on the de facto bogus grounds that Mr. Stolt's ex-parte letter was privileged (it was, of course, that wasn't the point; it clearly voilated bar rules, and the Overseers didn't do their job to discipline Maine licensed Attorney Robert Stolt; point made to the honorable Maine Supreme Court justices, QED I think!)

Indeed, since this Board voted in a public meeting attended by the Complainant's apparent representative, Ralph Myra, K1IV, (and thus now probably reported on world wide amateur radio short wave as well as over the world wide internet) to fine me $1,500 (via a Board proposed consent agreement) for making an alleged false formal Complaint about the Maine Professional Engineer who wrongly approved the out of code Bouchard building plans, I am hereby publishing this reply document on the internet as well (to protect my professional reputation) at also world wide www.K1MAN.com. (and also in the public interest of exposing these very dangerous and - life threatening to the public - and commonly found conditions now in Maine - and most other states - and illustrated - for Maine - above).

Wherefore, Respondent respectfully declines to sign the proposed consent agreement and pay the proposed $1,500 fine,

and

Respondent moves the Board to Dismiss this Complaint

or

Respondent requests a full hearing,

and

Respondent requests this Board to reopen the Respondent's Complaint about the Bouchard unsafe and dangerous to the public fire traps (in my Professional Engineering opinion).

Respectfully submitted,

(signed) Glenn A. Baxter, P.E.
Certified Fire Safety Advisor

(1) Now known as a General Radiotelephone License

(2) Respondent had just written an engineering report outlining very serious fire hazards in both the old and new buildings at the station.

(3) The guy anchoring scheme is known to amateur radio operators as a "dead man." The expanding bolt installation was on the advice of the supplier.

Sworn before me,

K1MAN BULLETIN - B060121B -

GLENN A. BAXTER, P.E., K1MAN, BEFORE THE MAINE BOARD OF LICENSURE FOR PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS

Dateline, 19 January 2006, Augusta, Maine.

The Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers met today to discuss a "Complaint" against Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, brought by Brian Crow, K3VR. Crow's apparent "representative," Ralph Myra, K1IV, attended this important board meeting and took copious notes.

Mr. Baxter also attended as well as a number of other engineers, observers, board members, and their attorney from the Maine Office of the Attorney General. Mr. Baxter could only observe and was not allowed to speak at this stage of the standard Maine Rules of Administrative Procedure.

The Complaint Officer, Stephen W. Cole, P.E., presented the 18 inch thick file in this case to the Board and there was robust discussion and debate among board members for about 90 minutes. The Assistant Attorney General stated that she had spent many months and countless hours on this "Complaint" by Mr. Crow, and the Complaint Officer indicated that he had done the same. One board member, William A. Lotz, P.E., (all board members are licensed Professional Engineers) stated that this case reminded him of the Ken Starr investigation of President Clinton where the net result was to find some presidential semen on Monica Lewinsky's dress.

"The board was presented with reams of incorrect and false evidence," according to Mr. Baxter, "most notably, false and misleading testimony by the Code Enforcement Officer in Augusta, Maine who has been under investigation by the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute, a bona fide safety organization where I serve as its Executive Director. Based on this false and misleading evidence, the Board wrongly concluded that our 2003 Complaint to the Board about the Professional Engineer who approved the out of code building plans for Ray Bouchard's new building at Light of Life Ministries and Christian radio stations was improperly made, and the Board voted to offer to settle the matter by asking us to sign a consent agreement admitting "improper action" and to pay a $1,500 fine. The alleged improper action was filing the Complaint after being told by the Code Enforcement Officer that the Bouchard fire trap met state fire codes. Exactly the reverse was the case. The building did not, in fact, meet state fire codes; it is a fire trap in our Professional Engineering opinion," Mr. Baxter went on to say in an interview. "The Code Enforcement Officer admitted to me that the building DID NOT meet the code and that he had issued a 'waiver.' Our formal Complaint against the Professional Engineer who approved the out of code building plans is entirely appropriate. Assistant Attorney General Judith Peters now agrees with me on this very important point," Mr. Baxter went on to say.

After Ralph Myra left the meeting, the Assistant Attorney General and the Board's Executive Director, Warren Foster, P.E., granted a Baxter Motion for Discovery and he (Baxter) will be allowed to inspect and copy the entire files in both cases including hundreds of E-Mails.

Mr. Baxter has filed (by FAX) the attached reply affidavit with the Board and the Maine Assistant Attorney General, Judith Peters. "Ms. Peters called me right back," Mr. Baxter said, "and it looks like we will be able to get the entire and bogus Crow "Complaint" dismissed. She wants to meet with Stephen W. Cole, P.E. (the Complaint Officer), and me in about two weeks to discuss these new facts which have just been brought to light and for possible final adjudication at the next Board meeting in six months.

If we do go to a full hearing before the Board, Ms. Peters confirmed that I will be allowed to subpoena whatever witnesses that I want to. After such a hearing, where Ms. Peters, an attorney, would be the Hearing Officer, the case (by Maine law) would go to trial in District Court." Again, Mr. Baxter would be allowed to subpoena whatever witnesses he wanted to.

"I am so pleased that the Administrative legal system and court system here in Maine are finally showing some robust signs of integrity; it is so great to be an American; it is so great to live in Maine. Let them eat Crow," Mr. Baxter said, apparently referring to the Complainant, Brian L. Crow, K3VR.

After I made a dimmer using some of these transistors, I realized I had created a high current DC amp, so I applied half voltage (bias) and fed a capacitor coupled AC input to the base and took a capacitor coupled AC output from the emitter and now I can amplify audio. I made a duplicate of the first, and now I have a stereo class A audio amp. I might take those transformers and create an unregulated 40+ volts DC to power this amp. I need to redesign the input circuit...

Makes some heat with a 13.3 volt VCC. You need to draw some current from the transistors to develop a decent voltage drop to get clear audio. I'm using light bulbs as high wattage resistor. I had to make two separate bias adjusts or it would have ended up monophonic.

It's a FrankenAMP! (TM)

Can I make class AB by making splitters on toroids like is done for RF amps?
I only have large NPN transistors. I've got a lot of them, and quite a few old computer power supplies for resistors and capacitors.

AA does not agree with your reasoning on 'choose'.

If you need as little as one beer a year you ARE an 'acoloic' [alcoholic].

I have a cheap magnet mount with a stainless whip. The whip is only about 18" long and I was thinking of getting a much bigger one (Around 3 feet or more)

I cant seem to find anything, basically all I need is a piece of stainless rod. But cnat find it anywhere.

I never know how to subject a post.. the problem is I probably made a bad decision on a purchase..
I bought a Cherokee CBS 500 base radio.. I had read somewhere that these radios use a board that other high end radios use.. I don't know about this and it didn't pertain to my purchase decision also.. I could expand it with the jumper location but obviously on newer units they've did not install the jumper terminals.. and linked it the right way.. and I have not ever heard or read any thing about removing the black shit that is used to protect circuts.. aghh damn I got carried away to teh problem.. radio has poor receive and I don't know about transmit (I don't have any friends, and most radio people don't give a shit about someone who is working on there radio to get a check.. I've never understood this.. maybe it's just my life sucks?) only transmit that I know of is one time and they must have been very close.. and that my bro that lives bout 4 blocks away from my place can hear me.. he has my hand held cobra.. he's transmitting from in his house.. and on all other prior setups I've had no weak sound and reception from the same places his and mine.. it was absulutly clear.. I just have not used a setup for a long time.. and wanted to jump back into using a radio..

SWR gave me trouble after trouble and when I get it right and keep up with it througout the night.. go to use my radio again several hours later or the next day SWR has totally changed.. if it means anything I beleive it is usually lower on 1 than it is on 40 more so than the oppisote.. I've redone coax tuned the antenna I don't know what I haven't done..

I guess I got carried away.. I guess we can just consider the radio.. I got it.. power it on it seems to be working fine.. I get everything hooked up with exelent swr.. then the squelch decides to quit working.. I took apart the radio just the cover to access and visually inspect the boards..
I give the board a tap while power up.. that fixed the problem for the time being.. then it happens again.. I inspect some areas and have the area known now.. it's hard to see what it may be I was thinking the near by trans. that was grounded to frame.. it was loose.. but I'm not thinking it is that.. but I did give the trans. a push then tigtened it.. the problem is still there.. I keep flexing an area around a transformer and I know it is there but I don't know what it is.. I don't want to take the board out if it needs adjustments and no touch ups can be done.. I'll probably save money by just sending it in for alignment and repair.. I can check solder joints.. I still need to know what all could be giving me trouble and what it is most likely is.. the board is working for now and has been for some days now.. paying shipping to and back for a replacement just pisses me off.. these things are poorly built.. I wouldn't hire who ever done the work on my unit... they can't solder worth a shit.. they need to fire this guy from the assembly line.. he's doing the company no good.. It would just be best to send it to someone who can align and do otehr things to bring out total performence.. hassling around getting a replacement would cost the same most likly.. and take forever.. cuz I'm not paying out of the ordinary prices for fast deliveries.. I should have just got a great nice radio from the local guys.. I didn't know they had the selection that they do.. I know what to save money for now.. oh also.. there is bleed through somewhat on the channels.. I've noticed this in manual tuning.. and on a scan.. happens all the time.. low or high squelch rf gain.. I did get my battery out and hooked my texas star modulator and turned on the rec amp and it did seem to help.. but I'm think it's no different than volume adjustments to higher

Thanks.. yeh I did leave out info.. antenna is a patriot is this a problem..?.. I'm going to go ahead and post this.. but it just came to mind.. that I may have a mobile that I can test with to compare receive.. since I have the bat out and stuff..

I appreciate any thoughts on what may be failing

Take the radio out to your car. Run an extension cord for power hook it up to your cars antennae and check to see if it helps. That will eliminate the possibility that it's an antennae problem.

Sounds like a 2 meter antenna to me... What about welding rod? Isn't that available in 3 ft lengths? It won't matter (much) if it corrodes...

I've built FS Meters using anything from copper welding rod to one nice one with a rubber duck antenna. I liked the simple copper rod the best. The rubber duck worked as well, it just looked better...

Getting a whip that is significantly longer will probably not work. You most likely have a loading coil in the base of that antenna that has been designed to operate with the length whip that came with it.

Bullshit. Take -any- chip you can find, hook a 1kV source (DC -or- AC) across a ground pin and any non-ground pin, then see if it still works. It won't. Unless it's designed for 1kV I can guarantee that you

On more thought... If you get a composite antenna, you can even wind a coil at the bottom or middle then shrink wrap it! I'm not sure how those newer antennas are made but if all they are are shrink wrapped wire, you've got it made in the shade!

"Large" is a relative term.

>the heater coil. Putting the tip at ground potential will eliminate

What you are ignoring is that the electromagnetic field from AC current doesn't create -any- potential charge on the tip. The net charge is zero, and any instantaneous potential charge is the result of eddy currents which are almost non-existent. More specifically.....

If the tip is the secondary winding of a transformer as you suggest, the effective number of turns on that winding is 1 turn, while the primary (the heater coil) has considerably more than 1 turn. So any voltage developed as a result of electromagnetic induction is going to be low from the get-go. But that voltage is actually lower because the tip is really just a shorted loop and is made with a material that has a very low resistance. Not to mention that the number of primary turns isn't going to be optimum for power transfer, nor does it have a ferro-magnetic core. It's a piss-poor transformer at best.

Your theory is further flawed because it assumes an unshielded heater using wire that is wound into a solenoid -- an assumption that, like most assumptions, is frequently wrong. Almost all AC soldering irons these days have shielded heaters, and many heaters are wound to be non-inductive; i.e, they can't induce a current in squat, let alone develop any significant (measurable) voltage on the tip. Then you have the problem that the irons used for chips are only 15-30 watts, and virtually all of those watts are converted to heat (after all, that's the intended purpose of the soldering iron, isn't it?).

So here's your theory so far: A tiny fraction of 30 watts (I'm being generous here) is converted to an electromagnetic field, worms its way past the heater's shield where it loses most of its energy to eddy currents, induces a current in a shorted, 1-turn secondary with very low resistance and develops enough voltage to cause damage to..... your imagination.

Go back to school.

Long enough to get the meter to move, but not so long that it hits the power lines.

Only if she says, "Is it in yet?"

Try a telescoping antenna from a TV or cheapie CB walkie-talkie.

Jay:

In theory, there is no reason the silicon chimney won't work, as most of the surface area is actually in the fins inside the circumference, and not the outside diameter at all. The minimal additional area you get by having a looser fit chimney is likely marginal.

However, at a hundred bucks, I can certainly see a dozen other ways to get a chimney in place for a LOT less money, and nearly as neatly as well. Hell, even an aluminum sleeve closed with a couple of pop rivets, though far from aesthetically optimum, will keep the tube nice and cool (given the same blower capacity) and for only a couple of bucks, tops... There are times to spend outrageous sums of money and this isn't necessarily one of them (at least for my budget, anyway).

Of course, if I were actually building a 5 kW capable linear, I probably would have far more money than sense, particularly if you expect it would be used on the CB Band, and even on the Ham Bands (at least in the US) it is so far into illegal territory that you'd probably not give a damn in the first place. Therefore, the cost of the silicon chimney is probably a mere pittance, compared to eventual costs of defending the eventual litigation from running such a linear... [sigh]

Oh, wouldn't it be nice to have so much disposable cash as to not really care the consequences....

No such "claim" exists, Frankie. Not in that URL, not ANYwhere!

ANYONE who reads the post I made on the bulletin board of 1/24 will NOT find a SINGLE WORD that says "I served with 1st Batallion 24th Marines". Not even a HINT.

What they WILL find is a "cc"'d copy of a letter I wrote to the editor of a paper that had written an article that told of the UAW's refusal to allow Marines of 1/24 to park their non-US built vehicles on their lot across from the 1/24 Armory.

Here. Allow me to copy it directly:

QUOTE:

Parking Lot Flap

A Letter To The Editor: Dear Mr. Mayne, I've been searching for a new vehicle and had been 99% decided on a new Ford Ranger or F-150 even though I liked the design of a certain foreign truck just because I wanted to Buy American. Now I will reconsider. And on the bumper of that new vehicle, whatever it may ultimately be, will be a new bumper sticker of my own making: UAW can KMA. I am sure the meaning is clear. Semper Fidelis. STEVEN J ROBESON, LPN Gunnery Sergeant, USMC(ret'd) Winchester, TN

UNQUOTE

You're welcome to point out the part that allegedly says "I Was A Part of the 1st Bn 24th Marines"

The story about the parking lot flap was covered by several of the on-line news servers and CNN, by the way, Frankie.

Now...WHERE did I allegedly say "I Served With 1stBn 24th Marines"...?!?!?

And don't you think that if I had made some outlanding claim of being a member of their unit in MARCH of 2005 that SOMEONE from 1/24 would have responded and said "Who Are You To Claim You Were Ever In This Unit..?!?!"

> That's absolute proof that you are a liar, Dudly.

No...YOUR attempt to suggest that the "letter to the editor" in support of the Marines of 1/24 over parking thier non-US built vehicles in that UAW parking lot is the "absolute proof" that YOU are the liar.

As if more was needed.....

> I do, however, tend to believe that you were a Reservist.

You "believe" that because it serves to fit your stories. It's still wrong.

> You were > discharged after 18 years. If you -were- on active duty that would > mean you were only two years away from retirement with full benefits.
> Not even an idiot would quit with 2 years left.

Since you were not party to the arrangements, Frankie, the only IDIOT here appears to be you.

Yep. But not in 1990. I was just RETURNING from my last Oki tour in the spring of 90.

Uh huh. First time with HMH-462 in 1980.

Then again with HMH-363 in 1981. I went back to Oki in 89 with HMH-363 and cross decked to 361, staying a year.

> Omigosh, looks like you are a closet CBer!!!

Nope.

I've openly addressed using CB radio on numerous occassions. It has it's uses. I own both 11 meter and FRS radios.

CB was how I met the first Amateur I ever knew and eventually got into Amateur Radio.

I've never said otherwise.

> Either that or you were > masquerading as one, which is far more likely. I wonder what your > hambo buddies think about THAT!!! Anyway.....

Gee, Frankie...Just a couple weeks ago YOU were alluding to being an "extra"...

Of course you didn't state "extra" WHAT, but then it doesn't matter.

However almost everyone here (RRAP) has acknowledged some CB radio use in the past or present.

Your point?

> So Dudly the wannabe-hero gets shipped to Japan while the war is

Boy-oh-boy do I see some PROJECTION there!

Frankie, the Twice Court Martialed In One Tour ex-Marine trying DESPERATELY to make amends withn his own soul for the Marine Corps career that never happened because he was too irresponsible to do it right the FIRST time....

> Or were you just denied the opportunity to be a hero?

Funny thing about "heros", Frankie...If you ever get a chance to talk to one who, by virtue of appropriate award, is what we define as a "hero", none of them will tell you that what they did was "heroic", nor did they feel that way before, during or since that event.

I did my job, Frankie, and I did it well. I was never a "poster Marine", but neither was I Gomer Pyle or a non-hacking little puke like you. Not even so much as an on-base parking ticket.

> Must have been devastating for > you, Dud, having to come back and face the same people you lied to > "uncommon valor".

Whelp...There's yet another point at which you and I diverge, Your Pukiness. I didn't have to make up any lies to tell. I go just the other way...I just don't care to talk about it.

> It's so much easier to maintain the lie than to fess > up and risk losing what little respect you mistakenly think people > have for you.

I guess I could follow in YOUR (and Lennie's...) footsteps and just quote from various Clancy novels and USMC manuals in CB and Ham Radio related newsgroups and wait for the "ooooohs" and "ahhhhhhh" to start pouring in...

But on the other hand....no.

> Is that why your wife dumped you, Dud? She got tired of > all the lies? Can't really blame her..... but you did anyway. Always > someone else's fault, isn't it? Everyone else lies except you, right?

Gee, Frankie...I'm married to the same woman I was married to when Desert Shield / Desert Storm was happening. Married her BEFORE "The Storm". We've been through some storms of our own in the meantime.

Where'd you get that "she dumped you" song and dance?

From Markie's posts...?!?!

BBBWWWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA

No emotional meltdown, Frankie! Just a good, deep-in-the-gut belly laugh at yet another of your wild ###ed "I Have To Prove I Was A Better Marine Than Any Marine Ever Was" stories.

Now, go back up and prove to us where I allegedly said I was a member of 1st Bn 24th Marines and how my letter to the editor about parking lots is in any way-shape-or-form substantiates your blatant lies, deceit and bull####.

You're a punk, Frankie, and you just proved it again.

Just put a small variac on the line side. You can pick up one on ebay for peanuts. In fact, I've got a Staco 501 that I'll sell you for $20 plus shipping.

Yes, the transformer-coupled push-pull audio amp is a fundamental circuit. The only issue is that an output transformer is required which limits the fidelity of the amp. That, and you'll probably have to wind your own output transformer. You could also try a totem-pole variation -- you need an input transformer with two secondaries (or some other way of floating the base bias supply), and a really big capacitor instead of an output transformer. If you use a bipolar supply you might even be able to eliminate the capacitor.

Very few alcoholics admit they "need" a drink, Markie...Just like you, they say they "want" to drink. They also usually follow that up

Does anyone know where you can get a full quarter wave CB antenna like the old Avanti "Gator Whip"???

This antenna was mostly fiberglass with an adjustable whip on top. I want a full size quarter wave antenna with NO loading coils.

Im thinking of getting a 102" whip, I dont think I need the spring because of where im mounting it. But is it nessesary? Should I get it with the whip ?

I have a very small (and cheap!) 24" antenna. Its sub par and the antenna is too short for a good SWR reading, So I figure ill get rid of it in favor of a 102" stainless whip (http://www.radioshack.com/product/index.jsp?productId=2102428&cp) Would it be a worthwhile upgrade? Or should I got with a 4ft fiberglass antenna.

Also, is the 102" worthwhile without it being the full 108" I guess the 108" comes from the spring.

This all depends on some questions...

1) What are you mounting it on - will it look hideous?

2) Where do you drive - drive through's are noisy with 102" whips!!!

The springs are necessary for the length but mostly if you hit something low... I've never seen a whip without a spring except on a base antenna so i'm not sure about the mobile tuning...

The "idiot" is the one making "assertions of fact" that are not factual, "Jim", ie: Miss Silliland's assertions that I "claimed" to be a member of a USMC Reserve unit that I was never a member of just because I posted a note on a bulletin board they run.

And the "old threads (that) were buried" were dreged up by your Miss Silliland herself.

I had not directed a post to Silliland...She opened that round.

So if you want to address "idiots" and #####'s, Silliland is the one you need to direct ALL your comments to.

You don't need the spring... and the 102" is unparalleled in performance if mounted in the proper location... but there are several major things to consider. The first is location. To have good omni performance... the whip must be centered on the mass of metal ground plane. This means the center of the vehicle... in laymans terms... the roof. That brings us to the second consideration. Do you want an antenna that tall on you roof. It will be banging everything from trees to overhangs at the gas station. It is most inconvienient. My personal choice is the Wilson 1000 magnet for several reasons. It's well made... has a good strong magnet... and is much better suited/convienient to roof mounting. I would estimate that its performance is perhaps 80% of the 102" whip when mounted on that location. Hope that helps.

Have been using my Telewave for a week or so... it's really a nice meter for the money. I wouldn't waste my money for a slug type Bird or equivalent... since I don't do anything above 200MHz. The 150W load is also very good quality and rivals some very expensive Weinschel units I've used in the past. Skipp, you were absolutely right about Telewave.

Your imaginary lawyer has been the subject for quite some time.

Doesn't matter if I was right or wrong -- you've already proven that Imaginary?

His new wife will be interested to know she's been sleeping with an aparition.

But WAIT a minute...

YOU just put out a "big expose" allegedly proving I WAS in the service...?!?!

Seems you're very confused.

Most liars of your character are, though.

And of COURSE it matters if you were "right or wrong"...You made statements as facts that were, to a person as allegedly informed of military matters as you, NOT factual.

Seems YOU are the one with the fabrications, Frankie...

LIke the one you just threw together this past week.

And Frankie...You didn't "rattle" anything...You just proved once again that you are the liar I am calling you. No facts...No proof...No truth...

And the amusing part is seeing what tales of deception you can come up with next to try and perpetuate your acts of deceit.

No wonder you were busted twice. You deserved it.

Hardly. My "big expose", as you describe it, was an exercise in trolling. It worked. But then, all I have to do is mention your name in a post and you get all upset. So I guess I put more effort into writing it than was necessary..... but what the hell, it was fun, and so was your response.

Just like your "statements as facts" about the JULIETT crypto system.

Judging by your false accusations of others, you are often in the wrong. At least this guy has the stugatz to face those he speaks of, runs away like a child, only to return another day with more of your

My bad. Use "majority", as it is much more accurate.

Blaming others for your lack of ability to "reason" is indicative of -your- communication failure, no one else. Take your childish accusations and move on down to the ham radio groups where you troll for recreation.

>"False accusations"? gee, perhaps you should See Eric, that's your poor retainment value at work. Since you are unable to remember, I suggest you use google and see our initial exchanges for yourself. I was more than cordial to you, even as you were getting your ass kicked for what turned out to be good reason...you talk shit, Eric, and when you're called upon it, instead of acting like a man and defending your position or admitting you were wrong, you choose instead to make it -personal- and attack the one who illustrated your deficiencies.,,,this illustrates a major dilemma with your communicative skills. Once again, it never ceases to amaze me how some of those licensed in regards to communication, are the least adept at it.

What you did was blatantly lie. You made statements as fat that were ANYthing but fact, and in the process proved to all herein that Frank Gilliland IS the liar I accuse him of being.

It's not the first time you've been caught, and I dare say the last.

As for fun, I guess you DO like getting slapped around. I don't know many people who would describe having been caught lying in an open, public forum as "fun", but then I guess that's what spins your propeller.

They don't.

I just take a certain amount of pride in having served in the United States Marines, and it's humiliating in no small amount to see someone who wore the same uniform so flagrantly and unabashedly defile both that uniform and himself.

I've mounted them without springs and still had decent swr's, they tend to favor the upper channels which is just fine by me.

They DO threaten his imaginary existance! :-)

Dudly has been living his USMC LIE so long that he MUST keep up the pretense in order to (in his world) "save face."

>> No wonder you were busted twice. You deserved it.
>I served. You didn't. That's a fact.

All that Dudly produces for "proof of his active-duty service" is a lot of blustery name-calling of his challengers. He hopes to keep all thinking about his "lying challengers" in order to weasel out of producing any tangible proof.

His DD-214 copy is nowhere to be seen.

Anything in the way of photographs of 18 years of "service" is nowhere to be seen.

Anything in the way of other documentation of those 18 years of "service" is nowhere to be seen.

>>> > I'd think you'd get tired of getting slapped around with your own

"Stupidity?" Not really. A check of USMC units shows which ones are the Reserves and which are the Active-duty. Dudly wasn't in any named Active-duty unit.

>Who's your lawyer, Dud?

He doesn't have one. None would take his "case." :-)

Dudly keeps on insulting those who challenge his truthfulness.
He offers NO proof, only those personal insults. He lost credibility in here years ago...but the "CW" Extras in here all condone his activity. Who woulda thought it?

He CAN'T, Frank. He hasn't yet shown a single bit of documentation

Give it up, Frank. Dudly hasn't got one of those, either.

when are you going to get around to stating some real facts?

this was the same old line you used last time and it still hasn't changed.
still no facts to back up your assertions. guess its the "tell a lie big get back to me when you can follow up with some real facts.

Sorry, Frankie...Any punk that can "brag" about two and a half

Hello Rick:

I was wondering if the .050 inch gap around the plate was there to allow a second orifice to relive back pressure and add some more cooling.

Maybe this is a good question to a Eimac engineer.

I have heard amp builders say they want the gap there.

nope you have never proven your service

you have occasionaly given info that might lead somebody to such proof
but even if they are doing the work it is imcomplete

Your "resources" do not prove that you are the Gunny Robeson who -did-serve. You tried that excuse before. It didn't work then and it won't work now.

As I have said before (several times), you have just as many resources alleged service.

I never said I had any such relationship. You tried that tactic

And again, I have no doubt that there was a Steven J. Robeson who served in the USMC for about 18 years. I also have no doubt, and I formally concede, that his name appears in the publications you cite.
But once again, you have provide no proof that you are him. Your inability to comprehend such a simple concept is remarkable in that it demonstrates desperation in your evasiveness, as well as utter stupidity for thinking that anyone would actually believe such crap.

It depends on what 102" you are talking about. Not all 102" antennas are created equal. Some 102" antennas can actually be beat by some shorter antennas.

Let the games begin.

Assuming this is a mobile install.....

A 1/2w antenna is not a "gain" antenna and requires a high-impedance feed. A 5/8w also requires some impedance matching at the base, but its benefits in a mobile installation aren't realized because of the heavy loading required (a 5/8w at 11m is about 22 feet high!).

>I would venture to say gain antennas would be much better >performers for the other 99.999% of us.

I wouldn't "venture to say" anything of the sort. I have installed lots of antennas and tuned them up with a FSM. So far I haven't found a single antenna that can beat a properly installed (and sometimes improperly installed) 1/4w (102") whip.

What games? You're right. After the last major discussion on the topic
I did some tests and found out that the 102" stainless whips don't work as well as the 102" fiberglass whips, the difference apparently due to the ferrous nature of the conductor. But I have tried both types on the truck and haven't noticed any -practical- difference.

Why do you bring his wife and her sleeping habits into the fray?

Do you think it's appropriate?

It'll be interesting to see how well you do in court once he see's that you brought his wife into this.

Yep, you sure spread it on thick.

Talking about your attorney's wife in a forum like this? You just needed to show everyone how tight you're in with your new Upper Peninsula attorney and his wife, didn't ja?

Always needing time with other people's wives, I see.

So Steve, who's your attorney?

You can probably find a stanless steel replacment "stinger" at a truck stop

It doesn't matter what YOU think.

Oh...BTW...There was a pictorial article in the MAG-16 newspaper in 1988 for one of my CG Certificate's of Commendation for lifesaving...A Lance Corporal put his arm through a window and I managed to keep him from bleeding to death.

You're welcome to find your OWN excuse as for how it happens to be the same "Steven J Robeson" that appears on my AOL and QRZ sites, Frankie.

Obviously not.

They wouldn't let you stay in the Corps. (Here comes FRANKIE'S

I understand fine.

You make excuses then whine about people making excuses.

I have no doubt that it was that whining that helped seal your fate in the Corps.

I don't need "excuses", Frankie. I have facts. That you try to pooh-pooh them off is YOUR "excuse".

And, like you, a poor excuse it is, too.

I concur. A properly mounted 102 inch whip will and should perform better than any loaded antenna.

Now I define performance as a combination of radiated power and VSWR bandwidth. VSWR bandwidth is as improtant as radiated power as it is an indicator of antenna radiation resistance and "Q" of the antenna.
Both have effect on the efficiency of the antenna over the disired operating bandwidth of the antenna.

The 102" rocks, except for its tree pruning and over-hang scraping qualities..oh and it's a bit on the odious side appearance wise. I have that mount and a Wilson 1000 on one of my trucks, I rarely put the 102" on because of the noise it makes banging off of things, and it's somewhat directional mounted on the step bumper. (good dx shooter)

The Wilson 1000 mag mount is hard to beat for most practical applications.

Of mobile antennas of course. Unless your participating in a keydown and need some oil cooled coil, you will get the best results with a 102" and they are good (most of them) to 1kw.

I have mine mounted in the center of my truck box, puts it pretty close to center. I have to tie down for the drive through.

In theory yes. In practice it may not. A 102" stainless steel whip can

How so? Give me an example. Unless Jay wants to put an I10K on his truck.

Power handling aside the 102" stainless steel whip is a good antenna but can be marginally beat by other shorter antennas. These shorter antennas tend to consist of large diameter antenna stock made of brass or copper usually with a chrome plating. They also are center loaded with a large diameter air gapped coil.. One such antenna, and I'm sure there are others, is the X-terminator at about five foot tall.

I've never used that brand before, but have used many other base and center loaded units. You certainly can't count on manufactures claims of their products performance. I'll put my 102" up against any I have used in the past any day of the week. Nobody in my town can out talk me on the mobile.

Wrong. By it's very nature, a loaded antenna loses some power in the loading coil and therefore is not as efficient as an antenna without one. The only way a shorter antenna could outperform a full-length 1/4-wave whip is if it had some way to pull down the take-off angle.
So far, nobody has provided any theory or empirical evidence that any such antenna exists, or is even possible.

Yes even the best antenna, installed poorly will be o ut performed by a lesser antenna that is properly installed. Installation on a vehicle is far more influenced by where it is located and the vehicle itself.
SO for vehicular installations it is not very wise and prudent to make claims as to which antenna is the best. Given all other obsticles equal, the 1/4 lambda antenna will out performe physically shorter antennae. Then not all vehicles are equal, then comparison becomes more a gentleman's gambit.

You made two statements that need to be examined

1. Never trust manufacturers claims (or individuals)

2. You put your 102" up against others.

The only problem is that you never have put your 102" ss up against the antenna I am speaking of, and we should never trust the claim of others. You and me included.

So how do YOU find the truth? You must make a side by side comparison as I have. Any claims based on anything less than that is just a waste of discussion.

I agree with Frank.

So far any physcally short antenna that I have modeled or experimented with has been found to operate in a manner that is poorer than that of the 1/4 lambda antenna. The physically shorten antennae that I have seen that does not lack in efficiency is the tuned small transmitting loop. This antenna is less than 1/4 lambda in circumference and actually when tuned will be around 98% efficient. It has very low "Q" and an extremely small VSWR bandwidth. All other physically short antenna, less then 1/4 lambda, all have poorer efficiency and lower VSWR bandwidth as compared to a properly installed 1/4 lambda.

I agree with everything that you said except the wrong sentence.

A ideal 1/4 wave length antenna can never be beat by a shorter one. In other words a efficiently designed loaded antenna like the X-Terminator can not beat the ideal 1/4 antenna.

Yet the X-terminator can beat a radio shack 102" SS whip.It's not that the X-Terminator is so good. It's that the 102" SS whip is just bad enough that the X-Terminator can beat it. In other words the radio shack 102" SS whip is not ideal.

Therefore, we shouldn't trust your claim to have made a "side by side

I said you don't have to believe me, but it is easier to believe someone who has actually stated that he has made the comparisons and has posted the details.

What you really should do is make the comparison yourself. We would never believe you, but at least you'd know the truth.

We've been through this before, tnom -- chrome-plated anything isn't much better than stainless steel, and any difference isn't going to make a lick of difference when length and loading are much more significant. Even if the whip is sold by Radio Shaft. After all, the design isn't very complicated.....

Yes, we have been through this before, and I never made a definitive conclusion as to why I got the results I got.

Yes, we have been through this before and no one has ever done the side by side comparison that would duplicate my results.

Yes, we have been through this before and will again because no one will admit that the only way to find the truth is by a side by side comparison.

That would be the ideal scenario. However, it requires that I purchase one of these antennas that you are selling, and I don't care to risk my money on an antenna that purportedly defies the laws of physics with only marginal benefits, especially when my 102" whip does the job quite nicely and for a fraction of the cost. But you go right ahead and preach your version of "the truth" and I'll keep preaching common

I have always been up front and consistent with the specifics of this discussion. If you think I'm back pedaling it is most likely caused by your less than stellar reading comprehension.

Well, I once believed just as you do until I did take the time and spent the money to check things out myself. Tell me, who went farther to seek the truth?

Well, aren't you persistently making the claim that this antenna you're selling is better than a 102" whip? I would call -that- a definitive conclusion, wouldn't you?

>Yes, we have been through this before and no one has ever done the Ever think it's because bogus results can't be duplicated?

I agree 100%. But once again, since nobody should take anyone else's word on the subject, it requires a person to buy -both- antennas. Good way to sell antennas to morons; bad way to sell antennas to people with more than half a brain.

Now if you are willing to refund the purchase price and shipping if your antenna doesn't meet or exceed the performance of a 102" whip, be it SS or glass, then send me an order form. Otherwise, your sales pitch is lame.

Once again, you said "we should never trust the claim of others". But after that backfired in your face you qualified it with, "but it is Reading comprehension mistake on your part. Hint - the use of the word

"why"

False conclusion on your part. Hint - You believe I sell antennas.

If you agree that a side by side comparison is best then why not do it. I'll tell you the answer..... You'd rather argue with un provable hypothesis than seek the real truth by your own test.

I've suggested reasons for the results, but admitted that I don't have a definitive conclusion as to WHY the results were as is,nor do I have to in order to post the results.

The 102 is the best portable antenna you can buy, bottom line. (cheap too)

It takes a real CBer to drive around with one every day tho.

Do you have any hard test results to back up that claim? Has the X-terminator been used on a side by side basis with a 102" whip on say the Lockheed Martin ant test range or is it personal testing you have conducted? Is it just the Rat Shack whip you are comparing it to or other maunfacturers (like their is a helluva lot of them)?

You don't need a antenna test range to determine relative gains.
I can only confirm the antennas I have tested. The R-S 102"ss and the Workman X-Terminator are two of them.

Maybe so but what would convince an operator who has never used either to pick your choice of an ant over the other? Just because you said so?
Nothing you have posted has proven the relative worth of an X-terminator being a better ant than any 102" whip. General consesus on this board claims the 102" whip is superior to anything else. Not saying you are an agent for the X-terminator but where are the hard facts?

No. I said you don't have to believe me. The best I can do is to hope that someone's interest has been sparked enough so that they would do the side by side test them self. No one has bothered, so no one can do any better than hypothesize.

True, the general consensus is that I am wrong. Years ago the general consensus was that the world was flat.

I have no intention of keeping it -- I wouldn't -dare- drive around

I'm no bully, but I'd like to see him say the shit he has been posting the last couple years to my face.

What have I ever done to Tom to make him hate me so much? I almost -never- promote illegal CB. Now he's on my shit list, so we will see what surfaces.

The discussion so far has been on subject, direct, controversial but healthy. Much better than the normal topics out here.

How about I send you a deposit for the cost of the antenna, then when I return it you send the deposit back? Any problem with that?

hehehe hopefully you found an ant that is better than the whip and you will go down in the annals of history as another copernicus. cheers as its getting late on the east coast.

Okay, then how about this: I'll buy one of those antennas, and if it doesn't perform as well or better than a 9' whip then you agree to buy it from me for the price I paid plus shipping. After all, if the antenna is as good as you say it is then you shouldn't have any problem reselling it, right? So?

It looks like I have to explain once again exactly what I am saying.

No shortened antenna can beat a full 1/4 wave length antenna of good design. I have shown this in my tests. The X-Terminator can be beat by a 1/4 wave length antenna, but with the same tests the X-Terminator can beat the RS 102" ss whip.

Then how or why is the RS 102" whip a 'bad' design? Heck, it's just a straight, single piece of steel rod with a little ball on the end, just like every other SS whip, even the ones on cop cars. So what makes RS whips so bad that their performance is worse than a 5' loaded antenna? Or, if that's what you can't figure out, then what comprises a "good" design for a 1/4-wave whip? Selling it at a different store?
I hope not, since those whips aren't exclusive to Radio Shaft -- the store chain is only a distributor, not the manufacturer, and you can be certain that the same whips have been sold under other brand names.
Have you tried any other brand name 102" whips?

It's secondary and arguable as to why it does what it does. All one really has to know is what it does.

Well you sure don't seem too willing to put your money where your mouth is..... are you so financially strapped that you can't afford to take the risk on someone who has not only bought and sold radios in this newsgroup without any complaints, but has also sent free parts to some on occasion? Or is my identity so obscured that you think I'll disappear into the shadows with your precious antenna, never to be heard from again?

Naw, you're just making excuses because you are afraid of an objective test of your antenna. I'm suprised you didn't try to pre-empt my offer by suggesting that the results of any test I make will be biased, but then again you are kinda slow.....

Final offer: You find someone in my area with one of your antennas and we'll go test them up on the plains. The testing will be monitored by your volunteer so there will be no doubt about the results. Then I'll post the results in the newsgroup. How 'bout it, tnom?

But we only have your word on that, which seems to differ from the

I don't care what makes it bad. Do the test then you can hypothesize as to why it didn't perform.

Hello Skipp:

Hope all is well with you and your family.

All good info here.

The old guy down the road has beautiful duel 4CX1500 Linear Amplifier.
He has problems seeing, and believes the amp is used conservatively on the ham bands. He believes the Bird wattmeter slug he is using is a 1500 watt slug, in reality its a 2500 watt slug that gets slammed to the peg.
I didn't say anything to him about it.

Besides whats a few dB amongst friends..... Hehehehehee

Yup, drilled 4 holes in the back side in the center of the box and covered it with silicone and used a mirror mount. But with the 4 inch lift and the big mudders I had to tie it down to go through the drive through the car wash has a truck bay so no problems there. Mind you this is not my daily driver, not at 8mpg.

You can't make your point so you misrepresent. Like I said before.
You have never shown any reason for me to believe anything other than you being dishonest.

I have corrected your assumption.

No, I'm financially responsible. That means I'm not willing to risk my money on antennas based on purported claims of subjective tests from a single source that can't explain why the results don't obey the laws of physics. If you did then that's your problem, but don't expect me to be as foolish with -my- money as you are with yours.

Stainless steel doesn't oxidize (hence the qualifier "stainless"); and while it's conductivity is less than that of silver (and the same is true for chromium), both the diameter and power levels render any differences insignificant in practical use.

I don't post test results that defy the laws of physics.

You have corrected nothing -- your ideal design is impractical. A 1" silver pipe? Yeah, that will work just dandy for a 102" mobile whip!

1114. 4CX2500 Soviet Tetrode Tube

Hello All:

Here is a neat tube made the Soviets at Svetlana. Heard a lot about these tubes. Anyone using anything like this?

http://cgi.ebay.com/GU-84B-4CX2500A-Svetlana-Tube-Brand-New_W0QQitemZ5860040284QQcategoryZ48700QQrdZ1QQcmdZViewItem

Tube spec's at: http://www.qro-stuff.com/gu-84b.pdf

The neat thing about Tetrode Tubes, is that it can be designed to have a low input drive requirement for full output. With a step up transformer and a resistive load on the input circuit of this Tetrode Tube. The Pride DX-300 uses such a circuit with a 4CX250. So no driver is required as the Triode Tubes in a Grounded Grid design.

Anyone using one of these tubes?

Why the results?

You are not going to get a definitive answer from me, just conjecture.
Conjecturing with someone like you, a dishonorable person, is an endless loop. All we need are the facts. Just the facts. Go get the facts. Run the test and stop posturing.

Is this silver pipe solid or plated. If solid it is a waste of material and silver. Thick silver plating will suffice.

Besides diameter of the whip only affects tuning and not radiation pattern.

You don't need the 102" stainless. I will re-post two separate tests that confirmed that an antenna like the X-Terminator can perform better than the 102" stainless.

*The main reason I did the test in the first place was to debunk the notion that a short antenna like the X-Terminator could outperform the 102" stainless. I couldn't debunk it.

FIRST TEST

I have just completed another test of mobile antennas. Last time I posted the results of the 7' Firestik compared to the 108" whip.
The Firestik won by a small margin. This time six antennas were tested. They were kept anonymous to the signal readers until after the figures were compiled. Each antenna was assigned a letter. Here's the list:

108" stainless steel whip A 8' Francis Amazer B
7' Firestik C
6'6" Hustler top load D
5'4" X-Terminator double coil E
9' homemade 1" braid antenna F

A picture of these antennas and the mount is located in (alt.binaries.pictures).
The file is called (antennas.jpg)
* The braided antenna is not shown.
It was included in the test after the picture was taken.

The conditions of this test follow:

1. All connected to Hustler Quick disconnects
2. All used at 1.5 : 1 match or better
3. All tested with a constant tone, constant power transmitter
4. All used on a three magnet mount on the roof of a truck
5. All tested from a parked vehicle that never moved during the test
6. All tested within a very brief time period of each other (15 sec.)
7. All used two stationary receivers 14 miles away.

The analog S meter of a Kenwood and Tentec were used to compile these numbers. These numbers were averaged after numerous checks and rechecks to make sure the order of best to worst was accurate. Here they are:

Tentec: F, 3.1 S units
E, 3.05
A, 3
B, 2.85
D, 2.7
C, 2.65

Kenwood: F, 2.3 S units
E&B tied at 2.2
D-C tied at 2.15
A, 2.1

Two things come to mind.
1. All these antennas are close.
2. Antenna E, easily the shortest, outperformed or equaled everything except antenna * F

* (antenna F is an impractical antenna. It consist of a one inch wire braid covering a fiberglass rod 9' tall)

FOLLOW UP TEST

I won't dare say anything about the results. I'll just post the numbers. Comments welcome.

The antennas:

108" whip
7 foot Firestik
5'4" X- Terminator double coil

The conditions of this test follow:

1. All connected to Hustler Quick disconnects
2. All used at 1.5 : 1 match or better
3. All tested with a constant tone, constant power transmitter
4. All used on a three magnet mount on the roof of a truck
5. All tested from a parked vehicle that never moved during each test
6. All tested within a very brief time period of each other (15 sec.)
7. All used a stationary Kenwood 940 receiver.
8. 940 used a vertical beam free and clear of obstacles.
9. A video camera and 31" television was used to display a (31" S- METER) and record the results.

Thirteen mile free and clear test

108" 5.2 S-units
Firestik 5.3 S-units
X-Term 5.4 S-units

Thirteen mile in the middle of the woods test

108" 3.3 S-units
Firestik 3.7 S-units
X-Term 3.9 S-units

Twenty four mile free and clear test

108" .25 S-units
Firestik 1.3 S-units
X-Term 1.5 S-units

Steve is a disgrace to his family name.

Steve is a disgrace to amateur radio.

Steve is too far gone.

Poor Steve has no control over his own actions. He can do neither.

Welp, Steve's new attorney would probably recommend against the former, and has probably already advised the latter. Unless he's read up on Steve's comments about his new wife and her sleeping habits. Then his new attorney would probably beat Steve's ass himself.

Yep. Faster than a speeding epithet. Able to leap towering thimbles with a running jump.

Steve is the Activist Avenging Angel in a cape.

Years ago Jim N2EY suggest that Steve refrain from replying to Len.
Steve is simply incapable.

I offered to buy one of these antenna on the condition that you will buy it from me -IF- it doesn't perform as well or better than a 9' RS whip as per your alleged test results. If you had -any- confidence in your test results then there is absolutely no risk on your part, the financial 'burden' would be mine, and I would end up with a pretty good antenna (according to you). So how is that "asking for a handout"?

I saw an article in the USA Today last week about a former USMC lance corporal who has been telling folks he was a Colonel for about 50 years. So he was asked to speak at an engagement, and someone there began to question this guy's credentials. Now he's faced with 5 years of imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

And I'm still curious about Robeson's seven (7) hostile actions. When and where for starters.

Welp, I recall Jim Miccolis asking him why he keept replying to you, and more recently Jim Hampton asked him to refrain from posting.

All that's just covering up that Steve is not a good net citizen, and needs to apologize to all the folks he's offended over the years with his despicable claims. Then he needs to refrain from grossly off topic stuff such as who Mark sleeps with or who his new attorney's wife is sleeping with, dialing..., rocks through , slashed tires, and terrorized wives, homosexuality, pedophilia, and outrageous claims of what a macho marine he was (if he ever was a marine).

How you been, Len?

Anyone who has read my posts for the past few years knows that I'm not a person who uses the ad populum fallacy. As for physics, you have an open forum to explain the -complete- physics behind the two different antennas. Go for it.

Where did I change your numbers, tnom? I am suggesting you make the effort to research the reasons behind your results. The way it looks now, you don't care about the reasons just as long as the results agree with your opinion. That's not truth, tnom -- that's deception (and it's a good thing you aren't selling these antennas because you business practices).

I made the offer. If your test results are indeed "facts" as you claim then there should be no problem reimbursing my costs if my tests don't achieve the same results. Well?

The thing I like about the http://LivetoBe100.org site is that they keep coming up with this neat stuff that you never see on other sites.

The other day they posted a FREE 800 number for directory assistance. For both local numbers and long distance numbers. Just look at their web site and it is at the top of the middle column. I tried it. It works.

I don't know about you, ,but it really gripes me to have to pay those SOBs at the phone company $1.00 just to get a phone number.

Another thing they have there is a FREE online hearing. You can use the speakers on your computer of if you have headphones it is better.

Here's another antenna test post I dug out of the archives.

I did this test a few years ago (minus the Wilson), at least as best I could. The problem is that when swapping the magmounts the position might change a little bit. If the position changes a little bit then the measured field strength may change a little bit also.
Seeing how all of these antennas are very close to begin with then you have to wonder if the results may be off just a little bit?

Anyway's, I did run the test and attempted to calibrate the results in db's . The calibration may be off a little bit, but the order from the best to the worst as I measured IS accurate.

Radio Shack DLX magmount 0db
K-40 ..... .8db
Radio Shack 4.5' center load 1.4db
5' Firestik 3db
6.5" Hustler top load 4db
108' Stainless Steel whip 4.5db
7' Firestik 5db

Of coarse since the time of this test I have found and measured even better antennas. Of these the practical ones all use large diameter masting made of highly conductive material. A large diameter, air spaced loading coil. This coil is always upwardly located and the overall antenna height

You didn't debunk anything. The only thing you did was unnecessarily swamp the issue with your dribble and conjecture.It does nothing to prove that a 102'' Stainless Steel whip will outperform the X-Terminator. If you really wanted to prove it you'd run the test.
You don't because it would upset your thinking on antennas.

>Then, like now, you resorted to name-calling to back up your results.

I said you might have cooties, I said you are dishonorable, but I never resorted to name calling.

* I can now officially call you a name because you falsely accused me of name calling. The truth can now be said. You are a liar.

Thank you.. these are obviously good ideas.. but I'm no where in life.. therefore I have no car or license.. so doing that is impossible
.. and yah as earlier stated I don't have any friends.. so that's impossible too.. I had no idea that a antenna could be so sensitive... yes
I have set up mobiles in my brothers car once and it was nice and easy.. he's got another car and I haven't done it nor does he want it.. he probably just let me do it before as a favor... the basic problem is next to nothing low SWR and I had it just right.. it fucked up shortly after..
then I got it to like 1.7? and 2 at top of band.. but this faded away to 3 and a bit lower towards the lower of the band.. it's in the best possible place as far as trees.. no metal objects.. but this brings a question theres a window/wall unit near the mast.. and I take it that the metal of the mast is a major part of ground plane for the antenna?.
the antenna is high and away from metal structures
however as I mentioned the mast is near a wall/window type air conditioner unit.. that is not and has not been in use for ages.. I don't even think it was used at all since I've lived here.. bout a month I'm moving things are much clear.. but it wouldn't suprise me if I do have trouble.. so.. would an attempt to ground the mast to the chasis of the wall unit (a/c) do any good?.. I did learn a lesson once with a homemade 22 1/2 foot vertical element antenna I made.. which did better than this has shown so far.. I just simply had to umm you could say spread the ground radials.. and it was a whole other day.. yes I shouldn't give up and things get to me.. but.. working on something that tells you it's working right.. but then changes it's mind.. and you try to correct it.. 400 times etc.. for more than 2 hours.. it will drive you absulutely crazy

. and I know you know that.. it's not just me. any tips or helps something that I stupidly over looked.. let me know.. you can tell me that I'm a dummy for all I care.. not like it will ruin a day for me.. fucking with a goddamn antenna will do the same.. and if it really is a antenna problem.. then I may as well not even worry about setting the thing up.. cuz I just waisted money on the antenna.. and they don't take shit back.. nor do they give a receipt.
TIA

Hello Tnom:

Good going doing the testing. There are a lot of guys out there that do not test anything and just recite books. Usually the guys who write the books aren't the guys who design and test the antennas. And that testing data is held quiet in the companies files.

I hear this recited stuff all the time. But theres no substitute for hands on testing and comparison testing.

What was used for the field strength measuring device?

Uh Tnom, you can't make something a reference AFTER the test. That's not how you do a baseline.

Hi, been on CB since 1968. If you get the spring the whip tends to bend back quite a bit when doing high speeds. I used the spring only once early on. I got myself a quick connect and replaced the spring. Its about the same length as the spring. This way the whip does not bend back nearly as far which is better for transmission and reception being it remains mostly vertical. And the quick disconnect allows you to remove the whip quickly and put it in your trunk!! Done this for many many years!! I'm very pleased with it!!

Sociopathic in that Dudly can't understand others, is not Just another case of "Dudley-ism" (that late novelist Ernest K.

Gann wrote about). Impersonation. Wanna-be heroics, "standing tall" in uniforms, getting "respect" for showing a manly, fierce heroic visage. Still a FAKE, though.

Here in Hollywood those are known as "actors" and get paid for what they do. :-)

His battery is dead so he can't get the "starter" going.

He was NEVER IN any "seven hostile actions" (other than bar fights).

Those "seven hostile actions" would be recorded on his DD-214.
Problem is, he doesn't have any that can be recorded and he hasn't yet copied his DD-214, copied his "honorable discharge", or copied any sort of documentation proving his case.

He's got a vivid imagination. There is NO "attorney." Ergo, there's no "spouse" of that "attorney."

He isn't "getting any" either, hence the misogny.

Irrelevant. Jimmie has gone over to the "dark side" anyway, so all he can do is repost those bimonthly "active-duty ham" numbers. Davie condones Dudly. Davie and Dudly are very much alike: Can't tell either of them anything. :-)

Dudly will NOT refrain. He lives vicariously in his personna on the net, imagination in overdrive. It's probably better than his personal life.

>How you been, Len?

Very well, thank you. I just look in here about twice a week and see the usual Dudly Damnations of All Who Disagree With Him and then erase the Google message bundles. Those aren't worth the magnetic flux in microscopic areas of my hard drive. :-)

I have improved my skim-reading abilities, fast-forwarding through all those "argument" postings, the nonsense "FAQs" from across the Pond, and the Anony-mousies cussing up a storm. :-) Have you noticed that Dudly is picking up on an altered form of "anony-mousie"? :-)

Then why even waste your time telling me to run the test? You're not making any sense, tnom. My guess is that you changed -your- numbers, or fudged them during the test, to make them consistent with your anticipated results -regardless- of what you stated as your reason for running the tests, which was most likely a lie intented to add a false legitimacy to the results. After all, why would you (or anyone else

How is that charity, tnom? If the antenna works like you say then you aren't out a single penny. You can afford -nothing-, can't you? Or do you -expect- your antenna to fail the test? That seems more likely.

That's the plan, tnom -- or couldn't you understand what I wrote?
Here, I lay it out point by point:

1. I buy the antenna.
2. I test the antenna.

Still with me here? Good.....

If the antenna meets or exceeds the performance of a Radio Shack 102"
SS whip then I post the results with an apology, end of story, exit stage left, case closed.

BUT....

If the antenna -fails- then you buy the antenna for the price I paid.
Like I said in the other post, I'll even pay shipping. Do want a ham to monitor the test and provide independent verification of the results? I'm sure that won't be a problem.

So the -=ONLY=- way my test will cost you ANYTHING is if the antenna fails to perform according to the results of your test.

Now is there anything about my proposal that you don't understand?

Is there .....ANYONE..... in this newsgroup who doesn't understand what I just proposed?

So what'll it be, tnom? Are you going to back up your test or continue to play stupid?

The fool here is you, Dud. You have no idea what you're getting yourself into by pissing off Mope. Provoke the beast at your own risk.

I've backed my tests by exposing them to a newsgroup and encouraging

Well then you don't know the history behind me running the antenna

This test was done with an in sight very low power remote transmitter located about 200 yards away. A regular CB was used with low readings on the S-meter to give me a relative field strength. The exact S numbers were noted. Then next step was to calibrate the readings.

The db calculation were computed after taking the same CB and exciting
it with a variable power transmitter to see how the noted S-meter readings related to power output of the variable transmitter.

On this particular test I used a Radio Shack 27 mhz remote control car transmitter that was hooked to a oversized battery and left running until it stabilized.

Like I said, you can send a ham, or even a CBer friend, to monitor the test and provide independent verification. In fact, I would -prefer-that you send someone to monitor the test so you can't worm your way out of the deal by claiming the numbers were fudged.

>>Now is there anything about my proposal that you don't understand?

Then contact someone around here that you -do- trust. Or can't you find anyone that will lie on your behalf to save you a few bucks? How about I do the test at the next local field day? I'm sure there will be plenty of hams that would be eager and willing to see the results of this test. Are you saying that you can't trust a group of hams that have no other interest than to dispell RF voodoo?

Hmmmm..... I seem to recall that being part of the plan..... let's see now, where was that listed in the plan.....

>>1. I buy the antenna.

Yep, that was part of the plan alright.

You typed some numbers on a keyboard and CLAIMED to have done a test.
Now you're playing stupid.

I'll go one step further: I'll buy the antenna and do the test, and if the antenna performs according the results of your alleged test then I'll send you the antenna for free -- AND $200 to boot. If it fails then you just buy back the antenna. Is -that- a deal?

What? You can reference anything you want. Antenna manufacturers do it all the time. How do you think an Anrton gets its numbers?

Do you even know what a db is?

Seeing how you brought up the bending of the antenna.....
Another disadvantage of the 102" ss whip is the gain lost because of this bending. It is significant.

Gee, why am I not suprised that you resort to deceptive tactics when your test results are contested?

Do the right thing and accept the challenge, tnom.

I thought you said you used an SSB radio with a constant tone? I also seem to recall that your constant tone 'generator' was you whistling into the mic. Am I wrong or do I need to go swimming in google juice?

Where are your test results showing a "significant" loss of gain with a wind-bent antenna?

Oh, I have ideas but there is no way that I can make a complete and definitive accounting of why the numbers are as is. I will not even attempt to go that route. Going that route is like discussing abortion. The only thing you'll get is an argument.

The only thing of substance that was different was this

"After all, why would you (or anyone else for that matter) buy an expensive antenna when you expected it to fail? That doesn't make any sense either, tnom."

I guess I can answer that. It may be a waste of money for you but it's pennies to me.

Don't even need a test on this one.

1. It can be mathematically calculated. (I'll let you do that)

2. It looses gain bad enough that you can actually see it and hear it. Example :

Two vehicles are traveling together down the expressway at 75mph.
One uses a K-40. The other a 102" whip. Both appear to have similar maximum S-meter readings but the 102 " whips signal fades in and out
The K-40 does some fading but not nearly as deep as the 102".

Abortion is simple. I could summarize the problem in about four or five paragraphs, and the solution in one or two more. The antenna argument is even simpler. I have offered a solution which rewards you with a new antenna and $200 if what you say is true, but costs you only a gas fillup (and your integrity) if you lied. You have flatly rejected my offer. That, my friend, is a stronger argument than any EM theory you could assemble into a coherent explanation.

There must be something wrong with Usenet..... for some reason I can't seem to get the message through to tnom that I would be putting up the antenna -and- $200..... hello?..... testing 1, 2, 3, 4,..... is this darn thing working?

Then it shouldn't be a problem to gamble mere pennies to have your test verified independently. In fact, why don't you fly over and monitor the test for yourself, Mr. Moneybags? Unless you live in Timbuktu the lines will take longer than the flight. And just to make it worthwhile I can provide a whole itinerary of places to go and things to do while you're here. We have great skiing (49 Degrees North has about 70" at the base and 120" at the summit with 15" of new snow as of yesterday, and that's about the same for most of the resorts). The falls are flowing pretty high right now too, and there's a platform at the bottom where you can stand and feel the ground literally shake beneath your feet while you get wet from the spray. We have an Imax theater and huge ice-skating rink right in the middle of Riverfront Park. And I know this great little blues club that serves up some killer chicken wings. I also think there's a hamfest coming up soon. And I still have friends at the station who will let me take you on a tour so you can see what a -real- "driver" looks like. They might even let you climb the tower to replace the lamps (if you don't mind a little ice and bird shit).

So come on over, it'll be fun!!!

And I see on QRZ that K4CAP has been forked over to someone near Maxwell AFB, HQ of the Air Force's Civil Air Patrol (CAP). What a coincidence.

In your own words:

"If you really wanted to prove it you'd run the test. You don't because it would upset your thinking on antennas."

"A test is better than no test."

>1. It can be mathematically calculated. (I'll let you do that)

But I think this one is closer to the truth:

"You are not going to get a definitive answer from me, just conjecture."

Who's talking dbi ? I'm not. The reference was the RS deluxe mag mount. Referenced at 0db

As I explained. The order of best to worst is accurate. Calibrating the results into db is as explained below. Meaningless? I don't think so.

This test was done with an in sight very low power remote transmitter located about 200 yards away. A regular CB was used with low readings on the S-meter to give me a relative field strength. The exact S numbers were noted. Then next step was to calibrate the readings.

The db calculation were computed after taking the same CB and exciting
it with a variable power transmitter to see how the noted S-meter readings related to power output of the variable transmitter.

What doesn't make sense is you -refusing- $200 and a free antenna. If your test results are valid then that's what you get. But since I don't believe you ran a valid test, and you keep pushing people to buy the antenna and test it for themselves, it only seems right that you should have some sort of stake in this test. Since the antenna costs you only pennies then just how much of a risk is it to you, tnom?

Just to make it absolutely clear:

- I buy the antenna.

- You can monitor the test yourself, or send as many representatives as you like -- the more the merrier.

- If the antenna works like you say then you get the antenna, $200, a public apology, and I'll leave the newsgroup forever.

- If it doesn't then you buy the antenna for "pennies".

Well?

I expect you to do the test without any help from me.

I also expect you to have an independent trusted representative

Anything short of that is worthless as is your offer.

It has nothing to do with me not being confident in the results. It has to do with me not being confident in any of your assertions of a fair test. You have long ago lost my trust. Why should I start to trust you now?

I'll repeat. No test is necessary in my mind. I have seen the above scenario more than once. If you don't believe it then you test it.

I don't gamble and you have cooties anyway. Seeing how you can't afford this antenna why don't you use your self proclaimed expertise and make an appropriate substitute. Or maybe you can borrow one from one of your friends at the truck stop. You do have friends don't you?

Thats why you don't use a spring. Also, remember, antenna height is most of this hobby as far as how good you get out. A 102 inch whip is pretty high. Best for transmit and receive!

Oh, forgot to say when I used my 102 inch whip I mounted it with a tilt towards the front of the car slightly.
This way at 60 MPH it would stay pretty much vertical.

That's why I offered, many times, to have others present to monitor the test. Or didn't you read it the first six times I wrote it?

I know exactly what you wrote as your intended purpose of the test.
You've said it many, many times, and unlike you, I can read and understand something the -first- time.

What you -still- can't understand is that I believe your claim (as to your original intent) to be a lie. Regardless, my intent is to do the same; if my results are the same as yours, wouldn't that be a huge endorsement not just for the antenna, but also for your credibility?
If your results were valid then what do you have to lose?

I expect -you- to back up your claims. Your tests were contradictory in their data. Your data is unconfirmed as to its validity. Your conclusions exclude the very real possibility of error or unknown variables. You refuse to back up your conclusions with theoretical constructs or additional tests. And you stick to your guns as if your word was the Holy Gospel.

Yet when confronted with a challenge to your test, a challenge where you risk absolutely nothing (don't forget that you would get the antenna for your $25), with an objective and independently verified test, what you you do? You sit in the corner, pee on yourself and whine like Steve Robeson having his period.

Congratulations, tnom -- you just discredited both yourself -AND- the antenna you are trying to get people to buy.

BTW, the offer still stands.

An antenna is a reactive device. At only one frequency there is no inductive (too long) or capacitive (too short) reactance.

Acceptable bandwidth of 2.0:1 SWR is greater in full size antennas without loading coils or capacity hats. However, no fixed antenna will cover 12 to 10 without an adjustable matching network AT THE FEEDPOINT. An antenna tuner at the radio end of the coax only serves to make the radio see a happy 50 ohms but does not correct the mismatch at the antenna.

May I suggest a trip to your local public library and look in 621 for books to learn more then I can type to you in a reasonable amount of time.

This is somewhat irrelevant.
The test was made to show gain on zero degree radiation angle.
For CB-skip radiation angle mostly is between 10 and 20 degrees.

This test will not neccessarely show the maximum over all gain.
But the low radiation comparison is good for people who want to talk to other's in the same area whilst driving.

Only one thing is missing:

There is no comparison on different heights of mounting.
I bet there are some relevant -not really big- differences on some antennas mounted on 4ft, 8ft or 13ft height (car/ van/ truck).

BTW: I've never seen a 108 ft stainless steel whip... ;-)

Depends on what kind of antenna you want. A non-resonant antenna doesn't care what freq you feed it, but don't look for efficiency in a small package. A good non-resonant antenna would be a discone, but were talking a pretty good sized gizmo floating above your yard. At least the birds would love it.

If you're thinking a 1/2-wave dipole, there are a couple tricks you can try. A folded dipole has a much greater bandwidth than a standard dipole. You can get the same effect with a standard dipole by using a bandwidth compensation tank (an LC tank at the feedpoint and tuned to the center of the desired bandwidth). It works kinda like a passive auto-tuner over a limited range. I don't think either method will cover 12 to 10m, but at least it's a place for an experimenter to start. I would suggest the tank and play with the Q values.

Got news for you. Skip can be "talked" with as little as 10 MILLI watts!!
Granted, you need a good antenna and all the patience in the world for this kind of power level, but it is done. The hams call it "QRP"

It will be an interesting game for sure. The Hawks are one of the best NFL teams I've seen in years -- I'm really suprised that the Steelers are favored by 4 points. The only way Seattle can lose is if they rack up too many penalties or if Hasslebeck goes down, IMO.

No, he doesn't. Considering he lives in TN, I'm expecting to see a pic

Nope. I have a bit more firepower at my disposal than that.

Sorry I put little faith in S-meter readings. I would prefer a spectrum analyzer, a preamp and the test antenna to determine gain of the antenna.

That's why you don't use a spring. Also, remember, antenna height is most of this hobby as far as how good you get out. A 102 inch whip is pretty high. Best for transmit and receive!

Without the spring a good (not RS) 102" won't bend that much to make a difference. I've always had one on my trucks over the years. We did have a freezing rain storm a few years back, going 55 to 60mph the ice formation had it bent pretty good.

I was hoping this would come to an end as I have Frank on my killfile list and I still have to read his bullshit. Unfortunately I have to swallow my pride and agree with Frank, the 102" is king hands down. But if it makes you feel better Frank tends to either lie to prove his point or he simply has no clue when it comes to RF theory. He stated, and I quote "If you cannot get a cell signal you are unable to talk on 11m with 100 watts." He will try anything to get the bullshit started.

Since I am kill filing this thread (and many others) anyway.

just a word of advice, your ISP is now aware of your intent. should you carry it out, I am fairly certain that they will take action against you for failing to abide by the Terms of Service agreement you have, as well as the Acceptable Use Policy you agreed to.

do it and you'd better find yourself another ISP.

I remember back yonder in the late 1960s, early 70s.
I took an 8 foot florescent lamp and keyed up my radio and the 100 watt amp and locked it in transmit. Then I took the 8 foot lamp and held it next to my 102 inch whip. The lamp lit up full brightness. I was able to walk around 4 or 5 feet away from the antenna before the lamp would go out. It was pretty cool at night to see this 8 foot fluorescent bulb lit up and I being tossed it around. People on the road stopped to find out what the hell was going on!!!
Amazing what a bit of RF can do!!

There are some very disturbing things being said by amateurs about freebanders. Those of us who use the frequencies between the 11 and 10 meter bands aren't any different from licensed hams. We are good operators and have knowledge of propagation and skip conditions.
We use Yaseus, Kenwoods and Icom radios just like you do, so we know technical issues as well or better. It isn't like we've gone to the local Wal-Mart and bought a Cobra 40-channel close-out for $35, and attached a mag-mounted antenna. We've put thousands of dollars into our equipment, so we respect it and know how to use it.
However, the attitude of some hams toward us is rude and condescending. We are treated like 2nd class citizens, partly because we don't want to be part of the elitist "clique" that amateur radio has become. This should not be. We have the same rights under the constitution as legal hams do.
For those that do not wish to be under Uncle Sam's thumb, freebanding is a viable alternative to getting a ham radio license. What I am saying is that maybe the next time you meet a freebander it might be wise to talk with him before you condemn him.

Define "talk". Is that a keyclown term meaning 12db gain such as the X-Terminator is purported to have over a 108" whip? Is it like "bird watts" which are somehow better than real watts? Or "swing" which is considered better than PEP? And by the way, 100 watts is illegal on CB.

This is the same peice of garbage that's been floating around the radio groups for years. Not one word's been edited.

Freebanding's illegal and for good reason.

Freebanders are thieves. In usurping these frequencies for thier recreational activities, they have interrupted legal and often critical business and military communications. Freebanders can spin the dial and find themselves on another frequency...those land mobile users can't.

The letter tries to suggest that just because they use state of the art equipment they should be left alone. Bah. I don't care if they have Motorola tatooed on thier butts.

Oh really, besides not being licensed and operating without authorization in spectrum you have no business being in?

if you are such good operators, why haven't you gotten your tickets yet? is there some reason why you can't get your license? or is it that you don't feel like it?

so then, whats the matter with spending $10-$15.00 and taking a relatively easy test and being legal?

rude? condescending? more like "until you get your license, we are not allowed (by force of regulation) to speak with you". there are some in the ham community that would much rather you be drawn and quartered, for they have worked a lot harder than some to achieve their ham ticket (and the equipment with which they exercise that privilege). I am a little more forgiving, but only just (having been a former cb'er, I know the temptation that one has with trying to push the envelope and do what few others have done).

remember this, those who choose to exercise outside the law are still subject to its rules. Thats the way the current system works. Don't like it? get it changed, but quit whining about your illegal activities. all you do is serve notice to others how exceptionally foolish you are.

legal and proud of it!

winning.

Yep -- a solid offensive line and Hasslebeck making adjustments just before the snap (you'll see what I mean when you watch the game).

Naw, he could barely fit into those PJs when the pic was taken. By now he's probably limited to sweatpants and suspenders.

BTW, I forgot to thank you for the wake-up call -- I've leaned out at 210 and holding for about a year now. I didn't realize how much that extra flab took out of me until it was gone.

Probably a bit upset that that DD214 would probably keep you out

From what I see, anyone that operates a radio transmitter between those frequencies and not properly licensed is a law breaker. That does not equate illegal operation to legal operation. Just because the DoD seems to have abandoned the 27.5 to 28.0 MHz spectrum does not mean it is orphaned and any one can use.

Trust me if the DoD wants to used that frequency again, then be prepared to suffer the consequences.

Freebanders are squatters. They disdain the authority and the ability of the FCC and the Federal Government to allocate frequency spectrum.
Instaed they self employ the "Use it or Lose it" mentality. If no one is going to use it then we will. That is not like amatuer radio. Yes there are those within the frequency spectrum allocated to amatuer radio that do illegal operation. But to draw an analogy of Freeband usage and legal amature radio usage is a very large leap.

just my opinion

Hi Steve

Unfortunately it wont go away real fast! Since there is world wide use of 27-30MHz in many places where enforcement is too expensive or non existent, any officially sanctioned use of the band may as well be dropped. I dont like that personally but it is the reality of the situation. Fixing it in the US for example wont help interference issues that peak every 11 years!

And hey I have had to wade through Indonesians using 2m FM handy talkies on/near the input to OSCAR freqs. Its almost exciting at first until you find out they are comparing the size of their fish catch...

Sounds like a nice thing to do but I doubt effective. Its a distance from source problem. You cant effectively interfere with two stations a mile apart from (say) 20 miles away.

What would be nice if they allocated it to BPL instead! <grin>

OK, so in the real world we are never effected by "antenna efficiency", "ground loss" ect.ect.?

The test is as stated. It was never intended to be a lab test. It was intended to show what would happen if this particular test scenario was followed.

In the real world ground losses in a mobile installation are real and can be quite large. These losses affect efficiency and thus performance.

What you did is to show that there can be marked differences between antennae and their istallation. The more complex issue is, are these same differences repeatable from vehicle to vehicle and area to area?
I seriously doubt that they are.

freebanders aren't squatters they are users. several years ago whilst using 27.5 usb yakking with folks in connecticut a USAF C141 flew over and started a qso. talked with him when he was north of boston all the way to dover del. he wasn't preaching the 'missuse' of frequency allotment yet hams who have no right to pass judgement on a portion of the spectrum they have no say in like to blead about 'illegal' ops. 11 meters will always be home to dxers no matter what the u.s. government says. the signers of the ITU, especially in third world countries, dont have the will nor monetary resources to police those freqs. hehehe this is one instance where one can say f the fcc and they cant do sh*t. 73, jim.

Remember this:

the frequency band between 27.5 and 28. MHz is assigned to the DoD.
Anytime they wish to clear US users of that frequency they will. Trust me the penalties can be very harsh if you don't.

Also be designation of squatters, yes Freebander's are squatters.
They like you have determined that the frequency band is not being used and therefore Freebanders have taken on as their mantra of use it or lose it. So in a since you are squatters on someone elses frequency allocation.

I don't pass judgement. I am just informing you of potential consequences. Oneday the owners may just decide to remove you. Then again they may not. You play the game and takes your chances. Don't come crying to me when you get smacked hard.

And might I gently enquire as to why this has been cross-posted to 3 different groups?

As to knowlege, I note discussion concerning stainless steel whips versus silver plated whips. Hmmmm .... is anyone aware of the radiation resistance of a vertical? How about a dipole? Does anyone think (considering that even a stainless steel whip is not a small wire) that .1 ohm (or even 1 whole ohm) is going to make any discernable difference in a signal when the radiation resistance is 36 ohms for a vertical or 72 ohms for a dipole? Not to mention that most of the radiation occurs near the feedpoint; very little near the ends. Of course, a poor ground connection can result in a lot more loss, but that is not what I am addressing.

Of course, it can be pointed out that antenna tuners use large copper coils, often silver plated. Ever consider that in a circuit that has large circulating currents that .1 ohm may be huge? In some loop antennas at even the 100 watt level, currents in a capacitor or feed loop can be many tens (or even hundreds) of amps. In that case, you want very low resistance or you may loose most of your signal.

Whilst you try to make a point, a friend of mine in British Columbia is constructing a phased 80 meter array. I suspect that might be a bit out of your league, but I could be wrong. I had one fellow trying to claim there was no such thing when I mentioned end-fire or broadside arrays. He thought I was blowing smoke. Sigh ...

Whilst you try to paint amateurs as elitist, I've never had a problem with new folks using cb lingo and certainly wouldn't put them down for it. I suspect, however, that the biggest problem is that folks who claim they don't want the amateur license do so for one of two reasons. Either they don't want to have to take the tests, or they don't like regulations. Mostly the latter.

As has been pointed out, the regulations are there for a similar reason that there exist regulations for driving on highways. Back in the early 20th century, there was little or no need to regulate either radio or driving as there were few radio stations and very few horseless carriages. Things change. Get used to it.

With all due regards from Rochester, NY
Jim

you obviously didn't get it. quit towing the line of the us government as they have no power on the 11 meter band. Its foreign lands who have no control over their operators hence no control over what propogation brings to u.s. soil. good luck, you are going to need it...

Hello, Frank

One could always go with a log-periodic array.

Or a very short, very fat vertical.

Or a Heathkit Cantenna. Very low noise pick-up :)))

Because it's a troll.

Ideally.

Not entirely accurate. The EM wave is a product of both the high current -and- the high voltage segments of the antenna. That's why a center-loaded 1/4-wave vertical works better than a bottom-loader, all else being equal.

Hudreds of amps at 100 watts? Not a very common occurance in 11m equipment.

How about because the interests of the radio hobbyist (which may be a more appropriate term than 'amateur') may not be covered by the scope of the ARS? or maybe because the thought of being stereotyped as a nacho-addicted disaster-junkie isn't too appealing? I've heard several other reasons over the years; however, none of them were valid enough to justify freebanding, IMO.

Regulations are fine. Dictatorial mandates from the FCC aren't.
Freebanding won't solve the problem but neither will nagging.

The above was posted in the rec.radio.amateur group back in 2001 and was immediately followed up by the same two amateurs involved in -this-thread..Eric Oyen and Steve Robeson. Robeson illustrated his disdain with those he disagrees on several occasion with nothing but personal insult and Oyen, well, Oyen has been called out in the past for responding to what he knew were forges and has plainly illustrated numerous times the blight he is to amateur radio. The both of them are shitbags and of the worst example amateur radio has to offer. In any event, I'm glad to see you are still trying to regain your confidence after all these years of worship.

Hammies and dog-pound refugees would do well to read my scintillating prose and learned insights on the fine art of freebanding. A pet peeve of mine is that hammies (certain ones) put down radio hobbyists like myself just because they are CBers and just because they use gear that's advanced. I have logged more DX on the freeband than most 2 meter hams have in a lifetime. Why shouldn't I be treated with respect? All I am asking is that the issue of legality be put aside and my acheivements be recognized for what they are.

http://sporadicwaves.tripod.com/page7.html

If you take the time to read this you will see that we on freeband have problems with troublemakers too. They don't abide by our rules.
They don't care what others think. They jam and make noises on 27.555.
Read about it in my article. They are wrecking my freeband and they should be stopped.

http://sporadicwaves.tripod.com/page7.html

I admit I get all upset when hammies tell me I am breaking rules. I don't care about rules. I don't care what others think. If I want to operate freeband it is my responsibility and I don't like to hear anyone putting me down for it. Read about how we have created our own little illegal alternative to ham radio on the freeband. You hammies can be jealous.

http://sporadicwaves.tripod.com/page7.html

Hammies try to say that there are goverment users on 27.555 and above. I have never heard any myself so that proves there are none.
Because of course what I say is true and everyone else is a liar.
Read my wonderful prose and see for yourself.

http://sporadicwaves.tripod.com/page7.html

Geniuses like me don't need to obey laws since we are above the masses. Take that, you pussy-footed hams.

That lure has lost its luster but it still hooks a few when presented. :)

Dear all CBer!

I put eQSO server for CBer on Internet on every weekend. I could QSO many stations. Thank you very much. Anybody can access this server. Because I make room [27MHZDX],
I hope it to be used for communication of a CBer of World Wide.

1) Operating Time: From 1300 on 2nd to 1500 on 5thFEB (GMT)
2) Server Name: slpr422.no-ip.info Port: 10024 PASS WORAD [Blank]
3) How to introduce eQSO.
Please look http://www.446user.co.uk/modules.php?op=modload&name=Downloads&file=index&req=viewdownload &cid=3
And Download, Install “eQSO for PMR446 ”
4) Please before connect setting your Call.
5) Please put down your name and QTH to Comment line, and click “send” Button.
6) You can see condition of network; click “See who’s on the system”
7) Many Japanese have connected with my server.
8) Japanese time is GMT+9H
9) I described the situation of CB of Japan in English to the following URL.
Therefore, Japanese people's expectation for eQSO is great.
http://yasuo.k-server.org/FX886/situetion.htm
Since Japanese people are LINK with SLPR422, your voice may be transmitted by 422MHz in Japan.
I have many CBer and experience of communication by eQSO.

A 'super heterodyne' (superhet) is a receiver that does not amplify the signal at its original frequency only, but converts it to a fixed intermediate frequency, (with a mixer) and then amplifies it.
The advantage is that fixed filters can be used, at a lower frequency (usually), so for example crystal or keramic or surface acoustic wave filters can be used.

In a 'double' superhet the signal is again mixed to a lower frequency.
So 2 mixers and 2 intermediate frequencies.
This could be because the first IF (intermediate frequency) is for example the width of a whole band, while the second is the width of one station (provides the selectivity).
There may be other reasons too, depending on the system the transmitter uses, frequency synthesizer, modulation methods supported etc..

In general one could expect a 'double superhet' to have a better performance.

Disadvantages of superheterodynes are 'mirror' frequencies, as mixing a signal with a local oscillator gives both a sum and difference frequency.
So you may find stations 2x if it is not done correctly.
Also some linearity issues will apply to mixing.

Like many Alpha Tango members I have DXed over 100 confirmed countries on 12 whiskey SSB, worldwide without the need for license or expense of ham radio.

I have everything a man could ask for without the additional volunteer headache Uncle Charlie could induce by means of harassment.
Besides,,I like the freeband way better than the HF hammie bands and repeaters.

And I do it barefoot 99% of the time..only time I use power, is when it's something really rare and I have exhausted myself with my 3 watts..then, and only then, I may elect to toss out a hundred watts,,,maximum. That "crime" is less than the fine and imprisonment that you can get for taping a movie from HBO.

No cber has been prosecuted (during this or the last administration) for merely operating an amp or talking DX or freebanding without receiveing a warning. So, to set the record straight, a warning letter outlining the infractions is to be issued to the offending station as a warning.
Fail to heed the warning and you may find yourself facing a fine.
Underline the word "may". This reduces the relative risk and associated penalty to a petty infraction comparable to jaywalking.

I have spoken to Mr. Hollingsworth personally, and I can assure you, even if he thinks that slightly exceeding power limits is ok, he can't verbalize it due his present position.

There are many hammies on the freeband...and guess what? They are cool as all get out!!! Us cbersare a friendlier lot. We really don'tgive a rat's azz if a hammie talks on cb,,,we'lll talk to him anyways...probably why they come on down in the first place,,,so they can escape the frequency fuzz and just......enjoy radio.

Organized, long term freebanders are very aware where they operate and take great measure to ensure against talking on an amateur f requency or one that isn't heavily used on the freeband.
If the non-U.S. stations can operate ssb there, why shouldn't I, especially if I want to have a nice DX contact with one of them?

Many of us LIKE the law as it is, it keeps "yes men" off the freqs. Same analogy as the gun issue...when guns are outlawed only outlaws will have guns...no, yoo won't find many freebanders lobbying fo r change to open the freqs because the law as it reads, doesn't bug us.

No rationalization is even needed except to reply to folks that repeatedly ask over and over, "Why?" It is these folks that feel they need a reason why we do what we do, not us.

"There are some very disturbing things being said by amateurs about freebanders. Those of us who use the frequencies between the 11 and 10 meter bands aren't any different from licensed hams."

Yes you are different, you break the law.

" We use Yaseus, Kenwoods and Icom radios just like you do,"

And use them illegally.

"so we know technical issues as well or better."

That is highly debatable.

"We are treated like 2nd class citizens,"

I agree, you should not be treated as 2nd class citizens, you should be treated as the lawbreakers you are.

" We have the same rights under the constitution as legal hams do."

Please show where the Consitution gives you the right to break the law.
Hams have a right to use the airwaves by virtue of the fact they have obtained a license that gives them the right, you have not.

If you don't want to be treated as a criminal, then don't be a criminal.

"Why shouldn't I be treated with respect?"

Do something respectful and you might be. Breaking the law isn't respectful.

"All I am asking is that the issue of legality be put aside and my acheivements be recognized for what they are. "

I suppose the legality of robbing banks should be put aside and the thief should be respected for acheiving wealth.

"Hammies try to say that there are goverment users on 27.555 and above. I have never heard any myself so that proves there are none. "

Doesn't matter if you have never heard any users on those frequencies, those frequencies are allocated. Just because you see an automobile that appears to you that no one is using it, doesn't give you the right to take it, but then you are a lawbreaker so you thinking isn't very logical.

You obvisously don't understand that the FCC can shut down all US operations on teh 11 M band if they so choose so irregardless of what other countries are doing.

Just because other countries do not exercise control over their operators in the 11 M does not mean that the FFC is powerless. Currently the 11M band is allowed to waddle in its chaos because of lack of budget and other issues that make 11 M band issues far down to the priority list. Just because the 11M band is at the bottom of th elist does not mean the FCC is oblivious to the illegal operations that go on within the legitamate 40 channels and what happens outside the 40 channels.

Good luck to you.

I don't break the law in the exercise of my sexuality Mr Steve Slit what I enjoy wether you like it or not is not against the law guess you have been follwing the news

but back tothe topic

the Freebanders have ervery right to break the law if they choose, and the FCC should be trying harder to make them pay for doing so. it is

If you want to use the semantical argument, you have the right to -choose- even though you may not have the right to actually -commit-the crime. Or, from a social viewpoint, you may have the -natural-right to do anything within the limits of your abilities, but that doesn't mean you have the same -legal- right.

It's the capacity for rational thought that gives us the ability to distinguish between what is 'right' and what is 'wrong'. It also draws a line of seperation between men and monkeys.....

An -act- may or may not be a -crime-. For example, homocide is an act that might be committed in self-defense. That's not a crime since the act is justified. Even HDT acknowledged that there are no justifiable crimes.

>but oer all freebanding is low on the pole of sins against mankind

True. Nor does it rank among the top ten as crimes that "serve some higher good".

being what if anyting do we as a gruop do about it do we divert enforcement resources there? (good pratical reasons not to exist)do we allocate the araeas of RF they use to ARS and or CN band

1394. Intro to Freebanding

In preparation for your new adventures on the freeband, there are a few things that you must be willing to change as far as your previous operating habits. The main thing to realize is that almost all operating techniques that you have learned or developed while operating your CB radio on the standard AM channels 1 - 40, no longer apply while operating single sideband mode on the Freeband. Operating on the freeband is a totally different world that requires totally new and different procedures for development of acceptable operating techniques.

Gone are the CB handles, gone are the 10-codes, gone are the toys, noisemaker gizmos and ECHO microphones that have proliferated over the years on the AM CB band. Gone is the use of CB lingo and jargons. Gone is the use of channel numbers ....You will now be referring to frequencies instead. As you will soon see, there are many things different about 11 meter Freeband DXing that you will need to know.

It is the intent of Freeband Land 11 Meter DX Academy to provide you, the new 11 meter Freeband DXer, with an accurate, concise and useful source of 11 Meter DXing information that focuses on acceptable operating techniques rather than serving as an exclusive resource for other activities related to 11 meter DXing.

Freeband Land 11 Meter DX Academy will try to guide you toward a better understanding of the world of Freeband DXing by informing you, up front, of what to expect. It is perhaps different than what you have been used to.... but don't be intimidated by it ! Just spend a little time to learn about it ! In addition to the written information here at the Academy, you can implement another very important process of learning. It's called listening .

When you hear what sounds like a serious DX QSO (On air conversation) in progress, listen to the operators. Take note of their techniques and mannerisms. Listen for unfamiliar words, phrases and uses of numbers that seem to be showing up quit often during on the air QSOs. To the experienced DXer, the use of these keywords and numbers simply reflect now instinctive and acceptable operating procedures that all contribute to creating the preferred radio environment. They would have it no other way!

Listen for DXpeditions or Special Event Stations while they are active. On a good day, you will hear the proper use of preferred and specific techniques by operators attempting to work the event. On a more typical day, you may be earwitness to classic examples of how NOT to work these special activations! We will be discussing the topic of working DXpeditions and Special Event Stations in an upcoming " lesson".

As long as criminals continue to control the White House and Capitol Hill, and as long as freebanders aren't jamming legal comm, I don't really care. I just hate lame excuses.

Dudly is an easy case. He's socially isolated and has low self-esteem.
He gives value to his accomplishments by how he thinks they are valued by others, and so measures his self-worth from his limited view of society. But because of this narrow perception, he sees himself as an underachiever. Subsequently, he overcompensates with passive-agressive behavior and self-aggrandizing lies, always being very careful not to expose any flaw that could possibly scratch the false image he is trying to present to others.

IOW, he's the type of person who is obsessive about keeping his house immaculately clean, but only where others can see; the attic is full of junk, the cellar is infested with rats, the dishwasher is loaded with maggots, and the whole house reeks from too many air fresheners.

Does that clear things up?

Mopeydopey stars as a gay morse operator who intercepts gay cowboys' telegrams setting up their liasons and then goes to those meetings as the 3rd guy in a bootie sandwich.

"I haven't had this much fun since I starred in "Saving Ryan's Privates", gushed mopeyqueen. He did express disappointment that the producers rejected his suggestion for a title, saying "I thought "Bareback Mountain" more accurately described the "thrust" of this movie, but the front office didn't like it."

Hello, Frank

You make a very good point. I bit hard on what was probably planted by the American Kennel Club LOL.

As to the radiation resistance, you are correct - the type of ground and distance over that ground will affect the radiation resistance considerably. My point was that an extra ohm in the resistance of the antenna will likely not be noticeable unless you are talking about loop (or, of course, a tank circuit). Circulating currents in resonant circuits can (possibly) be extreme.

As to the put-down, I think I owe an apology to a lot of folks. I bit pretty hard on the hook .... :))

Again, your point is well taken.

The theory is that such crimes harm the community as a whole rather than just an individual. But that's only a theory and is frequently contradicted by facts. Regardless, crimes are defined by law, not by the victims (or lack thereof).

Hello, Twist

Give at least 10 dB to cw. For PSK-31, give 20 dB. This means that a 1.5 KW signal running PSK-31 will be equal to 150 KW on SSB. Give another 6 dB against AM. This means that a 1.5 KW PSK signal can bust through an AM station running less than 600,000 watts. At least giving the same receiving station and the transmitting stations being located near each other. Believe it or not. If one is judicious in selecting the exact frequency, the audio components are not equally spread. In that case .... one can overcome even worse odds.

That said, you can run 100,000 watts and if you're twenty miles from two walkie-talkies 50 feet apart .... :((

Of course, we won't talk about the time we ran 40,000 watts into a rhombic 600 feet on a leg 200 feet in the air over salt water. The big boys were running S-2 to S-3 and we got reports of 40 over 9 :)))

Of course, now we are talking about big time ....

Hey, how's the fishing? Haven't heard from you in a bit. Send an e-mail, dangit!

"not on Freeband CB "

There is no such thing as "freeband cb" you idiot. Freebanders aren't cbers and cbers aren't freebanders. There is no such thing as the freeband, all those frequencies are allocated to other services.

Yeah, but unless you are doing it UNLICENSED there's no risk and no thrill, it's not like on the freeband where I'm a runnin' wild with no respect fer law or tradition, flyin' in the face of hammiedom and Uncle Charlie, I tell ya Jim, there ain't nothing like it. Garb a hunk of jockstrap, give it a big ole sniff, snap on the linear and holler AUDIOOOO or whistle and thunk and speak in rhymes and fake call letters we make up on the spot, you oughta try it, you might take to it.

What's wrong with a little crack cocaine? Even better is to sniff a used jock strap. Take it off the wall, get a big old sniff, and go a' freebanding, yelling and making noises like a monkey with fake call letters. I can talk to saucer men on freeband any time I want. I even had a personal phone call from Riley H. and he told me, I swear ta God, that he did not give a crap about illegal freebanders and that I could run as much power as I want on any frequency I want. Of course he can't publicly admit this you see, but I know it to be true, true, true. Because Twistedhed knows all and can do things the average citizen cannot, because he is special and not of the common folk who must obey laws and conform to society. Bah, I pee on society's rules. I am a freeband outlaw prince and the swamplands of Tampa Bay are my kingdom. Come on by, the fishin' is fine. Third stump from the end of the dirt road. Just honk your horn, I'll come a runnin'.

I'm an "underachiver" only in that there's ALWAYS something better

It's called "goals".

You should set some for yourself someday, Frankie.

The Realistic TRC-57, 457, 458, 459, and the 490 are very hot items. They are base station radios do both Sidebands, as well as the Standard AM 40 channels (except for the 57, it does 23) They also have a clock built in (except for the 458 and 490). They go on eBay for close to $100. I once saw a 457 go for over $300. If you're not looking for sideband, then the TRC-30A, 55, 431, 432, 433, 440, 441, 455, 492, or the 495 would be best. The 55 and 455 both have the clock in it, but they are the mechanical ones.

Another Popular Item is the Realistic TRC-24C. It's the simple 23 channel mobile radio. They tend to do better in cold weather than the syn. 40 channel radio. They also sound good, too. The only down side is that the meters don't work on them.If you still want a 40 channel, then the 467 or the 503 would be my recommendation.

Newer Radios? Well... if you're looking for a base... The TRC-495 was the last base station ever built (which was in 1995). As far as mobiles are concerned, today's radios just don't do as well as the older ones. However, the TRC-502, 503, and 504 are semi-decent. The 504 actually sounds pretty good. You can get a new 503 at RadioShack for $39.99.

Eh, what about the "new" models of Cobra and Uniden radios out there ? I've not been in a Radio Shack store for close to 6 months probably. Considering I used to frequent them at least every other week if not every week.

Unfortunately, I don't know anything about the Cobras and Unidens. The only thing I know was that the RS TRC444, 445, 446, & 447 were made by Cobra. That's about it.

Depends on the interest in AR Ace!

A project I want to look into is using very low data rate (less than 10Hz b/w) on the 13.5Mhz non license band to transmit GPS data from my car - so the family knows where I am! I suspect that given the b/w in use the range using low power will be exceptional.

Realising that one can just pick up the phone, but thats one of the first things to break in an emergency!

Its actually a more difficult project than would first seem. One needs very high stability and low phase noise oscillators.

I'll admit though that QRO is great for those cold nights out in the shack!

1446. Looking for CB model number of Midland unit...

I am looking for the model # of a Midland SSB Base CB radio made in the late 70's. The unit itself looks identical to the 13-976C pictured in this eBay auction.
(http://cgi.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=6478890237)

The above unit is, of course, a 23 Channel radio. What I am looking for is the model # of the "updated" version of this radio, the 40 channel PLL controlled model. Any idea what the model is??

Thanks!

Way to go! Nice antenna. You're going to be one to be reckoned with now

I know your area gets more dx from the east coast of Fl as opposed to

I'm going to learn you some more, now, so pay attention. Freebanders aren't cbers and cb'ers aren't freebanders is as to amateur operators aren't cb'ers and cb'ers aren't amateur operators. Please don't hurt yourself.

> There is no such thing as the >freeband,

Freeband refers to the operation on unauthorized and under utilized freqs and does not usually apply to amature freqs. However, things may be changing. With the dumbing down of licensing, there exist all kinds of freebanding or "pirating" taking place on the amateur freqs. Apply any definition you need, the facts do not change.

>all those frequencies are allocated >to other services.

Not so. Since we last explored the subject, I do believe several of those allocations have expired. Of those that are assigned, many were abandoned. Have yourself a merry little,,no, that's not right. Have a good night.

For good reason:

1. They advocate free-banding on the HF aeronautical frequencies (which aircraft utilize for transoceanic communications);
2. They're federal lawbreakers.

For good reason:

Unreal. Here we have a member of the U.S. Coast Guard and a University of Hawaii "mathematics lecturer" making the false assumption one's behavior equals advocating it to another. Take this up with one of the professors or one of your students so they can explain your faux pas.

KB2SMS becoming inseparable with the call of N8WWM? I must admit, I'm not that surprised, especially since this dude appears to share Lelnad's outspoken affinity for men's testicular wear and Dogie's penchant for homosexual talk. Quite the epicene trio.

KB2SMS becoming inseparable with the call of N8WWM? I must admit, I'm not that surprised, especially since this dude appears to share Lelnad's outspoken affinity for men's testicular wear and Dogie's penchant for homosexual talk. Quite the epicene trio.

Those felon criminals seem to stick together, in rrcb.

no spell check under Google and none under my other newsreader

I'll apologize ot your for your eyes but the demand made under threat (good mr ky4z has made plenty) that I must use one is something I refuse the exra time is just too costly and I do nothing under threat

I could get spelcheck for some fee on the other newreader but with it is being demanded I refuse on principle

hey twist, used to do the same commute between nj and the island. had the 2510 (hi hi steve) in the mobile and yakked with a certain young lady in new zealand for close to 8 months every friday night. later started screwing with the locals by shouting that i was from finland/norway while on the commute and telling them it was a long wave call through the poles. they finally wised up and we all had a good laugh.

Notice I no longer post using the name Twistedhed. The heat got too hot for this good ole boy. Leland and N8 got the best of me and I had to flee or admit my radio hobby was illegal, so I fled. However you can still hear me on freeband when I whistle and make oink noises on 555, but I am kind of scared to ID lest the FCC and CIA posse DF me. But I still have my jockstrap on the wall, no one can ever take that away from me.

Eh, Fucknuts, those that throw stones inside a glass house......

Saggytits Lee steps on his own tiny dick when he tried to correct somebody else's English use first by saying one "operates" a dictionary instead of reading it, then uses "things" instead of "thinks" in <jewish.reggae.rocks@houston-hunks.com>:

"Translation: Woger can't figure out how to operate a dictionary, let alone correct someone else's language.But that's not surprising from someone who things that..."

Saggytits Lee manages to fumble again when he tried to backpedal on his improper use of words by once again mangling the sentence in reply <gweasy.long.hair@houston-hunks.com>:
"The word "operate" can be a synonym "use" in certain contexts"

Saggytits Lee (SLee@houston-hunks.com) talks out of his fat ignorant ass again in:
<secwet.googley.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"did you know, Woger, that some of the anonymous remailers are operated by the CIA?"

Saggytits Lee fucks up again and thinks Roger Wiseman has "long hair"
in

"Long hair like yours"

Saggy tits Lee, unthinking fuckwit, apologizes and makes excuses for his lack of rational reasoning ability in Message-ID:

of writing coherent sentences after all."

in <a75t70$3b5$0@dosa.alt.net>:

"Eric Clapton even wrote a song about Leila!"

"Stagger Backpedal BOY Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> blathered more idiocy when he tried to backpedal out of his fuckup in message <ab8mq.cant.touch.k8mn@houston-hunks.com>:

Stupid Lee (Stagger Lee@ houston-hunks.com) provides yet another example of his idiocy in

"That's because transmission line loss and SWR are not directly related."

Then what is at http://www.geocities.com/skywarncanwarn/ doodle brain?
It sure looks like the Marshall County ARES, and it even has a place to send email.

"Fuckup Shemale Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> whined like a fucking spoiled little girl (which he is) in <3brnq721213nsld2no15@houston-hunks.com>:
" I dare you to..."

Fuckup Lee will have his hypocrisy pointed out to him again the next time he posts my quotes in <aimrjv$l8g$0@pita.alt.net>:
"Didn't I say that your quoting of message IDs is pointless?"

Faggot Lee posts the following slobber, not realizing his own whining and netKKKoping past in <3C8BA6A5.19219DD3@houston-hunks.com>:
"You don't like it? I suggest that you use your OE news filters, or simply skip the thread. No one is forcing you to read it, and you sure as hell aren't going to get any of the participants to stop."

Faggot Lee admits he and the other anonymous cowards being owned by AB8MQ in <3C93E88F.932B5343@houston-hunks.com>:

"Wiseman (who, by the way, "owns" us)"

Faggot Lee <SLee@houston-hunks.com> confirms his SPANKARD status with the following whine but the BITCH still follows up like a good puppy dog in <a9c75dgon0@dosa.alt.net >:
"Basically, Wiseman bores me now, and I won't waste time on his replies [blah blah blah]"

AIDS INFECTED BABY RAPER "Fuckup Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> proud of his illiteracy states the obvious in message <986143249.3a@huffs-on-houston-dicks.com>:
"I normally don't read"

Faggot Stagger Lee confesses he and his family get this way when the prospect of licking testicles (something he doesn't have) is made available in < 12417$Y17.5988@houston-hunks.com>:

"We are overjoyed."

Fuckwit Lee finally admits his SPANK at AB8MQ's hands yet another time
in 3C4AE592.6A0CDA7E@houston-hunks.com:
"[Any followups by Wiseman will be ignored.]"

Fuckup Lee, who fails to "grasp" the concept that "slander" is spoken and "libel" is written, would be better served if he just stuck to grasping nutsacks, incoherently babbled in <3C4AE592.6A0CDA7E@houston-hunks.com>:

"COTSE seemed to have the laughable notion that what Wiseman was doing was exercising freedom of speech. Slander is of course not protected speech in the US, but the concept that even free speech has its limits seemed to be impossible for Steve Gielda -- COTSE's owner -- to grasp."

Chickenshit COWARD Faggot Lee pathetically tries to justify his hiding behind anonymity in <3B8FFFF5.143FA347@houston-hunks.com>:

"...readers have already had uninvited people show up at their homes, have had people subscribe them to magazines and book clubs, have received hang-up calls in the middle of the night, have had poison pen letters written to their neighbors and employers, and have had poison pen email sent to their ISPs in an attempt to get their accounts canceled. That's not a "what if" scenario either: It has happened repeatedly to certain members of these news groups, yours truly included

(one person has emailed repeated lies to Altopia in an attempt to learn my identity). One of our readers has even had to go to the courts and obtain an injunction against one of those nuts.
I choose not to give insane people like that any kind of edge in physically locating me, and if you think that's "cowardice", you are only demonstrating your profound ignorance of Usenet and of the kind of people who read these posts."

Then the no-balls coward ends his feminine cuntly whining with:
"And do you know what else? I AM SICK TO DEATH OF THOSE WHO REPEAT YOUR TIRED OLD, IGNORANT REFRAIN. Until you learn a few things, you ought to shut your arrogant mouth."

Staggering Drunk Lee, the "Pulitzer prize award-winning writer" slobbered
the following Ebonics in <9a56ue$hi0$0@dosa.alt.net>:

"I hope yourself takes the advice you are giving to yourself."

SPANKARD Faggot Lee admits he's cross posted in order to help his pathetic, syphilitic ass win a flame war, if you can read his chicken scratching EBONICS
in <3AA5A686.E2ACE517@some.net>:

"I have seen to it that some of JBO's irrational posts show up in alt.2600, because the owner of cotse practically lives there (tell you something?), and I wanted the owner of cotse to ?>xperience JBO's posts first hand. Cotse is doing a service to no one when t confuses freedom with license -- the typical error of the neophyte do->ooder -- and Roger's posts are a prime example of the typical esults that error."

Child abuser and FUCKUP Shemale Lee (SLee@houston-hunks.com) whined to
the newsgroups as usual and admitted his defeat with a SPANKING by plonk and his repressed wish to suck sperm by projecting it onto others in <kc8jbo.sucks.sperm@houston-hunks.com>:
"You know what? I think I'm going to add cotse and mailandnews.com to my filtering rules. I'm bored with you, Mr. Scatologist....<plonk>"

SLee@houston-hunks.com (Stagger Lee) confessed to his SPANKARD status in <nuking.waldo@houston-hunks.com>:
"Waldo has the honor of being the first poster in this news group that I've ever killfiled. To make sure he stays killed, all posts and all followups to posts from mailusenet.com will be nuked before I ever see them."

Fuckwit SLee@houston-hunks.com (Stagger Lee) supports illegal computer activities and terrorism in MsgId:
<pimple.on.my.ass@houston-hunks.com>:

"But I am delighted that cotse was hacked and DOSed to the point that it can't operate this weekend."

STUPID ASS "Stagger "king of wishful thinking" Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> blathered out of his well-reamed ass his hope to regain some face in message <0428120427.2115@houston-hunks.com>:

"One guess has it that KC8JBO lost his ability to post through cotse"

"Stagger Pee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> whined like a little girl in message
news:04630.10999.00@houston-hunks.com...

"Whatever piece of crap newsreader you're using, it just violated an RFC
by putting whitespace in the Newsgroups header.

Stagger Pee has too much sperm in his eyes to know that a "_" is a character, not a space.

"As a reslult, many news servers are either going to chop off the second news
group that you added or else reject your post entirely."

Stagger Pee knows more about KFC than RFC, and as a "result" spittles out of his lardass. It would seem that something else was "chopped off" in Stagger Pee's case, but there wasn't much to lose.

AIDS INFECTED IGNORAMUS "Stagger Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> demonstrated his lack of education and tried to backpedal out of his use of "too" instead of "two"
in message <too.two_or_also@houston-hunks.com>:
"You too need to get a newsreader which generates a References header."

Fuckhead Lee slobbered his pathetic gene cesspool story in MsgId: <get.on.the.air@houston-hunks.com>

"Since a couple of you are simply dying to know my true identity, let me give you a few tantalizing hints to see what you can do with them. I'm going to tell you about my father (I used to call him "Dad" when we were alone).

Daddy was a basketball star at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Indiana. He lettered during all of his seven years as an undergraduate, but then lost his eligibility when he took time out to write a thesis on the quantum electrodynamics of degenerate stellar atmospheres.

Unfortunately, the use of the word "degenerate" in his thesis nearly got him kicked out of Notre Dame. He straightened the situation out, and managed to graduate "semper ubi sub ubi" with the class of 1940, and immediately left for his favorite Chicago suburb -- Calumet City -- to start his life as a brand-new astrophysicist.

It was then that he got drafted into the army, so he put his ambitions aside and served his country as one of the most accomplished martial artists of the WWII era.

He had learned martial arts as a boy member of the Mafia in Chicago, and he single-handedly invaded several Japanese islands during WWII. Mayor Daily awarded him with the keys to the brothels of Chicago when he returned from the Pacific theatre, and that's how he met my mother.

Oh my. I may have given too much away: By now, you probably know precisely who I am."

Fuckup Shemale Lee fucks up again in <3D39C465.63A9CCEF@houston-hunks.com>:
"I wonder how long it will take Ohio Valley Internet Services to boot your ass?"

Fuckup Lee whines about crossposting and redirecting followups with "The original post is spam, as can be seen by looking at the number of people who have already been tricked into responding in alt.bad.clams."
yet the hypocrite admits he did the same thing himself in <3D487543.91D087D9@houston-hunks.com>:
"I've tricked you into posting your spew elsewhere, yes"

Twithed Went up to Jersey----to the tune of "The devil went down to Georgia"

Twithed fag went up to Jersey
She was lookin for a cock to suck
At every truckstop in the southland
She'd plum run outta luck

Then she came across this faggot slurpin on a pekker
And suckin' it hot
So twithed jumped up on another fags cock
And said "Queer let me tellya what..."

"You suck pretty good dick my boy, but give my gay ass it's due..."
"I'll bet a gold dildo against your asshole..."
"cuz I think I'm better that you!"

The fag said "My name is trainedpuppet, and I've sucked dick since age ten"
"I'll take your bet, it aint no sweat...cuz I'm the queerest ever been!"

CHORUS
Trainfag put on your lipstick and get your weiner hard Cuz twithed's in from F-L-A, that fucking gay retard
And if you win you get a shiny dildo made of gold
But if you lose twithed pumps asshole!

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

Twithed opened her overnite case and took out a pink nightgown
She said "I'll dress up just right, as a faggot assed keyclown."
Then she pulled her 1 inch pecker out and the keyclowns moaned with lust Landcarp and moped joined right in and the faggot sounds were thus...

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

When twithed fisnished trainedpuppet said "You're a pretty decent fag"
"But sit yer ass down right there, and I'll suck dick 'til I gag!"

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

Twithed bowed his head, he knew he'd been outclassed
Then he stuck that golden dildo all the way up trainfag's ass

Trainfag moaned "Twithed just come on back if you ever wanna try again"
"It gets boring 'round here just having sex with dogs and the same old men"

MUSICAL BRIDGE-SOUNDS OF COCKS BEING SUCKED BY FAGGOT KEYCLOWNS

I agree with the mr griff on this one and boy did we have some good debates and arguments but at the very least it referred to cb stuff always. Amplifiers, Radios, Antennas mobile antennas coax. For the last couple of years it has only been the gay homo talk and the antikeydowners? Weird huh??? Remember painkiller?

That's not surprising. KC8LDO and N8WWM have teamed together on many occasion to cause problems. Now that KC8LDO was illustrated a criminal (he recently pled guilty to criminal charges in Michigan regarding what he first tried to excuse as a domestic dispute) , the entire world that he used to preach to about obeying the law now realizes he is simply a low life hypocrite. Not unlike N8, Lelnad has issues of his own and a record to boot. They are two of a kind. I received direct threats from each over the years, something I will always cherish as a token of their incompetence, low self-esteem and example of their criminal and violent nature and tendencies. Lelnad most recently threatened me concerning his arrest and charges, He threatened me not to discuss it in public because I don't know what I am talking about, but he fails to comprehend he was and still is given ample opportunity to explain his act of pleading guilty to criminal charges in light of his own statements concerning those who break the law as degenerate criminals who deserve no respect or second chances.

Google "gay" and "jockstrap" and there you have the life story and purpose of amateur operators KC8LDO and N8WWM.

I've looked around many different places, mostly sites the contain collections of CB pics, though I have been to others as well. I don't recall for sure if I looked there or not, but I will check it out anyway,

Apparently the Muslims are so mad they are rioting in the streets over a handful of cartoons drawn by non-believers and published in periodicals owned by non-believers for the consumption of non-believers because it is too great an offense against Islam to take lying down.

However, the same Muslims react with no protest riots (indeed with a collective "ho-hum") when Muslim women and children are murdered during the holy month of Ramadan by other Muslims (for purely political purposes) claiming these forbidden killings are the will of Allah. Apparently that is not an outrage against Islam.

These stouthearted resistors of any smear on Islam were apparently home sitting contented during the many times terrorist murderers defiled mosques by using them as staging bases for the murder of other Muslims. Apparently that is not an outrage against Islam either.

So, the murder of innocent fellow believers and the desecration of mosques are perfectly acceptable behaviour and are not insulting to Islam at all, but cartoons require world-wide protest and rioting.

These people have a way of looking at the world that is, quite frankly, not at all sane by any rational standard. We, as the west, are trying to deal with people who are the functional equivalent of inmates of an insane asylum, and we wonder why we get nowhere with them.

It will be a short film. He invited me over to his slum, he said he was "going to put me face down in a hurting extreme and take pictures of my bumped up noggin". So I went there and all he would do is stand there in the doorway of his HUD apartment with this dumbass look on his face, too chicken-shit to come outside and say anything to my face.

Mopeyddope I will meet you anywhere, at any time, in fact, how about Dayton next week. You name the place, I will be there, and the beating will begin with you as the willing victim.

Let me explain to you exactly how it will go down. Let me paint the picture for you in case you think you can somehow come out of this thing uninjured.

You will ask to meet me in a bar or eating place, OK by me. I will walk up to you and call you a limp wristed faggot when I see you. You will start running your mouth about how bad you are and while you are talking I will move you outside into the alley.

I will ask you if you intend to be harassing hams in their homes again. No matter what your reply is, the next thing that will happen is you will be flat on your back with your head spinning.

I will rip a pipe loose from the alley and insert it in your ass, and slowly move it in and out, in and out, until you admit that you're a gay man who talks tough on the internet but nothing but a limp wrist sissy in real life.

Then I will proceed to slap you until you can't say your name straight. Then I will make you apologize to all the hams you have bad mouthed, including N8WWM, who you will have to kiss a picture of, or else be beaten further.

Then I will throw you in the dumpster and close the lid, but first I will tell the Red Cross where you are so they can give you aid in getting home.

That's about it, except for the part where you wash my car and polish my shoes and clean the snot off my windsheild with your tongue.

1629. Interpol "configured to reject your mail" re Paul Gieschen (Heropoules/Vensel)

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb

From: Laura <sammark4@earthlink.net>

A former roommate, Diane Marie Seaberg* (formerly Diane Shellman), University of Miami Law student, admitted to me that she worked/works for the government and was equipped with a spray to put a sleeping person in a deep sleep for hypnosis/programming/torture. Torture would mostly be electric shock.

If you live in an apartment please consider that your managers may work for the government. My parents did. Please see:

"Nob Hill Apartments/covert military intelligence" (miami.general)
http://groups.google.com/group/miami.general/browse_frm/thread/c20107e27afc9921/7957f39b43c107cf?lnk=st&q=%22nob+hill+apartments%22&rnum=20&hl=en#7957f39b43c107cf

Please use caution around Prof. Irwin Stotzky. He was Diane's "handler." She was a target and a perpetrator. I was one of her targets as was a law student named Naphtali (early 80's): red-haired Orthodox Jew. She was also a target of Naphtali's who used our roommate Linda in a romantic relationship in order to have access to Diane at night. He was trying to get information on Prof. Stotzky.

If you know students in the dorms (or concerned parents) please let them know that no one is immune. The government mind controls elementary students and college students. A dorm roommate may not be safe. If a resident would wear earplugs they would be less vulnerable to sleep hypnosis (might awaken if it was attempted -- the earplugs would need to be removed.) Don't trust floor monitors. An over-the-door alarm (hangs over knob and goes off if entry is attempted) would help. Extra locks too.

A student might be vulnerable to University personnel if they are part of a Psychology 101 class and have to participate in experiments. (It was a requirement when I was a Psych 101/102 student.) I may have signed some sort of waiver which left me open. (The Supreme Court protects the identities of Universities involved in MK_Ultra and the Pentagon is very "loose" about what is considered legal.)

Diane Seaberg was Bonnie's coach for the most prolonged spiritual rape. Please see:

"Mystical Journey"
http://home.earthlink.net/~sammark4/id157.html

"Do you think your public wants the real Holy Spirit?" -- Agent Robertson

"Now if you'd say you created this:

"Satanism, ritual abuse, cannibalism -- in the news"
http://home.earthlink.net/~twainable2/id16.html

patterned after Diana's

"Satanism and Ritual Abuse Archive"
http://www.newsmakingnews.com/karencuriojonesarchive.htm

that'd be something." -- Agent Robertson

"Diana's is better than yours and you think that's your best information."

"I challenged God and gave him a run for his money."

Susan Sarandon says people don't see the self-evidence of not mind controlling children.

"What makes you good enough to write about this?" -- Diane Seaberg

"The real Divine Feminine doesn't get to be, not while we're on the earth." -- Nicole Kidman

"Oh, he (Paul Gieschen) doesn't get to be either, except to fuck him in front of you."

"We did those TV shows for our people. It was too much to give to you." -- Elizabeth Montgomery

"We wouldn't have given you a bite of food if we thought you were going to survive." -- Harry

Dean Martin says, "Bonnie was pretty -- our Holy Spirit."

I'm supposed to give them a nod for good fakes.

"And why is it necessary to have fakes in the first place?" -- Sherry (Waldenbooks)

Sherry put a stake in my heart when our heart song (me and God's) was its most beautiful.

"We are important! We're satanists." -- Lalonnie (Waldenbooks)

"The little Holy Spirit was supposed to come here and get fucktarded. That's all." -- Elizabeth Montgomery

"All this private shit about Mark. It really belongs to the government." -- Agent Robertson

"If your husband hadn't betrayed you, you wouldn't be in this situation." -- Elizabeth Montgomery

"You make my dick hard." -- Casper

"If I were you, I'd kill myself." -- McKibbage

"If you can't get a classy lawyer to help you, who are you going to get?"

"God has abandoned you." -- Agent Robertson

"You think that dumb shit out there is going to understand any of this?"

"You should kill yourself, you're so disgraced." -- Dean Martin

Ray Penland was in love with me.

"We all were in your other life when you were pretty." -- Casper

"When the people around you protected you." -- the former father

"You have to torch the gross one before you can get this other shit to work." -- Sly Stallone

"Don't you think that porn whore shit would like knowing the Holy Spirit of God (the doe) was raped and tortured too?" -- Agent Robertson

"The only person you know is Paul Gieschen. Who are you going to get to believe you are anything other than what we say you are?" -- Ellen Gail Fine

"Paul was lucky to be around me." -- Sherry

"We're proud to be a part of this." -- Phil Donohue, Catholic, Jesuit

"Paul is a gross pig. I didn't want him as my Jesus."

"We thought we had him. We thought we torched him." -- Donna (Waldenbooks)

"Satanism was going to be ended anyway. We might as well have some fun while it's happening." -- Lisa Nicholson

"He's just proving he'll get down in the shit with the people who don't count." -- Ellen Gail Fine

"Do you think maybe we got some real infants on this one -- throughout history?" -- Richard Hanning, Jr.

"You are the other one (the second journey) whether we allow you to feel like it or not." -- Tom

"Ellen doesn't want you to feel like you're both being persecuted. She doesn't want you bonded." -- Tom

"Diane's playing with their precious Jesus stuff." -- Diane

Bill from SZF doesn't want me to have a cigarette.

His wife fucked her kid before she killed him.

"Will you not smoke in honor of my kid?" -- Bill from SZF

He's glad I wasn't with Paul the night of the Charter Christmas party or we wouldn't have been allowed in.

"You don't tell the truth in this world and get away with it." -- Bill

Me and God trumpeted my research and writings in the summer and fall of 2004. I have been punished ever since.

Donna was one of the ones who tortured me to powder.

"God put you in my care. I tortured you." -- Donna

Bonnie is important. She gets her own red blob in space.

Bonnie recreated a time when she worked at Cordis and kissed Joann, who had betrayed her, on the cheek at lunch in a parody of the Last Supper.

"I KNOW I've tortured Native Peoples in the underground." -- Tammy Whicher, assistant to the Publisher of the Fond du Lac Reporter

Bonnie is God's assistant, spreading light and kindness wherever she goes.

Bonnie wishes she were me and that she had done my research. She'd heard about me and knew about me and the only way she could be me was by being satanic and attacking me.

Ellen placed the ugly girl that smelled like shit you didn't want to date at Fox Jewelers.

Richard took the original notes from my phone call with Malcolm Kahn (University of Miami Counseling Center.) "She probably didn't even write that. It was probably given to her." -- Ellen, referring to

"Letter to Dale Griffis, written May 15, 2001"
http://www.angelfire.com/journal2/landsbergphotos/web_page_griffis_UM_stuff.html

Ray Scherr worked with Ellen to destroy people.

Ray Penland was a big catch. Ray's wife was a target.

"I'm trying to get God away from Laura. This time there are no rules."
-- Ellen

Richard was fucking Karen Kromer when she was past her prime in beauty (dried out, anorexic.) Artie'd cracked her with an Aussie. They were together when he worked for Bob Wahl in Dunmore, PA (Adelphia Cable was their cover.)

Tom Brokaw says he's a being like Frank Rich/Brian Dennehy.

"Too bad Richard can't stand up for you." -- Tom Brokaw

"Won't!" -- Richard

"You been shit-kicked your whole life." -- Karen Kromer

Shirley MacLaine says she knows Coretta Scott KIng.

"Richard, did I meet Bob Wahl?" -- Karen

"He cares about you but not other people, is that it?" -- Shirley MacLaine

"Richard fucked your cousin and you didn't even get your son." -- Agent Robertson

Richard had an attachment put on my son's head which made him spiritually ill.

Carla is a tall, graceful, accomplished woman and it's been a lot for her to spend so much of her professionally valuable time on me.

"Karen was prettier than you." -- Richard

"I wish I'd never gotten dick." -- Mary

I WAS IN MCB133 A DURING 1966-1968 STATIONED IN GULFPORT, DANANG, AND PHU BAI

"That's a big big one." -- John Landsberg (John and Donna lived in Manfield, Ohio for many years. Bob Wahl was from Mansfield.)

Nam drugs...snore.

McKibbage holds me responsible for the Little People beings he sold to Ike.

Drugs, infants, genetically engineered cetacean matter, me, God...I wonder what else is sacred these people might torture. Maybe there are other beings on other worlds more sensitive, more sacred.

They would use adrenalin to keep the infants alive for prolonged torture but their vocal chords would give out. It was a less satisfying experience than it could have been.

"He used to mock you after he'd fuck you." -- Karen, meaning her lover, Richard

"He'd rape and torture that boy then come over and fuck me."

Ellen says it spares me a little that so many hated and betrayed my boy as well.

"We're not all the criminals there ever were." -- Karen

"You died when you learned you hadn't protected that boy." -- Richard

Artie says, "she didn't die, she's just not going to give you that win."

"God didn't love your boy." -- Agent Robertson

Karen says Richard should start over and just fuck and torture local schoolchildren and live with her, not Ellen.

Dora's son John Kromer was a dumb fucking hick like Herky.

Mary Ann Kromer died of Gulf War Illness. Artie and Dora are proud that Bush & Baker III's Texas companies sold biological weapons to Iraq.

Susan Sarandon says I ate Sister Jude Marie's cunt. (St. Raphael's, 1st grade.)

"That gross shit that was tortured in Viet Nam -- those are my girls." -- Tom Dino ordered Naphtali to destroy Linda Sachs.

Carla has ordered the F.B.I. to destroy all niggers.

"Mediocre shit sneaks up on quality people. They see value in us and we destroy them with the proximity they have allowed us." Naphtali and Janet Greenbaum

"For no reason." -- Dino

"That's why it's indiscernable."

"Jesus discerned it but that was in the book of John." -- Mary Dino and John are important. John was the disciple Jesus loved and Dino ripped Carla's veil.

"He's just a regular man with money -- he's not a god." -- Bill's wife

"I don't want you to know the truth about Cambodia." -- Casper (Nicholas A.)

Donna wants me to know she liked Carla better than me.

"The Dino/Diana Napolis thing is our last chance." -- Agent Robertson

Experiments. It's about experiments. (re Cambodia)

"We were going to trap survivors with the Dino/Diana Napolis hero ass fuck." -- Barbara Bush

Diana is a major bitch cunt.

"If you can just stay alive long enough to let the truth out." -- Patrick Stewart

"God ass fucked me." -- Agent Robertson

"Your little idea about a person having to pay for every word they've said that misleads someone has no meaning." -- Wendy Holman (Jackson Memorial Hospital)

I'd said that if your violence doesn't work you need to be persuasive.

"I have a hard dick but I wouldn't use it on you." -- Mr. Cambodia

Bonnie is chief cunt on the gook front. (Wife of John [Apostle.])

Carla says she had Julie tortured and killed.

Carla just wants to be me because God loves me passionately. I am the Passion of Christ.

Cindy Crawford is the Beloved of Richard Gere.

Casper says they are the God and Mother God of the mind controlled Vietnamese population.

Steven Spielberg says he does virtual reality (helmets, cinema) for the Vietnamese.

Bush and Baker III sent Agent Robertson behind the others' backs to torture the mind controlled in Viet Nam viciously, ending them. The agenda was to end all, not control them. "An argument could be made for control but not this."

Agent Robertson was pleased for the opportunity.

Aquino, Diana's boyfriend, was part of it.

"Your God is not very powerful." -- Agent Robertson

"If I give up my soul to love the gooks you're just going to have to deal with it." -- Tom

Nisha Chandra and Pluto Woman say it was all about keeping me from people.

They have many not-lovely-woman tricks.

God would not help Mary when she was a child and suffering.

"God told me you had to earn your way OUT OF THE HELL I CREATED FOR YOU." -- Mary

"I have contempt for you." -- Diana Napolis

I went through most of the weird shit she wrote about: non-lethal weapons, Plieadean spider-weapons, etc.

"The Greatest Generation" taught Tom Brokaw that gooks were inferior to him, White Boy, American.

Lalonnie's ugly but Tom sticks his dick in her mouth.

"We had the means to deliver the Dino/Diana Napolis military operation." -- Sly Stallone

Dino had warned me, "he who controls communications..."

I admonished him, "don't forget to look up."

Donna Landsberg and Ellen worked together to injure the life of the woman who lived in the D Building (Waterside) 1985.

Carla was too fat so they didn't consult her.

Donna works with Cindy Crawford.

"We had you surrounded on Linden St. Military." -- Richard

"I'm well known around town." -- the sunglass lady

McKibbage, the "sunglass lady," Casper, John, Bonnie, Tony, the "Dakota Railroad" guy, the Aussie red-head who was doing a skanky lesbian op (electronic) at Sav-a-Lot, Mel Gibson.

The "sunglass lady" believed she was trusted by the real angels in town.

Carla advised God to put my subconscious into the "sunglass lady."

Carla is the flag.

Carla and Mary made fun of my brother Mark -- his death would never matter to anyone.

They say (Karen Kromer says) they know who is MPD and enter a person's body to enact what is necessary - when a certain decision needs to be made.

Richard is in love with Karen Kromer. They were bonded on a UFO. She entered Karen (HR, Mediacom) and he bonded with Karen. Richard and Karen Kromer are in love with each other in real life (he and Chuck White are fighting over her.)

"You just don't want to believe satanism is just about you." -- Donna Landsberg

She's upset that I called the Avon Lake Police (Lt. Fishburne) and reported that Mark was murdered. (440-933-4567)

Karen says she's important in Tibetan politics. (Nazi Vril.)

"Nope. Not Mark." -- Bill Hicks. Steve Vensel called Lt. Fishburne and told him something or other.

Bill Hicks is affiliated with Joe Roberts who is affiliated with Irwin Stotzky.

Michael gave people like Bill Hicks bodies and they live in other worlds. I guess they communicate through connected satellites.

Harry would put a spike through my left hand.

"You can imagine if God weren't operating in different dimensions we would have destroyed him by now." -- Ellen Gail Fine

If you would ever like to meet God please keep an eye on these people -- see if you can keep them from doing harm.

George Herbert Walker Bush set Bill Hicks up in his career, believe it or not. Bush was the object of a lot of his routines.

"We know what cool God stuff is." -- Barbara Bush

"It's about destroying you and deceiving others." -- Ellen

Steve Vensel says he destroyed Fishburne. He thinks he has the power to do that. (They are afraid of the authorities.)

"It's about making you look like a fool on the internet." -- Aquino

"I get you little meek people -- the ones who are reluctant to trust anyone." -- Geri Barber-Cudo (therapist, connected to Richard Webster and Chevy Chase, MD. Richard told me his father started C.G. Sloan & Co. with a former Secretary of the Navy. I checked a list of former Secretaries of the Navy and didn't find a name that rang a bell.)

After death, Michael or acquaintances would take a person to another world, very much like "Defending Your Life." People use infant torture for "light" and "energy" to get life memories from the person's mind. The significant moments of a person's life are gone over (machines transfer retrieved memories and covert them for viewing.) People are prosecuted (much like this rape shit I've been through) and sent one place or another.

The inner worlds are hideous. Life energy is drawn from people -- people used as batteries.

Ascended Masters are genetically engineered.

Meryl Streep says she has her own "Minority Report" pincushions.

"It's not that I didn't respect God it's just that there was no way he could get through this trap-fuck." -- Meryl Streep

"You're just too anonymous and insignificant to be the Pistis Sophia."

I solved Kennedy. Please see:

"Harry E. Landsberg, Jr. -- resemblance to man in photo with Specter"
http://home.earthlink.net/~lhann10243/index.html

Now if anyone in government will do anything about it.

(It's not as if soul choices were made and those who would play with the "Pistis Sophia" are automatically excluded, and coincidentally, those who commit crimes against the weak and defenseless.) The new heaven and new earth will be without them.

"Those who would do harm if given a chance." -- Meryl Streep

"If you submit a manuscript and it's a good one you will probably be moved and used as a 'Minority Report' pincushion." -- someone. I believe Richard queried me at night using drugs.

Meryl Streep is more important than me because she's friends with Diane Seaberg. Diane became obsessed with my life and took it and gave it to her friends.

"If God loved you he wouldn't have allowed Diane to take your life." -- Meryl Streep

"Oh, you think you're going to get out of this? Mark?"

The movie set assassination scenarios (with Charles Harrelson and presumably another or others) were done with 'Hall of Presidents' Kennedy figures -- with blood spatter, reaction effects.

cia-drugs message 33113 (Yahoo Groups, text below)

"If Karen tortures infants to be a light being in Tibet it's all relative." -- Ellen

"You are not allowed to remember your experiences with Paul as if they were you." -- Karen

"Children are dirty." -- Dora Madden

"There are no such thing as survivors of ritual abuse and mind control." -- Agent Robertson

"Are you surprised that I can say 'children are dirty' as if I had a psycholigical problem in relation to children when I don't?" -- Dora Madden

"We know what we use them for and it's not a psychological problem, it's a social problem." -- Margaret Engler

"You're not God's lovers-twin you're just the Holy Spirit of God." -- Agent Robertson

"You are offensive to a Nazi." -- Dora Madden

"That's a little overstated." -- Ellen, who is an Arab trying to protect Tibet

Ellen has a Ph.D. from Yale so her disdain sticks.

"I wrote John Macks 'Abduction.'" -- Pluto Woman

"Nobody protects you, you bitch!" -- McKibbage who is agitated about Tibet and the Arab thing

"We were really going for souls." -- Dora Madden

McKibbbage placed the Courthouse Lady.

"She didn't stand a chance if she hadn't been protected by God." -- Joanna

"I'd rather she not have been protected by God." -- Ellen

"This is the Holy Spirit paradigm regardless of how unimportant you are." -- Richard

"It's very specific: you and Paul." -- Lisa Nicholson

Bill's (SZF) sister doesn't hold it against me that Richard was a mind controller of children. She doesn't blame me for Richard taking $100,000 from Joe Decort (Americable) so he could be Charter's exclusive contractor for the Fond du Lac region.

These people evolved from monkeys and they are convict lines. They need to feel important at least once in their eternities.

Henry Kissinger says he is immune from the crimes he committed in Chile.

"You can't prove these marriages were government shit." -- someone

Carla is upset God loves only me.

"We assert our rights over God's children."

They are humiliated. They thought they had destroyed God. They were betrayed by Michael.

This is the biggest thing that's ever happened to them.

Katie Couric says it's my fault she was targeted by Tom Werner and Dino.

NORAD's satellites "are a little more advanced than you think." -- Tom Tom is the All Seeing Eye.

Carla says Paul lives in Germany.

Steven Segal says he's handsome.

"It was the security guard." -- Steven Segal, referring to who killed Robert Kennedy

"You should sell that airport mesh thing." -- Agent Robertson, meaning "sensation of walking through mesh or screening" (politica.direita.liberal.pt)

http://groups.google.com/group/politicadireitaliberalpt/browse_frm/thread/313f37e70c412dd3/71d0b1230e7acde3?lnk=st&q=mesh+airport&rnum=294&hl=en#71d0b1230e7acde3

Agent Robertson wanted Katie Couric fat and dressing poorly.

Dino and Tom take orders on who to attack because Agent Robertson is jealous of everyone and they hate women.

"It obscures the All Seeing Eye." -- Tom

"If only we had more time and better resources we could mind control in so many different ways." -- Katie Couric

"We all knew about the Holy Spirt, we all laughed -- even Jay."

When the Nazis made a decision (reached an agreement) to mind control society the reward from their masters was technology.

They disdain me because I've never had money so they attack and spend all their money doing it.

They want to end me because they think I own the planet and they want to keep their wealth.

"The truth is nothing more important has ever happened on planet earth. That's why we're interested." -- Agent Robertson

"You just don't want to accept that the Justice Department's satanism (and satanism) is all about you."

Rich men are supposed to fuck pretty women.

"We lost more of our innocence than that." -- Bill (SZF)

"I really am an important person at the Justice Department." -- Agent Robertson

I'm under arrest because she used clones of me abusing clones of my son to show to the police.

"Would you acknowledge that we torture children?" -- Agent Robertson

"When is what we've done going to be exposed?" -- Dr. Myron Weisfeldt

"I'm happy that I was so powerful and you didn't even know it and it was all about you." -- Lisa Nicholson

"Do you think baby killing is objectionable to most people?" -- Barbara Bush

"We couldn't do worse if we had more resources." -- Agent Robertson

Please see:

"Mossad and the United States secret government"
http://home.earthlink.net/~sammark4/id175.html

"I assure you I am still mind controlling children on Mercury." -- Bonnie

The old cunt Barbara Bush said she funded Carla from "the coffers of United States citizens." -- Barbara Bush (S&L, CIA drugs, etc.)

"We've long since gotten rid of guys like Mike Horner. We're very efficient at getting rid of the good guys."

"She's above classified." -- Barbara Bush, referring to Carla

"That's what you get when you have the White House and the secret government runs the country." -- head of the NSA

"Oh Paul I want my anger and my apathy," Barbara mocked.

"We had trained psychics for this very purpose."

Some people are upset that I'm looking up the homogenization of milk. Homogenization was brought to the world, apparently, to cause heart attacks in people at a young age. The process was patented in 1899. Something happened in the late 1800's (1890's.) The agenda has been to sicken and kill us.

"God is destroying death. But I ain't going out without a fight." -- Tom Tom says he controls the United States.

"We ain't giving up the earth." -- homogenized milk guy

"They don't got no power." -- Tom

Donna and others were offensive at work so Paul wouldn't be able to get his numbers. They wanted him to lose his job.

"Do you think Paul knew they were on my dick?" -- Tom, meaning Donna and Sandy

"People didn't know people were capable of this level of sadism." -- Michael, referring to:

"Mystical Journey"
http://home.earthlink.net/~sammark4/id157.html

"You didn't write it as sadistic as it was."

Detective Sergeant Vince Molnar of the Avon Lake Police Department called today (4:30P.M.) asking for more information about the family and Mark. He seemed very concerned that my siblings and I had been exposed to satanic ritual abuse and enthusiastic about pursuing the leads about Mark. The case should be solved very soon.

Israel and the Mossad are very interested in the matter of Mark's death. So was M.D. Anderson. (Please see: "Mark's Death" http://home.earthlink.net/~lhann10243/id51.html)

"Our self-esteems don't suffer from having harmed so many." -- Arthur Madden

"You are ugly to God."

"All the high tech we could find -- from 'Minority Report' candidates -- anywhere we could find it." -- Richard, Jr.

Pluto Woman's having a cunt.

Artie likes ass-fucking the best. He's the catcher.

Lisa says her friends in the 10 to the 28th solar systems are not trustworthy.

Michael Douglas knows Scott Yeager.

Karen Kromer. 5'7", thin, short curly hair, blue eyes, squared, even white teeth. Approx. 50 years old. Married to an Aussie until 1985 (lived in the bush.) Married to someone important in either the Buddhist or Hindu faith. Lives in the U.S. east. Gifted pianist (Rachmaninoff.)

"You'd think people from other worlds wouldn't fuck around with the Pistis Sophia. You were wrong." -- Mary Landsberg

"You are in very grave danger until we're done."

Artie raped Bay Village children for many years (he's a satanist.) Dora implanted tracking devices in their teeth.

He set up the situation where Jackie Kruger would molest me and Anne. When we told our parents they contacted Fr. Zwillig who got Jackie removed from the Seminary. This was done so that if Anne or I remembered the ritual abuse it would blamed on Jackie and the molestation.

"The only power I know about is satanic power." -- Bonnie, Apostle John's wife

The only thing I want to do is fuck Paul.

The shit that Bonnie ordered to hand over babies to the United States for torture to hurt me and God is still in power. They've learned that people don't object to infant torture.

"We are from other worlds and we do have ships." -- Brian Dennehy

Carla says she's Brooke Adams and they're Pod People.

Wendy had Mickey's wife diagnosed with cancer so she could have Mickey. She got the advice from Tom during a satanic ritual.

She recovered from an abortion in my apartment. I wonder if she asked for the fetus so she could munch on it in my bed, just to be satanic.

Oh, pot breaks programming. That's why it's illegal.

"We don't try to end Daniel Hopsicker." -- Lisa Nicholson

(She says she's trying to date him.)

"You have to take a beating when you do something important." -- Pluto Woman

"At least Diana (Napolis) made the papers." -- somebody

I am told nothing true makes it into print. "Barry & the Boys" might be an exception. It's a paradigm-buster.

Kris Millegan (Trine Day) published it. He plays good cop/bad cop -- he probably has to have some good to counterbalance the bad.

Tom stole my copy.

"If we weren't Nazis we would welcome God and the Holy Spirit." -- Agent Robertson

"I'm trying to end Love."

Sherry's happy Michael doesn't own the Celtics. She wants me to be happy with Paul and with the symbols I have grown to love.

Sherry's here to pound my love for Paul out of me insisting he doesn't love me.

She says she speaks for him because she knew him for fifteen years. He thought she was an old sow crying to him about her dying Mommy. He knew she'd end him if she had the chance.

They think they have power over God. They're just lonely old ladies.

They bagged & tagged all the shit he didn't want using infants of each other. It's an efficient way of getting rid of old hags -- women who couldn't get laid.

"We pound on the weak one." -- Sherry

I had been tortured since childhood and was tortured again after leaving Waldenbooks, after leaving Sherry's choice for me, Richard.

She was assigned to this task by Borders Group.

(I fucked a guy named Jim Borders a couple of times.)

Sherry had to hire a man to come to the store and invite her out to dinner so she could boast to me about it.

Everyone knows I am the only woman any man ever loved. They have to work overtime to pretend this isn't so.

"I knew Margaret McIntyre." -- Sherry

They have to conspire to keep me away from my people.

"We were surrounding him, treating him like shit. That's why you ascended him. You saw him for what he was." -- Sherry

If you have quality you are surrounded by satanists.

Old snoop hags don't appreciate a fuck you attitude.

They're on the alert for people who fall in love. It's the Lesbian Patrol.

Lesbians and fags are so busy surrounding people who fall in love they don't even have time to suck twat or take it up the ass.

Sherry knew Paul was married to an ugly woman. She didn't want him to be loved by a beautiful woman like me.

"I didn't see Paul's beauty. We surrounded him because he had qualities -- we have a checklist of qualities." -- Sherry

For Michael to have a following he had to experiment with monkeys.

His monkeys (those who worship buildings) believe they are man: the product of evolution.

"We cashed in our eternal monkey souls." -- Sherry

Michael messed with perfectly good monkeys.

If he'd left them alone Borders Group wouldn't have employees.

Michael is threatened by black people. They probably weren't part of his monkey experiments (probably didn't 'evolve' from monekys.)

Michael criticizes me for not being qualified to write about this as if I weren't an ancient being.

Earth was Michael's experiment to end God and the Holy Spirit. He had Jesus assassinated. He trapped Apostle Paul and many others in an etheric attachment. He tried to end me with satanic ritual abuse and mind control (surgery, mesh, torture.)

Dominion was his but Jesus mastered him. Overcame him and warned me.

"Don't you think that sounds a little religiously hokey?" -- Michael Carla knows it's the truth because she was alive during WWII torturing people in concentration camps.

She can't end my love for Paul.

"He loves you more, you know." -- Carla

Yes I know.

"Can't piss you off for him having gotten you into this situation." -- Carla

They're just an audience to a great love and friendship. They are accustomed to having power through torture and programming.

"Did I make you feel guilty for responding to the love of a married man?" -- Old Hag Sherry

I would never be ashamed to love.

"He worshipped you."

He probably still does.

"I, monkey brain, didn't give him enough credit for intelligence." -- Sherry

Monkey brains don't think evolved Light Beings have intelligence.

Michael engineered them with the ability to project a contrived arrogance.

God appreciates people who have their own lives and interests.

God's friends are interested in getting rid of all traces of Michael's monkey shit.

"Don't boast. You almost didn't make it." -- Courthouse Lady

I was tortured more than any human being alive.

"You have to earn your freedom." -- Sherry

Sherry thinks I'm too excellent to be out among people.

They have a monkey's acute awareness of other people's 'standing' in the hierarchy (rank.)

Michael was able to pretend to some that he was of a high rank.

"Who'd have thought a dumb fucking kid could be so smart?" -- Sherry, meaning Paul, who was about 25 when he sought her out to work at Waldenbooks, Forest Mall

"If they can survive the experience they won't have nothing to do with you 'cause they never wanted anything to do with you, personally, anyway." -- Sherry, meaning Paul

"We just didn't think they could survive the experience." -- Donna (Waldenbooks), meaning me and Paul

She was beating me astrally to be angry with him, to insult him. When I would he would hear it and, they hoped, take it personally.

"That you two ever interacted is the paradigm that isn't going to be dropped." -- Ellen Bonnie humiliated herself in front of me by believing she had found Paul in every dimension and tortured, programmed and ended him. She gloated and celebrated. She never touched him.

"God doesn't like satanists?' -- Ellen

They tried to make him believe I believed he was a fag.

"He was the most masculine, gentle man you ever met." -- Ellen

"This was the Big One."

They have been playing with love for a long time. (Unsuccessfully, in my opinion.)

She thinks Paul is God and I am a magical Holy Spirit -- that we are not people.

"As long as he is keeping you low I can beat on you." -- Ellen

She is almost more desperate than Carla.

They are desperate that I not love Paul.

I worship him.

Donna Landsberg says, "it's religion." It's being innocent of all crimes and being protected. I've been slandered and set up wherever I've gone. God is ending that.

Being free to torture and be open about is better for Carla than being tied up under the house.

They believe you can get close to people who are reticent by forcing yourselves on them.

Satanism: a big fucking humiliating joke on people who try to be scary.

Once you get over the sickness of awakening to the fact that they exist you see what they are: desperate, needy people who need attention.

"We didn't do this as a test. We did it to end you." -- Margaret Engler, Fostoria Nazi

"I ruined your relationship with Dan." -- Ellen

They were unable to ruin any relationships that were meant to be.

They used a practiced indifference. I didn't know they were such slobbery sycophants. Sycophant: "a self-seeking, servile flatterer; fawning parasite."

The woman who took my money at MacDonald's on Military looked and sounded like Tina, a Jehovah's Witness I knew in Staunton, VA.

I would put this in "Mark of the Beast -- more iii"

http://home.earthlink.net/~raiyndoelhann/id8.html

but I am unable to edit my web pages at this time.

Tina's son was in speech therapy at Bessie Weller the same time my son, Richard III, was. We became friends. I confided to her that I was a survivor of satanic ritual abuse and she set up a meeting in her home between me and an Elder from her Church. He told me I was too healthy to be a survivor of satanic ritual abuse.

Tina stole from me.

"We told heads of state that you were medically neglectful of your son." -- Agent Robertson, agitated that I have written about my son's speech therapy

Ugly women are dangerous. Don't ever trust them.

"The Above Classified have gone over every moment of your life to prove to others you are not a worhty Goddess for them." -- Agent Robertson and Pluto Woman

I've gone against every manipulative cunt in the Universe. They go these men.

I'm the best fuck any man ever had. Then they fall in love with me and plot against me.

It's about passionate love. They think it has to do with sex.

"Passionate love which has to do with caring about children, of course," Pluto Woman twanged.

"You can't convince women who don't care aout children that you're worthy of being Chief Woman." -- Agent Robertson

"If we found a good way to set him up he'd probably move to a different dimension." -- Donna, meaning setting Paul up on the job

"We'll try to set you God people up until we end."

"You still have your income. It's not a fair fight." -- Pluto Woman

I know God is the primary target.

"No, the love is the primary target." -- Pluto Woman

Ellen says they had more than the Qumran texts and access to the basement of the Vatican.

"I'm a very important man even though I targeted you and took you to see Oppenheimer who wasn't Oppenheimer so you'd be discredited by mentioning it." -- Dr. Sheldon Greer, University of Miami, Microbiology Department

I am a project of many worlds.

"The Manhattan Project may have been to end/melt consciousness in the astral plane. It's a possibility which seems more likely considering some of the other things that have been mentioned here." -- Sheldon Greer

The military seems to have wanted to manipulate consciousness in the most painful way.

McKibbage hired 17 year old Beth to follow me. Michael was guiding me to write a letter to Paul (I thought it was Paul guiding me.) He wanted me to write a mushy love letter but I was writing about Harry. It was a disappointment so I never dropped it off or mailed it.

McKibbage didn't want Paul to know about the Harry stuff. He didn't know Paul had been rooting around in my head.

McKibbage and Casper were working for the Bush Administration.

McKibbage is responsible for putting part of Mark's spirit in my body (Mark guided me sometimes.) McKibbage is a Scottish Rite satanist.

Dear Interpol,

These are family members and/or acquaintances -- the hidden Illuminati in Meyer Lansky/tuna fish sandwich lives. They interact with each other in hidden underground complexes/cities: access from their homes, under golf courses, under schools. Government meth labs are run under golf courses.

The federal government implements mind control programs in the public schools. Parents with military/intelligence connections are complicit (and paid) to allow the torture and programming of their children. Uninformed parents are victims of the federal government -- mind control done to their first graders.

Children are taken to a room and gassed (sodium amytal or something similar.) They are then taken below ground (access under the school) or transported for programming and torture.

They are returned to the classroom with no recollection of what has happened. (They won't remember the gassing room because amytal takes away the memory up to a few hours before the event.)

Rape, sodomy and satanic rituals are used to traumatize the children.

School district students are probably mind controlled from the local Air Force Base/military base (escorted by district personnel/parents who are knowing [paid.])

School employees and parents should have a right to examine school grounds for access to underground facilities.

It is probably technically legal for the children of parents who are paid (the parents sign over their rights as their guardians.) It is not legal for the children of uninformed parents. You can remove your child from school or demand access to school grounds.

I assume local police and prosecutors are complicit.

For example, the tunnels the McMartin pre-school children described were found.

"I was a shooter; so were the French." -- Tom Gardiner (Mossad, COINTELPRO, ONI)

Tom Gardiner (Mossad, COINTELPRO, ONI) has been torturing me in the astral plane since I left my husband, a Marine assigned to me. Tom is a government psychic warrior as in David Morehouse's book "Psychic Warrior." When operatives torture infants in satanic rituals it gives them energy in the astral plane.

I was a target from birth, identified as a spiritual person, and because I was raised by a family involved in the Kennedy assassination.

I am a survivor of satanic ritual abuse and mind control.

When I moved into this apartment house in September 2003 Tom lived upstairs. (Richard Hanning, Jr., the government-assigned husband, had moved to Kentucky to take a job.) I had seen this apartment house on the internet a year or two earlier and taken an interest in it. It was one of two I assume the government purchased in the event I moved to purchase them.

Tom says he would have been a neighbor in the other one if I had moved into the other one.

I met a nice man and decided to leave my husband. I have been openly targeted since then, and have learned that the primary purpose of

Dialogue in the astral plane:

Charles Harrelson says he may not have been a shooter. He was there, a tramp, possibly programmed to believe he'd fired a shot or shots.

"Forty years is a lot of time and a lot of money to spend covering up this one truth." Phil McGraw, civilian/military/highest level

Programming has got to be against the law. It's a violation of your personal space.

"It was supposed to be hidden, permanently," said Michael.

"It's possible people were programmed to believe they were shooters during the re-enactment (1964.)" -- Harry Movie sets. It was done on movie sets.

"It's meant to be real so if you're drugged or under duress you will remember it." -- Harry

"The Presidency is really nothing." (Of any country, he means.)

"Kennedy had the audacity to believe he was actually running the country." -- Phil McGraw

"They would only give the Holy Spirit of God to the highest secret operative in existence." -- Harry

Which means the Illuminati planned this since their beginning, presumably sometime after the death of Christ.

I'm gonna have to pay Richard back for room and board. (Richard Hanning, Jr., Nazi Vril)

"I would torture you 'til there's nothing left of you." -- Tom, sincerely

"We're not fucking around." -- Michael and Tom (Michael, former Archangel)

"I think we've proven it." -- McKibbage (contact of Ike's -- Dwight D. Eisenhower, my attorney for the divorce who took my money and then severed the relationship)

Lets all meet in Tennessee and punch the hell out of each other, just for shits and giggles. I'll bring my travel trailer along, so's we ALL have a place to lay down and heal-up afterwords.

Should I bring the generator so's we can run AC Linears too, or just stick with the DC's? auuuddddiooo! :)

It's a well known fact that KB2SMS and N8WWM sell CB amps. Google up Doug Adair N8WWM and you will see that selling CB amps and crappy homemade antennas are there specialty.

I don't see Holmgren as the problem. He's done a great job, IMO. The refs didn't help, but ANY team should play the game -expecting- a few bad calls against them. The Hawks lost because the Steelers were the better team. It's that simple.

So..... anyone wanna buy a Seahawks jacket?

Lets run AC and I'll bring the crankup tower. And don't forget plenty of beer. Then we can keydown and sing old country songs.

Does it say world champs on it?

The only reason I asked about Holmgren is he was out coached by another Bill.

Reckon that grates on him? Fans are fickle, I figure there's more than one Hawk fan wondering if Mike was thinking about his wife being in Africa while the big game was on.

1660. Cushman CE50-1-TG service monitor help needed

Hi,
I have a slightly sick Cushman CE50-TG-1 service monitor and was wondering if anyone has taken any voltage readings from a working unit they would be willing to share.
I need to check the voltages at test points 3 & 4 on the 29000 board with the frequency set between 9.9999mhz and 100khz. That should give me the normal range for both the A & B VCO's control voltage's. (referenced to chassis ground) Any other voltages would be helpful so I can note them for future reference.
Sure would have been nice if Cushman would have provided some basic voltage readings on the schematics.

Any help would be appreciated,
Thanks,
RoD

I Just picked one up on eBay, without instructions or schematic.
Barjan says it knows nothing.

(1) Anyone have instructions to fax or email?
(2) Can the beep be modified? It is now very soft and high pitched.
(3) What are the two pots for on the PCB?
(4) How is the "receiver control" mic lead generally used?

Yea that's right! You turned me onto that recipie..we better bring some rock cans along with the bottles. We might need a loader to clean up all the carcasses when we're done. Shame on the mess.

You are a nitwit, and to boot, one that cannot spell or form any semblance of a complete sentence. Go play in your sandbox. Oh, and watch out for the cat turds.

Ball and Chain would work (but Joplin's is better). So would Chain Gang Boogie or Irish Lullaby.

Hehehe,,I'm sure they are. You can always use something a lttle smaller,,like a stick of dynamite or some M-200's. Just don't be surprised when they start flopping around on the way home. You can stun a ton without killing one, it's been done <g>.

Nothing against Snoop, but GClinton and PFunk are more my taste. They played tonight in St. Petersburg but I couldn't make it this year.

I don't know if it's still legal or not, but I used to buy waterproof cannon fuse. I'll leave the rest to your imagination.
I shot (or so I thought) a turkey, put it in my truck and about 5 minutes later it started flapping its wings. I had only stunned it. I was pretty stunned myself trying to stop the truck while the bird was going spastic.

George Clinton is cool. I used to have an album Tales of Kid Funkadelic that was pretty trippy.

I've been waiting for a bittorrent tracker to come back up for hours
so I can find you some lossless Daevid Allen Coe.

Nothing at http://www.archive.org/audio/etree.php ...

You could find some Coe cover tunes. The only one I found at another place is http://bt.etree.org/details.php?id=16921
but it's been up since August and there are no peers on it.

Two days later, I was in WV at a festival. My videotape of one band started to seed, but then the tracker borked.
I'm not going to seed it if I don't get credit for the bits.

I'll check tomorrow if that tracker is back up. I'll email directly. There are presently no openings on that tracker, but I could get you in...

COOL! Knob Creek Kentucky has a spring and fall full auto shoot every year.
It's great at night with all the tracer rounds and explosions.

You have to admit though, the AK is the king of assault rifles. You can shoot thousands of rounds through them without cleaning and they always fire and never fail to feed the next round. I can't say that about my AR15, plastic POS with a high price tag.

I'm in good company. You on the other hand take orders from a convicted felon. You call it good leadership, in prison they call it turning you out,

Dr. Douche,

N8 puts very little effort into day to day AKC operations, the bulk of the auction ratting is done by AKC members, and we carry on with the work of making keyclowns bark on command, ratting out amp sales, etc. independently of his authority. So it's no use trying to eliminate N8. Even if you could, you cannot stop the AKC, it is too spread out and too powerful. You must accept that there is nothing you can do about it.

The radio spectrum grows smaller every day and keyclowning by any group anywhere can no longer be tolerated. There must be security for all or no one is secure. Now this does not mean giving up any freedom, except the freedom to act irresponsibly. The FCC knew this when they made laws to govern CB and hired agents to enforce them. We, of the non keyclown persuasion have long accepted this principle. We are an organization for the mutual protection of the RF spectrum and for the complete elimination of sissy keyclown activity. The test of any such higher authority is, of course, the police force that supports it. For your policemen we created the AKC. Their function is to patrol ebay and newsgroups like this one and preserve the non-keyclown point of view. In matters of aggression they have absolute power over keyclowns. This power cannot be revoked. A t the first signs of keyclowning they act automatically against the keyclowns. The penalty for provoking their action is too terrible to risk. The result is we enjoy RRCB without keyclown threats, secure in the knowledge that we are free from sissy keyqueens, free to pursue legal cb. Now, we do not pretend to have achieved perfection, but we do have a system, and it works. We came here to give you these facts. It is no concern of ours how you ruin your own CB channels, but if you threaten to extend your keyclown ways to the rest of the RF spectrum, this newsgroup of yours will be reduced to a burned-out cinder. Your choice is simple: obey us and live in peace, or pursue your present course and face obliteration. We shall be waiting for your answer. The decision rests with you.

I don't want to eliminate dogie, his stupidity is amusing to say the least.
As far the AKC being spread out and powerful, 2 people living about 150 miles apart is stretching things a bit. By the way, I have a bid on an amp on ebay.

There are way more than 2 people in the AKC. Some are just not active at the moment. Google twithed and AKC and you will see that he accurately names at least a dozen of us.

We will rat it out before it closes. If not then, we will rat it out when you sell it.
You can't stop the AKC.

First came the Muhammad cartoons, then the Hampster Dance Mohammed web site, now witness the Muhammad blow-up sex doll:

http://www.thesun.co.uk/article/0,,2-2006060507,,00.html

"MUSTAFA SHAG DOLL
Your own inflatable escort for your Hen Night adventures. Mustafa comes with his own penis. Blow him hard to inflate him and watch his 7 incher come to life."

(Note: No word yet if he comes with his own explosives belt and blows himself up after so-many 'sessions' - but heck folks! He's only 7 INCHES??? I thought those ragheads in the Middle East were all hung like horses....)
